BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL WAITS AS LONG TALKS

Kingfish Insists on "Soaking Rich."

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—The first night sessions of the senate on the billion dollar tax bill adjourned with nothing accomplished because of a 3 hour solo filibuster by Huey P. Long, new and turbulent senator from Louisiana.

During the afternoon session the senate had defeated by a vote of 31 to 49, the amendment by which Senator James Cousens [Rep., Mich.] proposed to put in the peak income tax rates of 1918.

Still determined, the radical group behind the movement to "soak the rich" then threw their support to the amendment of Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] to restore the 1922 rates—that is, to impose a normal rate of 4 per cent on the first $4,000 and 8 per cent on all above $4,000, and surtax rates mounting to a 55 per cent maximum.

Kingfish Fears Defeat.

The "Kingfish"—as he terms himself—was determined to delay action as he feared defeat if the Connally amendment was voted on tonight and hoped that with a night's delay it might pass tomorrow.

Huey gyrated and flapped his arms. From a Dempsey crouch he spiraled into a Billy Sunday fling, arms raised to heaven. He pedaled up and around and about the center aisle. And he sweat copiously into a large white handkerchief.

It was a vaudeville close to a day's show that had been given over to the fight, led by the radical bloc, to write into the tax bill income tax rates still higher than the high ones now in the bill as reported from committee.

Delay Expensive to Treasury.

Last Friday Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], the finance committee's chairman, announced that delay on the tax bill was costing the treasury two million dollars a day in lost revenue.

The "Kingfish" announced that he intended to "save the senate from itself."

The Connally rates had been adopted by the finance committee, but the committee had done a flip flop and knocked them out when Secretary of Treasury Mills stuck in the spurs, that morning ten days ago.

The "Kingfish" taunted the elder statesmen until they grew warm and squirmy. He recommended that Mr. Mills be allowed to write the tax bills all by himself.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the finance committee had been Huey's "guiding light," his "shining torch," but now that Mississippi statesman had "done him wrong." Of Harrison and Smoot Huey shouted:

"They say: 'Follow me.' I turn around to follow and then, lo and behold, they have left and there is nobody to follow."

Illustrates His Point.

To illustrate his point Long told the story of a man who left an inscription on his tombstone:

"As I am now so ye will be,
Prepare you then to follow me."

Long said the man's wife then added the following two lines:

"To follow you I'm not content
Until I know which way you went."

Long told the story about the southern darky who went gunning for Mose Jackson, but couldn't get in Mose's house because a voice from inside denied Mose was there.

"That's the way with the finance committee," said Mr. Long. "I thought they were in the right house, but when I knock somebody says, 'This ain't us; this is where we was.' And I have to go to Ogden Mills' house to find them."

Laughter in Galleries.

"Theirs not to reason why," he quoted, and laughter rippled through the galleries. "Theirs but to do or die," and the vice president pounded sternly.

The Cousens amendment would have imposed even higher taxes than those carried in the Connally proposal.

Both amendments met a crossfire of objection. Senators seeking to protect the taxpayer of moderate means joined with senators protecting the higher surtaxes, for admittedly the proposals aimed to secure a major portion of revenue from the lower brackets.

The Cousens rates were: Normal tax—4 per cent on the first $4,000, and 12 per cent on all income over that amount; surtax rates—to begin at $8,000 and rise to a maximum of 65 per cent on all net income over a million dollars.

The rates carried in the bill as re-

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—[Special.]—Former Senator James A. Reed lashed governmental interference in business before a meeting tonight of the Kansas City section of the Federation of American Business.

Speaking more than an hour, Senator Reed hit hardest at the lack of qualifications of government employés.

"I do not believe business suffers so much from competition by the government as it does from the swarm of pestiferous chaps in office who are absolutely ignorant of the principles of conducting a business," was the senator's opening remark.

Assails Congress 'Incompetence.'

His attack did not stop with federal employés, but included members of congress.

"The government is made up of an aggregation of individuals," he said. "Some of them were successful in running for congress. A man wants to be in congress because the salary there is more than he can make in his own business at home. And they all take to Washington with them the same brains they used at home.

"They are required to pass on every question from mouse traps to the size of chain necessary to hold an elephant. A man whose only banking knowledge is the routine in making out a check boldly undertakes to regulate the banking and credits of the country.

U. S. Salaries Triple Worth.

"Nobody goes to Washington to get a job unless he cannot get a better job at home. A man drawing an $1,800 salary at Washington would be worth about $600 at home.

"I have seen men arrive there with their toes sticking out. The next day I would see them armed with credentials and badges empowering them to go into business to make reports and recommendations.

"Don't for a minute think because a man is elected he also becomes wise. Blindfolded, I can pick fifty men from this group just as capable as any fifty men in congress."

Senator Reed swung into an attack on the increasing power of the federal government and what he termed as deliberate attempts to regulate or ruin private businesses. He said the start was with the taxation of state bank circulations seventy-five years after the government was founded.

Return to Depotism.

"The purpose of a government is to protect," he said. "When it tries to regulate lives, home, and business it is a throwback to the days of despotism. In recent years the theory in this country has been the enactment of a statute. How often have we heard "there ought to be a law," and pretty soon there is a law.

"Government regulation ultimately will destroy the free market of the farm. In the end the farmer will take the price established by some set of incompetent government employés if the regulation is continued.

"I unhesitatingly say the reason you have this present wheat situation is chargable alone to Arthur Hyde and his board. They have upset values here and all over the world and are responsible for the general agricultural conditions.

Tries to Teach Everything.

"Government has gone into the business of teaching everybody everything. It tells the farmer how to plow when the 14 year old boy between the plow handles knows more about it than all the employés in Washington. It tells women how to care for their babies and I venture to say it has killed more babies than it has helped.

"Agents are sent snooping into business houses telling experienced men how to run their places and the agents seldom are worth the price of a $25 a week clerk.

"The best thing the government can

SUPREME COURT GUARDS AGAINST RADICALS' MARCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Extra guardsmen patrolled the corridors of the United States Supreme court following the receipt of a report that communists planned a march on the nation's highest tribunal. Five additional policemen were assigned to the guard duty at the request of Charles E. Cropley, clerk of the Supreme court.

Whether the precautionary moves had anything to do with the Scottsboro, Ala., case in which six colored men were sentenced to death was not made known. This case, which has been agitated both here and abroad, is expected to reach the Supreme court some time before June 24, the date of execution.

In event a petition is not filed prior to the adjournment of court on May 31, it would be necessary for counsel to secure a stay of execution if the Negroes are not to die before the court could act next fall. The six were convicted on charges of criminal assault on two white girls.

64 Are Killed in India Race Riot; 650 Hurt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, May 17.—[Tuesday.]—As the casualty list in three days of fierce and unabated communal battling between Hindus and Moslems here rose to 64 killed and more than 650 wounded, crack detachments of troops and armored cars were rushed early today from Poona. Among the troops was the second battalion of the Green Howards, which left Poona aboard a fast special train.

Bombay last night was an embattled city. Knives flashed, stones hurtled through the air, and iron rods landed against human flesh as followers of the two religions converted entire districts into battle areas. Terror gripped the whole city.

Put Torch to Buildings.

Great bonfires, blazing from one end of Girguam road to the other, lighted the bloody scenes. Hindu mobs looted Moslem shops and Moslem mobs set Hindu buildings, one a four story tenement, on fire. Temples and mosques suffered great damage from stonings.

The city's police were nearly exhausted after three days of futile efforts to check the communal bloodshed, which had its origin Saturday in an attack on two Hindu boys by some Moslems.

The riots yesterday accounted for sixteen of the total slain and about 200 of the injured. Sir Frederick Sykes, governor of Bombay presidency, took cognizance of the gravity of the situation by returning to the city by airplane from a summer vacation trip.

Defy Police Orders.

Police Commissioner Patrick Kelly's order yesterday forbidding civilians to carry weapons of any kind was defied by both Hindus and Moslems as the communal enmity flared.

The fighting increased in intensity last evening, and toe fires in Girguam road provided a weird background for the leaping figures as they engaged in hand to hand encounters which many times ended in death.

The road was littered with goods from Moslem shops. Police reported one comic relief incident. A group of Moslems were noticed moving down a street in a strange waddling manner. All the Moslem, curiously enough, were corpulent. The police, suspicious, searched the waddlers and extracted yard after yard of silks and gold and silver embroideries.

HOODLUMS BEAT NURSE; THREE YOUTHS SEIZED

Three of five youths who beat one nurse and seized another were arrested last night near the Illinois Eye and Ear hospital, 904 West Adams street. The nurses, Miss Esther Jones, 22 years old, and Miss Louise Mann, 22, both of whom live at the hospital home, were walking in Adams street from Halsted street toward the home when the five youths surrounded them.

One of them struck Miss Jones in the face. She and Miss Mann fled screaming toward the hospital. The hoodlums caught up with them and one hit Miss Jones again. Another seized Miss Mann. Their screams attracted Policeman James Lockington of the Des Plaines street station and he captured three of the men on the scene.

The prisoners are Rene Le Mieux, 18 years old, 616 South Loomis street; Albert Guarinello, 17, 1418 Harrison street, and Roland Burnet, 17, of 1337 Harrison street. They will be arraigned in the Boys' court this morning.

KEEP OFF GRASS! "PROF" WARNS IN 7 LANGUAGES

Prof. James Taft Hatfield of Northwestern university made known in seven languages yesterday that he doesn't want any one tramping on the grass in front of his home at 617 Foster street, Evanston. The professor, who has been head of the university's German department since 1890, posted seven signs along the lawn, written in French, Italian, Latin, Greek, German, Chinese, and English. The warning in each of them was "Keep off the grass." Prof. Hatfield's home is adjacent to the campus, and the warnings were posted mainly for the benefit of students, it was said.

CAPTURE $100,000 IN RUM HUNTING LINDY KIDNAPERS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—Two boats carrying 1,400 sacks of choice liquors and champagnes valued at more than $100,000 were captured near the mouth of Delaware bay last night by coast guardsmen and brought to this city today. The craft were caught in the net of cutters and patrol boats flung out in an attempt to capture a vessel supposed to be carrying the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby or the racketeers who defrauded Col. Lindbergh of $50,000 ransom.

663 Saved as Ship Sinks Off African Coast

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DJIBOUT, French Somaliland, Africa, May 16. — Six hundred and sixty-three passengers and members of the crew were reported to have been rescued and an undetermined number lost after fire broke out with explosive force before dawn today aboard the $4,000,000 French motorship Georges Philippar, "floating chateau" of the eastern seas. The fire occurred as the liner was entering the Gulf of Aden on its return from a maiden voyage to the orient.

The conflagration started in the interior of the ship, presumably from a leak in the oil pipes, and the flames hissed upward like jets from an acetylene torch. The passengers, believed to have numbered nearly 600 and to have included an unusually large number of women and children, families of French officials in the far east who were returning home, were awakened by the roar of flames.

Ship Races Fiery Death.

Many had just time to grab their valuables and rush to the decks in night clothes as the interior passages in the ship became a blazing furnace.

The story of the catastrophe, as told in brief radio messages picked up by the French station at Djibout, where the Philippar was due to touch Wednesday, was that it was a race with the fiery death roaring up from the hold.

Only a short time, apparently, elapsed between the first alarm and the S O S which was sent out at 5:54 a. m. The plates of alloy cracked with the heat as lifeboats were lowered.

Between Savages and Sea.

At the moment the fire broke out the Philippar, bound for Marseilles, was plowing along the usual ship lane about midway between Socotra island and Cape Guardafui, in Italian Somaliland, the eastern most tip of Africa. Ships usually steer well clear of that treacherous sandy coast, which is infested by savage Bedouins.

Realizing that launching the lifeboats would be a desperate gamble in the rough seas—this is the season of the deadly southwest monsoons—Capt. Vicq swung the nose of his ship around and dashed with the full speed of the ship's 11,600 horsepower internal combustion motors for the African shore, trying to win a mile or two which would enable the boats to be launched in the quieter water inside the cape.

Meantime, the full crew of around 300 had manned the ultra-modern fire fighting equipment which was a feature of the liner and tried vainly to localize the conflagration.

Passengers Badly Burned.

How much time elapsed before the passengers were warned is not known. One young girl among those burned is known to have died of her injuries. One of the radio messages referred to an explosion, but it is not known whether the blast occurred before or after the boats were launched.

Shortly after sending the S O S Capt. Vicq ordered the engines stopped and life boats lowered. The ship was then some twenty miles off the African coast and the seas were still high.

From conflicting reports, none of them clear, it is impossible to untangle the tragic drama which ensued between the order to lower the lifeboats and the moment they were first sighted by rescue vessels.

Die in Shark Infested Waters.

Apparently it was impossible to launch all of the life boats, or if the launching was successful, one or more capsized shortly after, spilling its passengers into the shark infested

TROOPS GUARD CAPITAL WITH FIXED BAYONETS

Tokio to Bury Slain Premier Tomorrow.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, May 17 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Leaders of the army gave notice today they would refuse to support any new Japanese cabinet based on political parties. They insisted a national cabinet be formed.

The action of the army was taken to mean that plans for the formation of a cabinet by Kisaburo Suzuki, home minister, who accepted the presidency of the Seiyukai party today, would have to be given up. It had been thought certain M. Suzuki would succeed the late Premier Suyoshi Inukai, slain by assassins on Sunday.

The army's ultimatum completely upset the plans of the political leaders, who during the day virtually had settled on M. Suzuki to head another party government.

Gen. Mazaki, vice chief of the army general staff, informed Gen. Sadao Araki, minister of war, that the army would refuse to approve any nomination for war minister in a party cabinet. The constitution provides that the war minister must be a general of the army, so the army can prevent the formation of any ministry it disapproves.

TOKIO, May 17.—[Tuesday.]—Soldiers and police patrolled Tokio today to prevent a repetition of Sunday's outbreak of militaristic terrorism during which Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai, the "old gray fox" of Japanese politics, was assassinated and public buildings were bombed.

PRINCE SAIONJI.

For the first time since the earthquake of 1923 the militia has been called from its barracks for active duty. Five hundred soldiers, carrying rifles with fixed bayonets, are standing guard at the entrances of the war, navy, and home ministries, metropolitan police headquarters, and other public buildings.

The capital of Japan was outwardly calm—ominously so.

Terrorist Plot Crushed.

The terrorist plot of young army and naval cadets to seize the capital has been crushed, government officials said today.

After the death of the 77 year old Premier Inukai, foe of militarism and veteran of representative government in Japan, the cabinet submitted its resignation to Emperor Hirohito through Acting Premier Takahashi. The mikado instructed the aged Takahashi and his cabinet to continue in office until further orders.

Meanwhile Prince Saionji, last of Japan's elder statesmen, was expected in Tokio today for a conference with the emperor, a traditional procedure in governmental crises. He is reported to have left his villa at Okitsu yesterday.

The Fascist movement in Japan was dealt a heavy blow yesterday when the military council decided to remove Gen. Sadao Araki, leading Nationalist, as minister of war. Lieut. Gen. Jinzaburo Masaki, vice chief of the army general staff, was chosen as his successor.

Navy Chief to Retire.

Simultaneously Admiral Minea Osumi, minister of the navy, who turned in his resignation with the rest of the cabinet, announced that he, too, would retire from public life. Both the ministers of war and navy disavowed Sunday's terrorism and said the guilty ones would be punished.

Kisaburo Suzuki, home minister, late last night accepted the presidency of the Seiyukai (government) party, thus becoming virtually certain of succeeding the assassinated Inukai as Japan's premier. His acceptance of the post averted dissensions that threatened to split the ruling party.

Party elder men persuaded Taejiro Tokonami, railway minister, to drop his ambitions for the presidency early today.

Suzuki will be formally installed as president of the party at a massmeeting of the Seiyukai's parliamentary members this afternoon. Every one takes it for granted that he will be the next premier in accordance with the Japanese custom which hands that post to the leader of the dominant party. His appointment, it is felt, will not satisfy the reactionary elements, which are clamoring for a strong "cooperative" National government.

Fear Financial Disturbance.

An urgent conference of Gov. Hijikata, Vice Governor Fukai and all directors of the Bank of Japan, which was among the institutions bombed, was held yesterday. Preparations were completed to make emergency advances to the provincial banks in case of need. The action was taken to prevent financial disturbances.

The 11 young army cadets, corresponding to West Point cadets in the United States, and six sub-lieutenants, who surrendered themselves to military police after the attack on Premier Inukai and the bombing raids, in which eight persons were wounded, are confined in cells and are being carefully guarded. Authorities announced that the prisoners will be tried soon by a court martial. The identities of the surrendered men have been kept a secret.

Hand bills left by the raiders attacked the present system of economic affairs in Japan, the system of education and the administration of army and navy affairs. According to government spokesmen, the leaders of the outbreak "are youngsters imbued with a mistaken sense of patriotism, who failed to obtain support for any such direct action in quarters of responsible authority."

Premier Inukai will be given a state funeral by the Seiyukai party tomorrow.

EVACUATION CONTINUES

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 17 [Tuesday].—Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, commander of the Japanese 9th division, informer Chinese authorities yesterday that the militarist outbreak in Tokio will not interfere with the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Shanghai.

It was stated that less than a division is now remaining here and that most of these troops are scheduled to depart within ten days. A small contingent, however, will remain here until the end of the month. They will leave when Gen. Uyeda returns to Japan.

A contingent of 1,000 troops embarked last night and are scheduled to sail for Manchuria at noon today. Japanese troops and marines yesterday evacuated a considerable part of the native city of Chapei. Chinese gendarmes took over the area without incident.

The Japanese consulate at Shanghai last night issued a statement regarding the situation in Tokio, declaring that Japan generally does not present any unusual aspect, although authorities are taking steps to prevent a spread of unnecessary rumors.

SECOND WOMAN IN BELLWOOD AUTO CRASH DIES

Miss Gladys Kronquist, 23 years old, 414 Walnut street, Maywood, a school teacher, died at the Westlake hospital last night from injuries suffered early Sunday when the sedan in which she was riding struck a pole on an "S" turn in Bellwood. Mrs. Fayora McDermott, 22 years old, 710 South 3d avenue, Maywood, whose husband, Cyril, was driving, was killed instantly.

This death and two others yesterday increased the 1932 Cook county toll to 404. The other victims:

Charles Nottke, 68 years old, 4201 South Ashland avenue. Killed by a truck at Racine and 47th street. The driver was Arthur Meyer, 4400 South Honore street.

Arthur Sheppard, 32 years old, 214 South Hamlin avenue. Fatally hurt in collision Sunday at Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue.

A. W. Van Dell, 50 years old, 315 North 5th avenue, Maywood, was killed and Morton Farmer, 30 years old, of the same address, was injured in a collision with a truck during a rain squall on the highway near Indianapolis yesterday.

DIES OF FALL FROM CAR.

Henry L. Webber, 49 years old, 5536 South Spaulding avenue, died yesterday in the Mercy hospital of injuries suffered when he fell off a refrigerator car while working for the Oetting Ice and Coal company on a siding at 15th street and Union avenue.

SEES JAPANESE DEATH PLOT AS DAWN OF NEW ERA

Slayers of Premier Called Political Crusaders.

BY ADACHI KINNOSUKE.

[Japanese newspaper man, author, and lecturer.]

In the pre-dawn days of the New Nippon, nearly a century ago, the ronin [wave men] of the Mito clan struck down the Great Elder Ii outside of the historic Sakurada gate, leading to the Yedo castle, not far from the scene of Sunday's tragedy. And in so doing it tolled the knell of the parting Tokugawa Shogunate reign in Japan.

On Sunday Japan's venerable Premier Inukai was struck down.

Years part the two tragedies, but, essentially, they are parallel—in their motives and in their technique. Inukai's slayers were no radicals, malcontents or men with unbalanced minds. They were men from Japan's Annapolis and West Point, sober and serious—who took themselves more seriously as patriots than most of their own countrymen. They stood at the opposite pole from the political assassins of the occident.

Motives Are Reviewed.

Why, then, this act of utter violence, this despicable crime—as America or any other occidental nation would see it? What made these young fighting men of Japan do such a thing?

These young soldiers saw their beloved Nippon in a life and death struggle—saw her in one of the critical hours of her distress.

And then they saw the professional politicians playing their contemptible game of feathering their own little nests—the same old, sordid political drama of bowing down to the golden calf—not so uncommon in those enlightened United States. They saw many politicians stringing along with moneyed interests like so many hirelings.

Lost Faith in Politicians.

An they saw what I believe was the real cause of the present tragedy: That the people of Japan—at least the more seriously patriotic half of Japan—have lost their faith in professional politicians.

The act of the assassins, in no sense, proves in the remotest way that their victim, Premier Inukai, was corrupt. But to the young patriots he was the symbol of the betrayal of the trust of the emperor.

And just what is the political meaning of this tragedy? To me it gives voice to the conviction of the Japanese people of the utter failure of the so-called political party system of government.

RIGHT HAND MAN TO MACEDONIAN 'KING' MURDERED

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 16.—(AP)—Dimitre Mihailoff, right hand man to "King" Ivan Mihailoff, leader of the revolutionary Macedonian emigrants, was assassinated on a street of Sofia tonight. The assassin escaped. Mihailoff was president of the Legal Organization of the emigrants and acted as counsel for the "king," who himself leads the secret rebellious groups known as the "Imro."

The "Imro"—inner Macedonian revolutionary organization—seeks independence for about 2,500,000 people living in an area of 50,000 square miles north of Greece and now divided among Greece, Bulgaria, and Jugo-Slavia. The "king without a kingdom" must carry on his activities in the strictest secrecy.

The king moves from camp to camp in the Balkan mountains, and carries on romantic reprisals and plots to discourage the rule of Greece, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia. "King" Ivan, who is in his thirties, has a prime minister, Jordan Shkatorff, former resident of Cleveland, O.

Disaster at Sea

Map indicates where French motorship Georges Philippar was burned off Cape Guardafui, Africa. Late reports said 663 persons of the 800 passengers and 300 members of the crew had been rescued. The fate of the others was uncertain.

HOUSE OF MITSUI, ASSAILED BY JAPS, IS 300 YEARS OLD

The Mitsui trust of Japan, which has been attacked by militarists as too great a concentration of wealth, according to dispatches, is comparable to the Rothschilds of Europe and J. P. Morgan & Co. of the United States. The trust is owned by one family. It controls productive properties worth many billions of dollars throughout the far east. The grievance of the militarists was said to be that "money has been concentrated in the Mitsui and Mitsubishi trusts on the one hand while the government has been refusing to grant appropriations demanded for the army in Manchuria." The Mitsubishi trust is similar to and affiliated with the Mitsui trust.

The Mitsui family's holdings and operations exceed those of the big international banking houses of the western world. The family was founded in the thirteenth century by a certain Nagaiye, who was made a noble. The family did not engage in business until the sixteenth century, however, when one member of the family became a merchant. Later a son, Takatoshi, laid the foundation of the present family.

The holdings of the Mitsui family are varied, ranging from banks, steamship lines, a vast importing and exporting trade, coal fields and mines, to department stores and canneries. Baron Hachiroemon Mitsui is the present head of Mitsui & Co. and heads the council of eleven families as well. All members of the eleven Mitsui families are governed by the council; they may not dispose of their personal properties but must retain them for the benefit of the family as a whole.

9 STUDENTS GET JURY TRIAL FOR INSULL PARADE

Nine students of the University of Chicago Divinity school and the Garrett Biblical institute, who were arrested for staging a demonstration on Saturday in front of the home of Samuel Insull at 1100 Lake Shore drive, were granted a jury trial yesterday by Judge Frederick W. Elliott. They will be tried May 31 in the jury court on a charge of unlawful assembly. According to the students, their demonstration was a protest against the treatment of miners on Insull properties in Kentucky.

Those arraigned are Philip Booth, 5524 Ellis avenue; Aaron Gilmartin; Donald Thompson, 5659 Woodlawn avenue, and George Wheeler, 5528 Dorchester avenue, all of the University of Chicago; and Paul E. Trimpey, William G. Law, James McKnight, Andrew Juvinall, and Charles D. Myers of Garrett Biblical institute.

NEW $4,000,000 LINER BURNS AT SEA; 200 MISSING

663 Saved as Ship Sinks Off African Coast.

waters, for a few hours later the Japanese steamer Hakone Maru, speeding to the rescue, radioed that it had spotted an empty life boat.

Six ships raced in response to the Philippar's S O S. They were the British liners Ontranto, Mahsud, Kaiserihind and Contractor, the Japanese steamer, and the Russian tanker, Sovietskaia Nest.

According to reports now available the Mahsud picked up 134 survivors, the Contractor, 128, and the Sovietskaia 400, including the captain of the ill fated vessel. The Contractor radioed that a young French girl, Mlle De Rogers, had died of her injuries and had been buried at sea.

Estimates as to the number missing are still vague, owing to the uncertainty regarding the passenger list, but it is believed that if the message from the soviet tanker, which was phrased in broken English, is correct most of those on board have been saved. Among those rescued, it was reported, was Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the league of nations.

Believe Some Americans Aboard.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MARSEILLES, France, May 16.—Among the passengers on the liner Georges Philippar, which was destroyed by fire today off Africa, was a sprinkling of English and American tourists, it is believed here. The passenger list is not yet available. One copy of the list was sent to France overland from the far east by the Trans-Siberian railway and another is coming by airplane from Saigon, French Cochin-China. Neither has arrived.

The director of the ship company, M. Monge, revealed that the ship, which was valued at more than $4,000,000, was well covered by insurance.

This is the second time fire has broken out on the Georges Philippar. On Nov. 29, 1930, while workers were putting the final touches on the interior decorations, flames broke out in the refrigeration chambers. They were mastered only after a stubborn fight of several hours.

By an odd coincidence, the ship which the Georges Philippar replaced in the far eastern service, the Andre le Bon, was also destroyed by fire. It burned in the dock at Marseilles in 1928.

The Georges Philippar was ultramodern. It was 526 feet long and had a displacement of 21,000 tons. It was driven by internal combustion Diesel Sulzer motors.

The vessel was decorated in the French renaissance style and was a veritable floating chateau, with period salons modeled after the famous French chateaux. It had accommodations for 1,077 passengers.

Hint at Foul Play.

MARSEILLES, France, May 16.—(AP)—The surete generale, the French "Scotland Yard," revealed tonight that trouble had been forecast mysteriously for the French liner Georges Philippar before its maiden voyage that ended in destruction of the ship by fire off Africa today.

The vessel was searched and watched closely before it sailed for Yokohama as a result of rumors at her dock here that trouble awaited her. Two detectives searched the boat, but discovered nothing.

PHYSICIANS TELL OF PARESIS TURNED TO PATH OF FORTUNE

Baltimore, Md., May 16.—(AP)—Paresis, Dr. Albert E. Roussel of Philadelphia told the annual convention of the American Therapeutic society here today, turned one of his patients from a conservative business man into a Wall street plunger who made "several hundred thousand" before an administrator could be named.

Dr. E. F. Bledsoe told of the treatment of the malady at the Springfield State hospital at Sykesville, Md., where he is superintendent.

He said that by inducing attacks of malarial fever in 85 patients in advanced stages of paresis he had restored 14 per cent of them to normal and that one is now employed at a high salary as manager of a Chicago company.

DIVORCED WIFE OF MELLON STAYS ABOARD LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—The scheduled appearance in England today of Mrs. Andrew Mellon, divorced wife of the American ambassador to Great Britain, failed to materialize. Whether it was too early for her to arise to board the tender at 7 a. m., or whether it was her original intention to go on to Hamburg, Mrs. Mellon remained aboard the S. S. Milwaukee off the Isle of Wight.

Yesterday the Milwaukee stood off the Southampton coast in the fog, and again this morning agents of the Hamburg-America line refused to permit a TRIBUNE correspondent to board the tender on the grounds that visitors would delay the exchange of passengers and cargo.

Mrs. Mellon's traveling companion also remained aboard the liner, although she had made reservations at a London hotel for yesterday. A special hotel attendant waited ten hours at the dock to accompany her through the customs routine.

EVANSTON CUTS $163,300 OFF ITS 1931 TAX LEVY

The Evanston city council last night ordered that formal notice be given to County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough of a reduction of $163,300 in the 1931 tax levy for Evanston.

As itemized by City Clerk Edward Bell, the savings will consist of $30,000 in the library board appropriation, $49,500 in the garbage collection expenses, and $83,800 in expenditures for public benefits.

At the meeting Ald. Stanley Franzen was formally declared victor in the recount of the April election. The original count showed that he defeated Martin J. Vose by nine votes. The recount added two votes to his victory.

ARRAIGN GIRL FOR LEADING HER SISTER IN VICE

An 18 year old girl was arraigned before Judge Donald S. McKinley in the South Chicago court yesterday charged with encouraging immorality by her 15 year old sister. She is Irene Meyers and she was arrested in a raid on a flat at 419 East 111th street led by Assistant State's Attorney William H. Crowe. The case was continued to a later date.

Last week Minnie Meyers, the sister, and another 15 year old girl were before Judge McKinley as complainants against five youths charged with contributing to the delinquency of the young girls. The court ordered an investigation and continued the case until yesterday. After further questioning of the girls, Prosecutor Crowe took a squad of police and went to the flat on 111th street maintained by Mrs. Rose Crane, 24 years old, who was arrested. Three men, Sanford Stalman, 41, of 201 Chicago road, Thornton, Charles Reilla, 22, of 11921 Prairie avenue, and Dominick Chiaro, 28, of 157 Kensington avenue, and the Meyers girl were found there.

LINDY RANSOM DEMANDS MADE IN 39 MESSAGES

Handwriting Convinced Colonel of Authenticity.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—The writer of the ransom demand in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping case wrote thirty-nine notes during the negotiations that resulted in Dr. James F. G. (Jafsie) Condon paying $50,000 on the night of April 2 near the wall of the St. Raymond cemetery in the Bronx, it was disclosed today. The notes are in the possession of detectives working on the case.

E. E. MARSHALL. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Each of the thirty-nine notes are in the same handwriting as the original ransom note left the night of March 1 when the Lindbergh baby was stolen from his crib at Hopewell. Each note has the same fantastic signature, and it was the constant receipt of these notes and their authenticity that led Col. Lindbergh and Dr. Condon to believe they were negotiating with the actual kidnapers.

First Three Sent to Colonel.

The first three notes after the kidnaping were mailed from the vicinity of the Grand Central terminal in New York direct to Col. Lindbergh at Hopewell. In these notes he was instructed to acknowledge receipt via newspaper advertisements and await further orders.

The fourth note was received by one of the intermediaries acting for Col. Lindbergh, as the result of an advertisement inserted in a Bronx newspaper at the behest of the colonel. The other thirty-five notes, most of them confined to a mere "yes" or "no" were received by Dr. Condon in answer to the cryptic advertisements he inserted in various newspapers.

Detroit Gangsters Eliminated.

Most of the notes received by Dr. Condon were mailed in the Grand Central terminal section. A half dozen or so were dropped in mail boxes in various parts in Brooklyn.

In connection with the 39 notes it was stated today "Abe" Wagner and Harry Fleischer, two gangsters the police sought to question, have been practically eliminated. Wagner, fearing vengeance as the result of a gang feud, fled from New York several weeks before the Lindbergh baby was stolen. His whereabouts is still a mystery.

Fleischer Offers Alibi.

Fleischer had been in Detroit a short time before the kidnaping, but disappeared when the police there sought him for questioning in connection with another crime. It was said he has already offered an alibi through intermediaries to prove he had nothing to do with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

Detectives are investigating a report that a prominent New York woman was the victim of a gang who obtained $50,000 from her after promising they would return the Lindbergh baby to her.

While these facts were leaking out from "inside" sources the New Jersey state police, headed by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, were endeavoring to intensify the secrecy around their investigation.

Jafsie Visits Rogues' Galleries.

New York City officials, on the other hand, were more openly prosecuting their inquiry into the payment of the ransom money by Dr. Condon. Under police escort he journeyed into Westchester county today and inspected hundreds of photographs of criminals in the hope of finding one of the men with whom he negotiated.

Coast guard boats continued to comb the Atlantic waters for a schooner used by the gang with whom John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk boat-builder, dealt, in another effort to achieve the return of the baby. Federal authorities renewed their efforts to trace the bank notes given the extortioners by Dr. Condon.

Many Fantastic Rumors.

The day brought no indications that the inquiry had made any definite progress, but it produced its usual quota of fantastic rumors. One of these which created excitement and caused newspaper offices to be deluged with inquiries was that Betty Gow, nurse of the Lindbergh baby, had committed suicide. This was entirely without foundation.

The facts in the Lindbergh case, so far as they are known, will be put into a legal record for the first time tomorrow when District Attorney Charles B McLaughlin will present evidence before the May term of the Bronx county grand jury.

Dr. Condon will be the principal witness before the Bronx grand jury, but he also will find time to look over the criminals in the lineup at New York police headquarters each morning. It occurred to Col. Schwarzkopf that members of the gang, if they found the chase growing too hot, might manage to get themselves arrested for some minor offense and find a safe refuge in jail where no one would look for them.

Lindbergh Praises Schwarzkopf.

Criticism of the New Jersey state police investigation of the Lindbergh case was opposed on two fronts. One was a message of praise for Col. Schwarzkopf from Col. Lindbergh. The other was the action of Gov. A. Harry Moore at a conference on the case, in confirming the position of Col. Schwarzkopf as chief of all police activities.

The conference in Gov. Moore's office had as its aim the coördinating of the various efforts being made to bring the kidnapers and murderers to justice.

Besides reinforcing the position of Col. Schwarzkopf, the governor announced that Prosecutor Erwin E. Marshall of Mercer county, one time friend of Woodrow Wilson, was to assume charge of the prosecution.

Gov. Moore replied to United States Attorney General Mitchell's offer of the services of federal authorities, made on April 14 at the direction of President Hoover, and accepted it with gratitude.

HOT WAVE HITS EAST; 83 MARK IN GOTHAM, UP TO 93 IN BOSTON

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—New York got a premature taste of summer today when the temperature soared to 83 and bettered, by two degrees, a weather bureau record for May 16 that had stood since 1906. The warm spell was general throughout most of the eastern country, but New England bore the brunt of it.

In Boston the mercury reached 93; in Montpelier, Vt., it was 92 in the shade, and in Springfield, Mass., it was 87. Worcester, Mass., had its first case of heat prostration this year, as did Harrisburg, Pa.

MAN WHO GAVE UP RANCHING FOR A CASTLE KILLED

British Earl Dies After Auto Accident.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—The earl of Egmont, a Canadian cowpuncher who became an English peer through the death of a cousin three years ago, died in a hospital here early today as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident. The smashup occurred while he was driving to Avon castle, where he lived with his 17 year old heir, Viscount Perceval. He was 59 years old.

The earl was "out with a bunch of cattle" near Priddis, Alberta, when his cousin died. He returned to learn he was a chief contender to the title. After some hesitation he finally entered a claim and was awarded the title two years ago.

Misfit from Start.

He was a misfit for the English peerage from the beginning. He had emigrated to Canada forty-four years before his elevation to the earldom and always lived in western Canada.

"The prospect of adopting the life of an English peer did not appeal to me greatly at first," he said when he reached England, "but I realize the obligations to be fulfilled and I am not going to shirk them altogether."

He later admitted he "would rather be chopping wood."

The stately castle is located near Southampton, where he lived a lonely life with his sons, without servants. They slept in the kitchen and did their own cooking and laundry. The young viscount is, like his father, able to rope, throw and brand a steer, and break in a horse.

Sportsman and Engineer Dies.

Baron Ebury, sportsman and noted mining engineer, died late last night, it was revealed today. Complications arising from a double fracture of his right leg in a hunting accident resulted in his death. He worked in the mines after graduating from Harrow college and became the head of many companies. He was 49.

He went to Canada in 1903 and worked as a metallurgical chemist in the Canadian Pacific railway company's smelter at Trail, B. C. He remained in Canada until the war, in which he served as an officer of the Fourth Canadian division.

WITNESS AVERS "LOVE SLAVE" IS A DRINKING GIRL

Describes Wet Party at $250,000 Trial.

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Testimony that Mona O'Connor knew how to drink and strut long before she knew Otto Young Heyworth was given today in the court of Justice Edward J. McGoldrick. The witness was Mrs. Emily Loftus. She testified for the defense in the $250,000 suit which Miss O'Connor is prosecuting against Heyworth and his mother, Mrs. Selma C. Young. The young woman charges that she became Heyworth's "love slave" at the behest of the mother.

Mrs. Loftus, housekeeper of an apartment in West 85th street, told of tenants complaining about noise from a certain apartment. She recalled how she knocked on the door but received no response.

"Was Very Embarrassing."

"I then opened the door with my pass key," she said, "and it was very embarrassing. There were two men and two women in the room. The two women were in their underwear. There were bottles and glasses on the table. I threatened to call the police and they said they would leave after they finished the other bottle."

Then Mrs. Loftus looked from the jury to Mona, sitting on the anxious seat in Justice McGoldrick's courtroom.

"Mona was one of the women," she said, meaningly, with a little toss of her head."

Not that Mona was scrupulous in Otto's presence, to hear Mrs. Loftus tell it, or in Otto's chauffeur's presence, either.

Knew Her as Laura Hall.

About three weeks later these three were at the house and a telephone call came for Mona, whom Mrs. Loftus knew all this time as Laura Hall.

"I went to the room she was occupying and she lay nude on the lounge. Otto and Oscar were fully dressed. She made no attempt to cover herself and I was ashamed."

Mrs. O'Connor came that evening, Mrs. Loftus said, while both men were with her daughter, and Heyworth gave her $100, borrowing $60 from his chauffeur.

Under cross-examination, counsel wanted to know why she didn't complain to the police.

"Curious," She Says.

"I was curious," she said. "I wanted to see how a gold digger works."

But didn't Mrs. Loftus know this girl was only 18?

"No, I don't believe it," she said. "I'm 34 and she looks as old. I thought she was just a bad girl."

Mrs. Young took the witness stand in the afternoon and told the jury that she never had influenced her son to cultivate a friendship with Mona.

At variance with testimony introduced when the plaintiff's case was entered last week, Mrs. Young said that she never had agreed to finance the Bermuda trip which Mona had taken with her son and that she never had lavished gifts and money on the girl.

"I did see Mona once," she testified, "when she was in Postgraduate hospital recovering from an operation on her nose. I felt sorry for her and gave her a ring. That is all I ever gave her."

MRS. CUCHNA IS MADE CICERO TOWN COLLECTOR

Ending a deadlock of nearly three weeks the Cicero town board last night confirmed the appointment of Mrs. Rose Cuchna as town collector to succeed her husband, Frank, who was killed in an automobile accident April 26, a few days after taking office.

Three of the town trustees, headed by President Joseph G. Cerny, are Democrats, and three are Republicans. The Republicans blocked confirmation by remaining away from meetings, preventing a quorum.

A break occurred last night when James Sedlacek, one of the Republican trustees, appeared and voted to confirm Mrs. Cuchna's appointment. Sedlacek said he was influenced by petitions signed by more than 6,000 voters. Mrs. Cuchna thanked him for his vote. She will assume office today.

BOY, 14, IS HELD AFTER ATTEMPT AT EXTORTION

Sydney Karp, 14 years old, 1240 North Rockwell street, was held yesterday at the Juvenile detention home on a charge of attempted extortion. He was arrested Saturday night when he sought to collect $500, which he is alleged to have demanded from Harry Brownstein, owner of a dry goods store at 2980 Milwaukee avenue, on the threat of death to Brownstein or his children.

Karp was arrested by Lieut. William V. Blaul of the state's attorney's office, who, in civilian clothing, went to Le Moyne street and Campbell avenue, the place appointed for delivery of the money in a threatening note received by Brownstein. The note, which purported to come from "a desperate gang," ordered Brownstein to appear at 9:30 o'clock and to give the money to a "boy."

Lieut. Blaul kept the appointment, carrying a fake package supposed to contain the money. Karp appeared and was arrested.

Lieut. Blaul said that the Karp boy may have been aided by some on else and that today he hopes to get some information from the boy which may result in other arrests.

FATHER OF 13 FACES JAIL FOR BACK ALIMONY

Albert Graefen, owner of a farm near Oak Lawn, appeared before Judge Henry B. Miller yesterday in the Superior court to show cause why he should not go to jail for failure to pay his divorced wife for the support of their children. Mrs. Anna Graefen, 245 West 109th street, who divorced him in February, charged that he was $188 in arrears on payments for support of their eight minor children. They have thirteen altogether.

"I can't raise any money crops on my place except hay," Graefen pleaded. "It used to sell for $22 a ton, but now it brings only $5 or $8. Besides, some of my customers are county employés, and they can't pay me because the county hasn't paid them."

Judge Miller continued the case to May 31.

COUNTY JOINS IN DEMAND FOR CUT IN U. S. SPENDING

Committee Asks Congress to Reduce Taxes.

The finance committee of the county board yesterday petitioned congress to reduce taxes and drastically cut federal governmental expense. The action came in a resolution offered by Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, a county commissioner. The resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote and will be approved at the regular board meeting today. The city council has demanded a 20 per cent reduction in federal expenditures.

MRS. E. J. FLEMING.

Mrs. Fleming estimated that the federal government has collected $639,924,073 from residents of Cook county and $110,586,859 from surrounding counties in the first revenue district of the state during the last three years. She pointed out that the proposed increase in federal taxes of more than 1 billion dollars will add more than $60,000,000 to the average federal tax burden of $179,967,000 on the residents of Cook county.

Tells of County Economy.

"It is the policy of the county," she said, "to reduce expenses and lower taxes by the discharge of 10 per cent of the regular employés, reducing salaries by 15 per cent, enforcing payless vacations, reducing current expenses, practically eliminating capital outlays and even reducing desirous and essential services. Provision and clothing of the poor, aid for the sick, infirm and aged, courts, prosecutions and police are among the services affected despite a statutory duty.

"The people of Cook county request a relief from taxes rather than a further increase. They have commended the action of the county board and other local governmental agencies in retrenchment. The tax increase under consideration by congress will tend to delay the hoped for revival of business and alleviation of unemployment."

Mrs. Fleming said she doubted that the average federal tax of $179,000,000 can continue to be collected, as it seems beyond the financial ability of the people of the county to pay. She pointed to the 1930 total of federal, state, and local government bills of $448,000,000, of which $170,000,000 remains unpaid.

Calls Savings "Ridiculous."

The savings of $40,000,000, trimmed to about $36,000,000 on the budget, tentatively set by congress at two million dollars, was held to be "ridiculous" by Mrs. Fleming in view of the anticipated saving of local governments of $40,000,000 on budgets totaling $300,000,000.

President Emmett Whealan of the county board said federal reduction of expenses particularly in abolishment of unnecessary bureaus is imperative. The resolution is to be sent to President Hoover, Speaker Garner of the house, and Vice President Curtis.

Mrs. Fleming also presented a resolution calling upon State's Attorney Swanson to prepare a list of all taxpayers delinquent on $1,000 or more of taxes.

VISCOUNT LASCELLES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—Among the new boys at the spring opening of Ludgrove school, the world's most exclusive educational institution, is Viscount Lascelles, 9 year old son of the earl of Harewood and the princess royal. He is the oldest son of the only daughter in the royal family, and the first grandchild of King George and Queen Mary.

Lord Lascelles, who is permitted to take his father's second title by courtesy, will live in a dormitory with the rest of the boys at Ludgrove. He will work in the same rooms and share the same playing fields.

But that does not mean that he will live as most other boys do. Ludgrove school is so exclusive that you have to enter your son's name on the waiting list before he is born. It is situated in the village of Cockfosters, 12 miles from London, but the villagers see the Ludgrove pupils only on Sundays when the lads are marched to the parish church of Christchurch. They are never seen on the streets.

The institution was founded in 1636 by Francis Atkinson "for gentlemen's sons of quality." It has an attendance usually limited to about 60 boys ranging in age from 8 to 14. They are trained there for the more expensive "public" schools of England, such as Eton and Harrow.

200 Chicago Doctors Go to State Medical Session

More than 200 Chicago physicians left by train and automobile for Springfield yesterday to attend the eighty-second annual meeting of the Illinois State Medical society today, tomorrow, and Thursday. Dr. R. R. Ferguson of Chicago is the retiring president of the body. A total registration of about 600 physicians from all parts of the state is expected at the meetings, to be held in the new Knights of Columbus building.

SAYS TAX BILLS SHOULD REFLECT ECONOMY PLEAS

New York Official Confers with President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—The increased demand on the part of the public for drastic reductions in government costs, which will be translated into smaller tax bills, was brought to the attention of President Hoover today by Merwin K. Hart of Utica, N. Y., president of the New York state economic council.

During a thirty minute conference at the White House, Mr. Hart told the President that his organization considered local, state, and federal costs far too high. He said that the purpose of the New York economic council was to stimulate and develop the economic life of the state of New York and to encourage government, state, federal, and local to practice wise economy. He urged a return to the 1926 federal budget levels.

Even to Delay Building.

Mr. Hart, in his White House talk, stressed the necessity for curtailed government expenditures, even at the risk of delaying new public building construction. He asserted that increasing tax burdens represented one of the principal causes of the depression as well as major obstacles to a return of prosperity. Mr. Hart told the President his organization was organizing local branches, awakening the people to the possibilities of cutting costs through joint action and urging local communities to hold down government expenditures.

As an example of results obtained in New York, Mr. Hart said that the citizens of Binghamton and Endicott had offered to sacrifice new postoffice projects in the belief this represents real economy.

Mr. Hart said that there are strong indications now that the economic research movement will spread into other states. He said he had been surprised at the great interest shown by the taxpayers in each community when the question of reducing government costs was brought up.

Quarter of Income.

"The cost of government," said Mr. Hart, "has increased several hundred per cent since 1915, while the combined income of all our people has fallen to the 1913 level. Approximately one-quarter of every dollar received by the American people is today paid to support government of one kind or another.

"We believe that prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditures is one of the greatest needs of the day. We are determined to let nothing stand in the way of securing this reduction. We believe that the federal budget, now in course of preparation at Washington, should be reduced to 1926 levels, thereby effecting an increase of 15 per cent. We cannot have the degree of relief needed unless all are prepared to make sacrifices."

MAIL DISPATCHER KILLS SELF.

Walter Del Manso, 35 years old, 11300 Eggleston avenue, a mail dispatcher, shot and killed himself yesterday in a washroom of the postoffice building at 209 South Jefferson street. He had been despondent over ill health, according to friends.

Democrats Ask Bi-Partisan Plan to Banish Depression

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—As congress goes into the last month of its session if it is to adjourn before the national political conventions the legislative air is vibrant with all sorts of schemes for putting an end to the depression.

ROBT. F. WAGNER.
[Fotograms.]

Ranging all the way from vast programs of additional federal expenditures to furnish work and revive industry on the one hand, to pure inflation devices on the other they have come to overshadow the original objectives of radical retrenchment and a balanced budget.

With the senate engaged in passing a billion dollar tax increase bill the senate appropriations subcommittee is framing an economy bill which will propose savings of not much more than 200 millions out of the four billion dollar budget.

Work on Bipartisan Bill.

A committee of Democratic senators is at work tonight on a 2 billion 400 million dollar unemployment relief measure combining the major features of the proposals outlined last week by President Hoover and Democratic leaders. The plan is to put this bill through congress as a bipartisan measure.

The draft of the bill as submitted to the committee by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] proposes a flotation of government bonds to furnish 300 million dollars for relief of unemployment distress, 1 billion 100 millions for construction of federal public works, and 1 billion for loans to public and private agencies for "income producing" construction projects.

The senate banking and currency committee continued consideration of the Goldsborough bill, recently passed by the house, which proposes to boost commodity prices to the 1926 level by federal reserve bank manipulation of credit and the currency. This bill is likely to be passed by the senate, although President Hoover recently condemned it.

Openly Discuss Inflation.

The house coinage committee is pressing for an international monetary conference to restore the former value of silver as a medium of exchange while the silver producing states are demanding either bimetallism or tremendously increased purchases of silver by the treasury for coinage. All of these measures involve inflation of the currency and credit to a greater or lesser degree.

Legislators are now discussing openly the advisability of providing for some form of inflation as a means of halting the downward trend of commodity prices and turning the tide of the depression.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Ida.], in supporting the Couzens war time income tax amendment to the tax bill as necessary to "meet an emergency tantamount to war," said it would be necessary to go farther and stabilize the dollar. Instead of loans to the states he advocated direct federal distribution of relief funds.

"The federal government has its own responsibility and should discharge it without shunting it off on the states and cities," he declared. "Moreover, I would be unwilling to vote a dollar to be administered by officials of the type to be found in some of our cities where the suffering is most intense.

"This is a contest for the preservation of our government. More, it is a contest for the preservation of the character, the moral and physical character of our citizens."

But efforts to balance the budget and to provide emergency relief would prove futile unless something were done to halt the downhill slide of prices, said the senator from Idaho.

Senator Wagner submitted to the senate nearly 100 letters from economists nearly all of whom indorsed his original bill for the expenditure of one billion 100 millions on construction of buildings, waterways, roads and other federal public works hitherto authorized.

Back Wagner Bill.

One of the dissenters was Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, who opposed the plan because "the psychology of the country is now in favor of balancing the budget immediately," and because it would act "as a deflationary measure, which is the opposite of what we want."

E. F. Albertsworth of Northwestern university, favoring the project, wrote that "if we are to stave off a revolution we must act promptly and wisely to provide employment and revive industry in general."

Edward Berman, University of Illinois economist, indorsed it, arguing that it is no more necessary to balance the budget now than during the war.

Rein on Public Works.

F. S. Deibler of Northwestern university thought vast borrowings for public works construction a sound procedure if future expenditures on such works should be reduced commensurately after the depression.

Edwin D. Dickinson of the University of Michigan law school said that if the public works are actually needed they might well be financed by a bond issue.

Frank G. Dickinson of the University of Illinois suggested a program of construction of all the public works needed in the next five years and argued against a minimum wage.

Albert T. Mills of Millikin university, wrote:

"I think we should not strive to extricate ourselves from the results of our mistakes by foisting upon future generations any more burdens. Cut down expenses; stop pouring money into battleships and other sterile enterprises. Curtail."

ported by the senate finance committee are: Normal tax—3 per cent on the first $4,000, 6 per cent on the next $4,000, and 9 per cent on all over $8,000; surtax—to begin at $6,000 and rise to 45 per cent on net income in excess of 1 million dollars.

In addition the Couzens amendment would have struck out the allowance for earned income and would have reduced the exemption for a married person from the committee figure of $2,500 to $2,000 and for dependents from $400 to $200.

Harrison Severe Critic.

Chief among the critics during the debate on the Couzens amendment was Senator Harrison.

"I cannot believe," he declared, "that in times such as these the strong arm of the government should uphold those who say 'We are going to take 77 cents out of every dollar that you make and put it in the treasury of the United States.' Such a policy is not going to make a business man feel very much like employing his capital in new industries or in productive activities.

"When industries were making money and some of them had made money as they never before had and it was easy to collect taxes it was thought perfectly proper to pay 20 cents out of a dollar in those times, but these are peace times."

Senator Harrison took occasion to say he was not for the sales tax and did not expect to vote for it. He held that if the senate could pass the bill as it is written it would "do more to restore confidence at this particular time than could be done by the passage of any other measure now before the senate."

Couzens Argues for Increase.

To pass a bill "with the idea of smiting wealth," he warned, "would do great harm."

Balanced against his arguments were those of Senator Couzens, whose theme was that it was fairer to impose higher income tax rates than to select, as the committee bill does, certain industries and commodities on which to levy excise taxes.

If the idea of the amendment's opponents was to save the man of smaller means, the senator from Michigan argued, they ought to support his amendment which would reach 7 million persons rather than to vote for excise taxes which would fall on every user of an automobile or radio, every person who wanted to go to a movie.

Senator John H. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] offered an amendment to change the amendment so that the lower committee rates would apply on incomes up to $24,000, but he was persuaded to withdraw it in order that the senate might vote on the Couzens proposal.

SENATOR SHORTRIDGE, DRY, FACING ELECTION, URGES LIQUOR TEST

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—In a formal statement issued today, Senator Samuel L. Shortridge [Rep., Cal.] added his name to the group advocating a nation-wide referendum on repeal or modification of 18th amendment. He stated that he believed and always had believed that the people should be given an opportunity to exercise their constitutional rights with respect to the 18th amendment.

The fact that Shortridge always has been considered one of the most regular of the regular Republicans as well as a dry so far as his votes in the senate are concerned afforded a new indication of the trend in Republican ranks toward some sort of a moist plank in the platform to be adopted at Chicago in June. Shortridge voted for the "five and ten" law increasing the penalties for Volstead act violations.

"I believe," said Senator Shortridge, "the people should be given and I shall vote to give them opportunity to exercise that inherent constitutional right with respect to the 18th amendment.

"While the 18th amendment remains a part of the constitution of the United States it must be upheld."

YOU eat all you want of delicious foods—take no harmful drugs like back-breaking exercises—Yet you lose thyroid—no nauseating "salts"—no excess fat so fast you can hardly believe the scales—you wear clothes sizes smaller as inches peel off bust, hips, limb, neck, arms and face—Oh! it's so wonderful—you'll never realize how thrilled you are going to be until you actually see what it does for you. You feel so peppy—and you look years younger. If you don't win love after this—you are just hopeless, girls.

Here's the recipe—and be sure to cut it out of the paper—You just get yourself a big bottle of BonKora—enough for a month or six weeks. It never costs over a dollar. Eat three square meals a day—four if you prefer—but cut out the starches and fats and eat more of the good strength and tonic foods that the directions in the package tell about.

This BonKora is different from every other treatment you ever heard of. Doctors tell us fat is 66 per cent water anyhow, and this treatment simply makes the fatty parts of your figure throw off enough of the heavy water to make you more nearly NORMAL in weight.

Now let me warn you—when you have reduced your weight and measurements to normal, be satisfied and quit taking BonKora, except occasionally as a conditioner. Don't let yourself become too thin.

BonKora is free from any harmful drugs, is not habit-forming and may be taken by any one according to directions. Remember the name BONKORA—Beware of imitations! Big bottle of BonKora only 98c at all

MAYOR, SWANSON IN CLASH OVER GAMBLING RAIDS

Cermak Threatens Action to Withdraw Police.

Gambling raids by city detectives assigned to the state's attorney's office opened a controversy yesterday between Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson.

The mayor expressed doubt that law enforcement was the sole purpose of the raids. District police captains have definite instructions to stop gambling, he said. If State's Attorney Swanson can find no more important duties than gambling raids for the 68 city policemen, who were assigned to him for other purposes, the mayor said, he threatened that the city council may recall the detail to regular police duties.

State's Attorney Swanson returned a soft answer. He is only investigating complaints, he said, and not making any arrests, and the evidence which he gets will be given to Mayor Cermak for such action as the mayor sees fit.

Investigate 30 Places.

Shortly after the prosecutor issued his statement his police details went out and investigated some 30 more complaints. A score of raids Saturday caused the first exchange of statements between Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson. As in the Saturday raids, the state's attorney's police yesterday made no arrests. They sent the patrons whom they found in handbook establishments home and ordered the operators to close and stay closed.

Among the places visited were three reputedly operated by William (Billy) Johnson, said to be friendly with several Democratic politicians. Two of them, at 4020 and 3841 Ogden avenue, were closed, but the raiders followed taxicabs which were hauling patrons to a third place at 3747 Ogden avenue and forced some 200 men to leave the premises.

Sixteen places were visited in the 42d ward, among them the resort at 808 North Wells street where Capt. Michael Grady arrested Edward (Piggy) Joyce a week ago on the charge of keeping a gambling house. Joyce was dismissed when he appeared in court. Visits were made in the loop to supposed handbooks at 62 West Madison street and in room 402 of the Ashland block, 155 North Clark street, but both were closed.

Other Places Are Closed.

Other places closed were one at 723 South Dearborn street, reputedly run by Jimmy Mondi; two on Taylor street operated by George (Red) Bolton, gangster, and several in the flophouse district on West Madison street.

"Captains of police are responsible for any gambling in their districts," said Mayor Cermak in his comment on the raids Saturday. "If they don't take care of the situation they'll go before the police trial board. But no police officer can show me that he has a right under the constitution to break down doors to enter a place and I won't permit the practice by city police. It is Mr. Swanson's responsibility if the men under him do that."

City Police Do Raiding.

City police raided three alleged handbooks during the afternoon. In a cigar store at 3939½ Sheridan road, Lieut. Martin McCormick found 150 men, and held five as the alleged operators. At 6306 Eggleston avenue, Sergt. Martin Mullin Jr. and his squad broke in upon forty patrons, half of them women. Policeman James Fanning lectured the women for neglecting their homes. All those in the place, with the exception of Jack Woessner, the alleged keeper, were released.

Sergt. Mullin's squad next went to 6850 Wentworth avenue. Fifty persons were lectured and released, and James Mehas and James Bakopulos were held.

ROB WOMAN IN HOME.

Two bandits menaced Mrs. Anna Katz in her home at 3611 Douglas boulevard yesterday. They searched the place until they found her purse and then fled. The purse contained $600 which she had just drawn from the bank to pay a mortgage on her home.

She was removed to a hospital for X-rays of her right ankle and surgical treatment for the injured leg. She was playing with Maurice Chevalier in "Love Me Tonight" when hurt.

POLICE OF FORTY SUBURBS UNITE TO ROUT CRIME

Formation of New Force Accomplished.

Coördination of the police of 40 suburbs of Chicago, to function as a metropolitan force directed from the states' attorney's office, was accomplished yesterday at a conference in the office of State's Attorney Swanson. With the exception of Oak Park and Des Plaines, every large suburb in Cook county was represented and entered the organization.

POLICE CHIEF W. O. FREEMAN.

Police Chief William O. Freeman of Evanston, was chairman of the meeting, and explained the plan. Suburban police chiefs will designate certain of their more experienced men who will be deputized by the state's attorney as "regional police." Their authority will extend over the country, instead of being confined to the limits of their own towns, as is the authority of local police.

The metropolitan organization plan contemplates not only the exchange of information, but also the actual sending of men from one town to another to deal with emergencies.

"For instance," Chief Freeman said, "in my town we are having a tough time with collegiate reds, who may or may not be dangerous. If we need help in dealing with them, we will be able to get it through this organization.

Another way in which the central organization will be valuable, Chief Freeman pointed out, will be in coördinating drives against minor violations, such as the use of automobiles with faulty brakes. Drivers whose cars need repairs may avoid one town which stages such a drive by itself; they will be caught if the effort is simultaneous throughout the county.

"This plan will have a moral effect as well as a practical one," State's Attorney Swanson told the meeting. "The knowledge that communities are well policed causes criminals to avoid them. And in the past professional criminals have made certain communities a haven from which to operate. We will stop that."

Sam Lederer of Winnetka, citizen detective, was chosen secretary.

Weight 7 Ounces at Birth, Baby Appears to Thrive

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT WINS 20 MORE VOTES IN KANSAS CONVENTION

Lawrence, Kas., May 16.—(AP)—The Kansas delegation to the Democratic national convention was instructed by the party's state convention late today to cast its 20 votes for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination.

Gov. Harry Woodring and Guy T. Helvering, state Democratic chairman, headed the drive for indorsement of the candidacy of the New York executive. The unit rule will apply. The delegation is to remain by Roosevelt until a majority votes otherwise.

A fight against the instruction was led by Owen E. Root of Goodrich, Kas., and W. P. Waggener of Atchison, a supporter of Newton D. Baker.

The resolutions committee rejected a measure proposed by Chauncey B. Little, wet candidate for nomination for United States senator, to place the convention on record as favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

MRS. FORTESCUE HERE; HOPES FOR A FULL PARDON

Mrs. Grace Fortescue, passing through Chicago yesterday en route from San Francisco to New York, said that she and her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., owe their freedom to the influence of Clarence Darrow upon the American public. She said she is looking forward to complete pardons for Lieut. Massie, the two sailors, and herself, whose sentences for the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, the attacker of her daughter, Mrs. Massie, were commuted by Gov. Judd of Hawaii after their trial in Honolulu.

Mrs. Fortescue was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Julian Ripley of New York. She appeared to be in excellent spirits. Lieut. Massie has been granted a thirty day leave, she said, and plans to spend it at his home in Winchester, Ky., with his wife. Mr. Darrow and his wife plan to return to Chicago from San Francisco in the near future.

Her chief interest from now on is to be "just keeping house," Mrs. Fortescue said, though she does plan to return to Hawaii to visit friends.

ARREST ROBBER AFTER HIS CAR HITS GIRL VICTIM

The Illinois motor license 897-464 was brought twice to the attention of police yesterday, and resulted in the arrest of an alleged thief and the seizure of dynamite, dynamite caps, nitroglycerin, and revolvers in his room. The prisoner is James Bastos, 129 South Oakley boulevard.

Shortly before noon a man robbed Dorothy Koustantalos, 252 West 31st street, cashier of Tom's restaurant at 810 South Wabash avenue, of a purse containing $197 as she was on her way to a bank to make a deposit. Miss Koustantalos followed him to his automobile, in which sat a second man. As the car started she was thrown to the pavement and the automobile ran over her leg. Miss Koustantalos said the number of the car was 897-464.

An hour later, Deputy Detective Chief Walter Storms received an anonymous letter which stated: "Watch Ford coupe, 897-464. Hell with public. Watch close at once." The number was traced to Bastos at the Oakley avenue address, where a squad already was waiting for his return.

The second squad, led by Sergts. Edward White and William Hennessy, found seven sticks of dynamite, a half pint of nitroglycerin, two loaded revolvers, and seven caps in Bastos' room. Not long afterward Bastos drove up in a coupe bearing the license number 897-464 and was arrested. Miss Koustantalos identified him as the thief.

HEARING TODAY ON GOVERNMENT MERGER PLANS

The effects on taxpayers of the multiplicity of local governments in Cook county and Illinois will be outlined this morning at the Hotel La Salle before a subcommittee of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures, which was created at the last session of the general assembly.

The subcommittee is authorized to inquire into the consolidation of local governments, according to State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, its chairman. The meeting will be the first of a series. When the sessions are finished a report will be made to the commission, which will report to the general assembly next January.

Capone's Companion on Prison Trip Back Home

Victor Moriel, 18 years old, who rode from Chicago to Atlanta handcuffed to Al Capone while the latter was on his way to prison, arrived in Chicago yesterday. He had been taken from Atlanta to Jacksonville, Fla., where he was tried on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile across a state line. Convicted, he was given a prison term, but this was suspended and he was placed on probation. Moriel promised that he was going straight in the future. He added that he had enjoyed the trip with the big gangster.

DROP CHARGES OF BANK THEFT AGAINST TAILOR

Four charges of larceny against David B. Weiss, tailor-broker, were nol prossed yesterday by the state in the Criminal court of Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher. Weiss handled securities for Walter E. Wolf, who is serving a 10 to 100 year sentence in Joliet penitentiary for embezzlement of $3,000,000 from the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. The indictments against Weiss charged him with the theft of $126,000 from Wolf and the bank.

Fast Freezing BOHN
ICE IN 90 MINUTES

ALL PORCELAIN CUSTOM BUILT

HERE is the easiest way to have an electric refrigerator that you will read of in a long, long time.

For as little as 16½ cents a day, a Bohn Electric Refrigerator will be placed in your kitchen—IMMEDIATELY!

Well, you may say, what kind of refrigerator is this, if it is so easy to get? And the answer to that is very satisfying.

Made by Bohn, who has been making refrigerators of finest quality for the last 35 years. Made by a company that has specialized in doing one thing well.

A refrigerator that is finished inside and out with elastic porcelain. Enough to say that it won't crack, peel or turn yellow, and always stays spotlessly white.

Then there is faster freezing, which helps to keep electric bills lower. The inside of the cabinet cools off in a hurry and the fine cabinet construction and insulation keeps it cold. (In a University test, Bohn turned water to ice in 90 minutes, faster than the time of any of the other refrigerators tested with it.)

Why not find out more about all these things yourself? Come in and inspect these beautiful refrigerators. Or, if you wish, a Bohn salesman will call on you.

Think of it—16½ cents a day for a top quality electric refrigerator—and reach for the phone now.

U. S. VOTERS LOSE FAITH IN HOOVER, GARNER INSISTS

Contradicts Self Every 10 Days, Speaker Says.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—Offering to buy a new hat for any one who finds that President Hoover has not contradicted himself in any ten day period for the last six months, Speaker Garner declared today that as long as Mr. Hoover remains in the White House "the people of this country will lack confidence."

The Texan spoke up again critically of the chief executive in a press conference after his attention had been directed to the statement yesterday by Senator Moses [Rep., N. H.], assailing one by Garner Saturday in which the Democrat contended Mr. Hoover has "frozen the confidence" of the people.

What Moses Counsels.

Moses has counseled that if Garner wants to help the country, he should "forget for a time that he is candidate for the presidency, to remember that he is speaker of the house and from that lofty position to make a public declaration that he and his followers in the house would give support and coöperation in the early completion of the remaining part of the construction program of the President."

Seemingly hit by Moses' utterance, which included a charge that his leadership had "burned out," the speaker today arched his long white eyebrows and rejoined:

"The President sent for the distinguished author of the 'Sons of the Wild Jackass' to defend him.

"It must have gotten under somebody's skin. The truth is pretty effective."

Confession by Avoidance?

Garner conjectured that Moses had used an old trick of lawyers, "confession by avoidance," and explained that Moses "admitted what I said about the President is the truth, but then said, 'Well, look at yourself.'"

Recalling that the Democratic house had put through all of Mr. Hoover's important emergency legislation, including the moratorium, the reconstruction corporation, and a billion dollar tax bill, Garner expressed the view that the President "received better coöperation than he would have had if the Republicans had been in control."

Referring to President Hoover's request for $20,000,000 in additional appropriations received over the week-end by the house, Garner said:

"The President says on one hand not to spend any more money and then on the other hand sends messages up to congress asking for appropriations of millions of dollars."

REFUSES TO RUN

OWEN D. YOUNG.

YOUNG'S REFUSAL TO RUN LAID TO WIFE'S ILLNESS

Mother Also Opposed His Candidacy.

New York, Ma. 16.—(AP)—Consideration for his wife, who is ill with a heart ailment, was believed by friends of Owen D. Young today to have been responsible for his statement that he "definitely and finally cannot accept the nomination for the presidency if made."

Mrs. Young, it was said, has not been well since the death several years ago of their son, John, who was killed while rescuing a dog from an approaching railroad train. He saved the dog but lost his own life. Recently her condition has become more precarious.

It was said, too, that Mr. Young's mother, who died recently, was strongly opposed to his ever becoming a candidate for public office.

Mr. Young, it was pointed out, has never been a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. To his surprise, however, a movement in his behalf started and continued to grow.

Mr. Young, it was said, would not even discuss the matter with his intimate friends who desired to see him nominated. They believed that, should there be a deadlock at the convention, he could be nominated—if he would only say the word.

Last Friday night, it was said, several of Mr. Young's friends were with him, and the possibility of his accepting the nomination, were it offered him, was again brought up. Usually he greeted such remarks with smiling silence, but this time he said quietly that he thought he had made it clear that he was unavailable.

"He went up to Van Hornesville Saturday morning," one of his friends said, "and, after thinking it over Saturday and yesterday, decided to say it once more—and this time make it final."

do is to protect the lives, homes, and business institutions of its people and let the people regulate the government."

People Pay for Government.

"People cannot seem to understand this thing about taxation; the government has no money; it cannot create a single dollar. The government must pay for all its activities out of the pockets of the people.

"It says it is helping labor by public works. It is providing employment, it says. The worst thing the government can do to labor is to continue its building, raising taxes so high American manufacturers are unable to compete in the foreign market and are forced to turn out employés.

"The idea that a country can be made prosperous by piling up taxes is preposterous.

Country Is Not Ruined.

"This country is not ruined and it will not be ruined except by demagogues and shysters preaching the doctrine of defeatism. Remember that business will never prosper as long as it is managed at Washington by a lot of incompetents who are unable to make a living at home."

M. W. Borders Sr., president of the Kansas City organization, who presided, said another meeting probably would be held within three weeks with Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker.

SMITH OUTLINES PLAN

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—In an address tonight former Gov. Alfred E. Smith presented a program of action by the federal government for coping with the economic crisis now confronting the nation and called upon every member of congress to coöperate loyally in an earnest effort to lead the country out of the depression.

After outlining his program, which covered a wide variety of subjects, Mr. Smith demanded the elimination of all lobbies and "cabals" in Washington and the abandonment of "insurgencies and mugwump tactics, which bedevil legislation, increase the depression, unsettle business and endanger our credit at home and abroad."

Some Smith Proposals.

Important among Mr. Smith's proposals follow:

1. Rigid economy in government expenditures.

2. Authorize the President to prolong, if necessary, the moratorium extended to debtor nations until a real solution can be reached.

3. Reorganize the federal government in line with President Hoover's proposal.

4. Defeat veterans' bonus bill and retrench in all veterans' relief expenditures.

5. Reconsideration of the sales tax by congress and its incorporation in a new tax bill.

6. Assumption of full responsibility by congress in finding new revenue to balance the budget to the amount of at least one billion 500 million.

7. Modify the Volstead act and tax light wines and beer pending more radical action by the party conventions on the question of prohibition, looking towards its modification and repeal.

Public Works Program.

The former governor, a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, reiterated his proposal for a program of public works as a means of alleviating unemployment and stimulating business revival and repeated his proposal for the liquidation of war debts owed this country by foreign governments as made on April 13 in Washington. He urged congress to empower the President to deal with this question before adjournment, vesting him, if necessary, with the authority to extend the Hoover moratorium.

"Certainly the rider attached by congress to the act approving the moratorium should be repealed, because it constitutes a threat to the President not to take any similar action in the matter without the consent of congress until 1933," Mr. Smith declared. "It leaves the country without a spokesman at a critical time, and incidentally, let me say that this spokesman may be called upon to overlook payment of our foreign debts for the simple reason that they are not going to be paid, the foreign governments having made no provision for them in their own budgets. It is senseless to count chickens which will never be hatched."

Wants President to Act.

Mr. Smith declared that it was the duty of every member of congress to go the extreme limit in slashing from the appropriation bills all unnecessary appropriations of the public money.

The former governor assailed as unsatisfactory the action taken by congress with respect to reorganization of the federal government, saying that this was an executive and not a legislative function and favoring giving to the President "the full responsibility and power which he has asked in the immediate consolidation of government activities and bureaus and in other ways to reduce the cost of government."

On the question of veterans' relief Mr. Smith suggested that congress appoint a special committee to study this question and to report back at the next session, in the meantime placing no further burdens on the government in this respect.

"It seems unnecessary for me to say that I believe nothing should be done with regard to revision of the bonus bill at this session," Mr. Smith added.

Assails Soak Rich Slogan.

Mr. Smith made these suggestions after he had denounced the extravagance in veterans' relief under which 300,000 veterans whose disabilities resulted from other than military and naval services are being paid large sums by the government.

Assailing the slogan of "soak the rich," Mr. Smith then entered upon his advocacy of a general manufacturers' sales tax, asserting that such a tax was just and equitable and warning that the cry of "soak the rich," if put into effect, would only contribute to the further disorganization of the nation's economic life and retard the process of recovery. The imposition of a sales tax, Mr. Smith declared, would be the best way to discourage "the operation of special groups which infest the lobbies of congress."

"Soak capital and you soak labor," Mr. Smith said. "Confiscatory taxation of capital prevents the flow of money into industry. The greater and freer the flow of capital the quicker industry will revive, and the quicker widespread unemployment will cease. The demagogue won't agree to that, but it's true just the same."

STOLEN BICYCLE DOES JUST WHAT COP PROPHESIES

A bicycle belonging to Raymond Dumke, 14 years old, 1839 Gunderson street, Berwyn, was stolen early last evening. Raymond's father, Fred, then called Policeman Arthur Dumke of the Desplaines street station, his brother, and asked him what to do about it.

"Go to 18th and Wood streets," said Brother Arthur, "and wait there. Maybe the bicycle will come by."

Fred and his son followed directions. A little later John Kaczmarek, 17 years old, 1801 West 19th street, rode up to 18th and Wood streets on the stolen bicycle. A policeman was called and John was arrested and turned over to the Berwyn authorities.

Policeman Dumke explained that his detective work was based on sound assumptions.

"There's a gang in the neighborhood," he said, "and they were always in the habit of riding the elevated line out to Berwyn, where they could lift something and come back with it. I just guessed that was what had happened."

Baby Burned by Lye Is Awarded $10,000 Damages

Baby Patricia Jean Hallis, 2 years old, 2914 North 76th avenue, Elmwood Park, yesterday won a $10,000 suit for damages before a jury in the court of Superior Judge Marcus Kavanagh. Her father, Joseph A. Hallis, brought the suit against the Stover company of Oak Park, charging the baby had been permanently scarred through the negligence of a workman who left the bucket of lye on the floor near the child while repairing a refrigerator.

HOOVER WAVERS NEAR PLUNGE FOR TEST ON DRY LAW

But Wet Leaders Demand Plank for Beer.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Closely pressed by some of his most influential advisers, President Hoover was represented tonight as close to a decision on the question of whether or not he will favor adoption of a moist resubmission plank by the Republican party when it meets in national convention next month.

SEN. W. WARREN BARBOUR. [Acme Photo.]

According to some of the ranking wet leaders in the White House official family, the President is leaning strongly towards the acceptance of a plank providing for the resubmission of the eighteenth amendment to a vote by the people. Doubt exists, however, as to whether leading Republican wets in congress, in the cabinet, and on the national committee, will be satisfied with anything less than a plank binding the party to work for modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and taxation of beer.

Referendum Too Mild.

Indicative of the growing sentiment for a return of beer in high party circles was the disclosure today that several influential members of the administration are now taking the position that a moist plank, providing only for resubmission, would not have enough of a kick, either to stimulate a business revival or to bolster the party's chances for success in November. This group, which now includes members of the President's official family, favors a beer plank.

All attempts thus far to persuade the President to come out for modification of the Volstead act to permit the raising of additional revenue through a tax on beer have failed to stimulate public White House action. That the pressure now being brought along this line is due for a marked increase as the convention date approaches was disclosed today when Republicans in both houses urged modification of the Volsted act as the true road to prosperity.

Leaders Demand Beer.

Senator W. Warren Barbour [Rep., N. J.] called upon his colleagues in the senate to work for modification of the prohibition laws as the surest way to bring the nation out of the economic doldrums. On the house side Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] issued a statement urging President Hoover to take immediate leadership in the movement for modification of the Volstead act and the return of beer.

Senator Barbour asserted that prohibition must be included in the government'se plans for balancing the budget and restoring prosperity. What the country needs more than any one emergency measure, he said, is modification of the prohibition laws and a return of confidence.

Dry Law Costs 12 Billions.

"If this congress," he said, "would courageously face the issue of prohibition the problem of drastic and immediate economies in government and of such increase, if any, in taxation as may be necessary to balance the budget almost over night you would see a return in this country of the confidence which I feel alone can cure national economic problems."

Senator Barbour termed prohibition an experiment which had failed. He cited a survey by the New York Chamber of Commerce showing that Chicago pays an annual tribute of some 200 millions to the racketeers while New York pays an even larger amount. Prohibition, he said, has cost the people of the United States 12 billions in revenue since the dry law was enacted.

Demand Hoover Decide Quickly.

In his statement Representative Britten called upon President Hoover to issue a definite announcement that he will accept and run on a wet plank prior to the house vote on the beer bill next Monday.

"I am as certain as it is possible to be that President Hoover is going to run on a resubmission plank," said Mr. Britten. "When he does, all his Republican followers in the house who voted against resubmission recently will be out on a limb in complete opposition to their President next November.

"The country expects specific leadership in Washington at this time when 200 or more Democrats and Republicans hesitate to vote for or against a beer tax because of their doubt of what the two big conventions will do in Chicago next month. A definite statement from President Hoover that he will accept and run on a wet plank would be a great relief to a couple of hundred Republican members of the house who would like to follow his leadership for a beer tax and for a resubmission of the 18th amendment."

IN COURT FIGHT FOR $250,000

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN C. FERGUSON.

Deeds for $75,000

Action was begun in the Circuit court yesterday to compel Mrs. Genevieve Ferguson, divorced wife of Stephen C. Ferguson, garage owner, to return $75,000 in deeds to the estate of Ferguson's father, Charles W. Ferguson, wealthy Rogers Park real estate operator who died in 1930.

The deeds, Attorney Kent Chetlain explained, are needed to adjust the estate. They were given to Mrs. Ferguson at the time she divorced the younger Ferguson last August to secure her rights for support. It was orally agreed, lawyers said, that the papers would be returned on payment of $76,000 by Ferguson.

Stephen Ferguson remarried one week after his divorce. His bride is the former Trudy Davidson, well known night club entertainer. This marriage, attorneys for the first Mrs. Ferguson pointed out, might complicate her rights if she should return the deeds. Judge Trude will hear the matter further on June 10.

RECRUITS SWAMP WOMEN'S GROUP IN REPEAL DRIVE

1st Day's Applicants Too Numerous to Count.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Election bulletins telling of victory never inspired more exultation than bubbled and seethed last night around 700 North Michigan avenue as returns poured in from activities of the first day of National Repeal week.

Officers of the Illinois division, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, labored valiantly to keep tally on the deluge of postal cards signed during the day, each representing a new member for the group. But they came too thick and fast.

Swamped by Applications.

Eventually, with telephones buzzing, volunteer workers bursting in with additional stacks of cards and further supplies being sorted to fill hurry calls from various points, the count was abandoned until after office hours, with more than 3,000 already in hand. A report of the total signed up will be available this morning, when all volunteers have reported to their chairmen.

One of the two major objects of the week, which is being observed by the organization throughout the country, is to enroll many more thousands of members. The other is to stimulate sentiment against prohibition.

Yesterday's program started off locally with tremendous vim. Eighty automobiles jammed with the volunteer workers, many of them prominent civically and socially, set out at 10 o'clock from Broadway and Wilson avenue with horns tooting, red and white signs ballooning in the wind, and loud speakers heralding the approach of the corps, the parade swept south toward the loop.

Parade Through Loop.

Down Broadway, down La Salle street, down Wacker drive to Market, then to Madison street and east to Michigan through the loop, streamed the colorful procession. Cheers from crowds lining the sidewalks burst out every few blocks.

Turning south at Michigan, the parade moved down to 22d street, where it began to scatter. Many of the cars went as far west as Western avenue, where a stop was made for speeches and to collect more signed membership cards. Thereafter the group broke up, the speakers holding separate gatherings wherever they found a promising corner.

Reports of progress began reaching the headquarters in advance of the return of the automobiles. In the Palmer house, in half an hour, one group said gleefully, 1,000 cards had been signed. The Merchandise Mart proved even more enthusiastic, and an S O S for renewal of the supply of cards had twice reached the executive secretary, Miss Mary Platt, before the afternoon was over.

"Mobbed" by Applicants.

In the lobby of the Hotel Sherman, Mrs. E. R. Fifield and Mrs. Austin Niblack supervised the signing of scores of cards, some of them by members of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, which begins its convention there today. Officially the federation is regarded as for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, but privately, opinions are divided.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King, heading a group of five, declared she was nearly mobbed for the membership cards at her particular stand, at Michigan and Madison.

Mrs. George Brennan is general chairman of the Repeal week activities in Chicago.

NEW SOUTH WALES CHIEF BEGINS TO PAY STATE DEBT

SYDNEY, N. S. W., May 16.—(AP)—Premier B. S. B. Stevens of New South Wales, successor to the ousted J. T. Lang, fiery Labor leader, today reversed the policy of his predecessor who had refused to repay to the commonwealth funds expended to meet defaulted interest on state bonds at New York and London.

The new premier deposited in Sydney banks £700,000 [$2,569,000] of the £1,000,000 Mr. Lang had transferred to the treasury on March 13 to prevent attachment by the commonwealth government. Stevens also reopened taxation offices, which his predecessor had closed to thwart federal collectors armed with authority to seize receipts.

Stevens also formed a cabinet of mixed complexion from the opposition parties, with himself as premier and treasurer. He appointed Michael F. Bruxner, country party adherent, deputy premier. The cabinet will act until the general election on June 11.

SHOUSE DEMANDS BOLD STAND ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Hartford, Conn., May 16.—[Special.]—A bold stand on the prohibition question was urged on the Democratic party tonight by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the party, in a speech opening the state Democratic convention. He stirred applause when he demanded the repeal of the 18th amendment, but the greatest outburst came when he mentioned the name of Alfred E. Smith.

"We are going to write a platform at Chicago," said Mr. Shouse, "and I suggest that it ill becomes groups which fought the Democratic faith in 1928 to be attempting now to tell the Democratic party what it shall say in that platform.

"Two things are essential—we must write a frank, courageous, and honest platform in which we say what we believe about prohibition and other things, and we must nominate a candidate who is able to wage the battle and make himself understood unequivocally. And we must have unity of purpose and unity of action."

Tomorrow the convention will elect 34 delegates to cast the state's 16 votes at Chicago for Mr. Smith.

FEDERAL FUNDS FOR GRASSHOPPER FIGHT REJECTED

Washington, May 16.—(AP)—The federal expenditure of $1,450,000 in eight western states, held necessary to prevent a repetition of last year's grasshopper plague, was rejected today by the house. Sponsors of the Shipstead resolution already approved by the senate had obtained Speaker Garner's consent to an attempt to bring it up in the house under drastic rules limiting debate to 40 minutes and preventing amendments.

But when Representative Buchanan [Dem., Tex.] made the motion Representative Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] used a peculiar parliamentary procedure for the first time in this congress to block the measure. He demanded a vote on a second to Buchanan's motion.

Without debate, the members paraded down the center aisle. The second was defeated 137 to 99, killing the effort to bring the resolution to a vote.

OUTLINE PLANS FOR NEW BANK FOR WAUKEGAN

Charges Arising Out of Failure to Be Dropped.

Waukegan is to have a new bank, and criminal charges arising from the failure of the Waukegan State bank are to be dismissed, according to unofficial statements made yesterday. According to present indications, public money amounting to $400,000 is to be paid back in full and individual depositors will be paid about $321,000, or approximately 35 per cent of their claims.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county indicated that he is in accord with the settlement plan when he appeared before Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff in Waukegan and asked postponement of the trial of William H. Miller, a director of the closed Waukegan bank and an official of a Chicago bank. A jury had been sworn last week to try Miller, who is one of five indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public through issuance of false statements that the bank was solvent.

"Depositors to Get More."

"I understand a new bank will be opened on or before June 17," Prosecutor Smith informed the court. "As a public officer I have a responsibility to act in the best interests of the people and I am satisfied that if the old bank were to be liquidated not more than 10 per cent would be paid. Under a reorganization public money would be paid in full and the depositors will get a greater return."

The court thereupon called in the jurors and told them that because of the change of receivers of the closed bank new audit records needed in Miller's trial would not be available. The jurors were to be allowed to go to their homes to return next Monday. They had been held in a hotel.

Frank Just, publisher, and H. A. Smith, who is to be the executive vice president of the new bank, as spokesman for the committee trying to arrange the reorganization, later told of their expectations.

The new bank, they said, is to have a capital structure of $400,000, divided as follows: Capital stock, $200,000; surplus, $150,000, and reserve, $50,000. Two thousand shares are to be sold at $200 each. Of the needed $400,000 they have raised $360,000, they said, from the Insull interests, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago, and from stockholders and directors of the closed bank.

Chamber Backs Plan.

The Waukegan chamber of commerce has indorsed the plan and is urging citizens to subscribe for the additional shares, the spokesmen said. It is expected that the new receiver will immediately ask permission of the court to sell the assets of the closed bank to the new bank corporation at 35 cents on the dollar. Then, the spokesmen said, the county treasurer of Lake county, the state treasurer, and the secretary of state would receive credit in full on their preferred claims, which would relieve the taxpayers of a great burden.

LILAC DAYS BEGIN TOMORROW FOR CHICAGO FOLKS

Blooms to Be Distributed by Plant Guild.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Tomorrow and Thursday are lilac days for Chicago and its suburbs. They were so designated yesterday by the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild. The guild, in cooperation with THE TRIBUNE, has organized the garden clubs and gardeners of the metropolitan area to pick mammoth bouquets of lilacs to be distributed in hospitals, in settlement and tenement districts, and to the confined invalids of the city.

Throughout the south, southwest and west sections of the Chicago area, lilac bushes burst into full bloom over the week-end, aided by two warm days and yesterday's mild rains. The annual custom of bringing cheer to hundreds of city people who have no means of getting flowers is repeated this year through cooperation of all railroads entering the downtown district.

Suburbanites living along the Illinois Central, Burlington, and Pennsylvania lines will deliver their flowers at suburban line conductors or take them to the guild booths in the terminal stations tomorrow morning. Those living along all other lines will make deliveries on Thursday.

"Word has been sent out to all our committees to urge that every one possessing lilacs share them with the less fortunate," said T. V. Purcell, president of the guild. "We have pointed out that clipping the first blooms from lilac bushes not only benefits those who will receive them, but will bring on heavier flowering of the bushes in the next week or two."

Women Direct Distribution.

The guild will gather flowers at booths in the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central tomorrow. Mrs. T. E. Morits of Kenilworth and Mrs. William MacAuley of Homewood are directing the collection and distribution. Another booth in charge of Mrs. K. Edgar Tholin of Downers Grove will be maintained in the Union station tomorrow morning.

On Thursday, booths will be opened in the North Western, the Aurora and Elgin and the La Salle Street stations. Distribution to hospitals, relief stations of the Visting Nurse association, and settlements will be provided by THE TRIBUNE.

Clear Policeman Accused of Letting Boy Drown

South Park Policeman R. J. McManamey was cleared yesterday of charges that he let James Bridge, 8 years old, 6838 Jeffery avenue, drown without attempting to save him. Supt. George T. Donoghue of the south park board said that an investigation proved false the charge that Policeman McManamey left the scene while the boy was in the water. The body had been taken ashore when McManamey arrived, Supt. Donoghue said.

BAR COMMITTEE ASKS RE-ELECTION OF C. P. MEGAN

The nominating committee of the Chicago Bar association yesterday addressed letters to members urging the reelection of Charles P. Megan as president because of his leadership in directing an investigation into court receiverships. The appeal was signed by Francis X. Busch, chairman of the committee.

CHARLES P. MEGAN

Other members of the ticket chosen by the committee include Walter H. Eckert for first vice president, John D. Black for second vice president, Erwin W. Rosmer for secretary, William Beye for treasurer and Willard L. Kling for librarian. Candidates for membership on the board of managers are Ernest R. Ballard, Melvin M. Hawley, J. F. Dammann Jr., John E. MacLeisch and Isaac S. Rothschild. Those nominated for the committee on admissions are Charles F. Harding Jr., John L. Hopkins, John E. Owens, Hargrave A. Long and Richard Mayer.

CASHIER SEIZED IN HOME; $52,000 LOOT FROM BANK

Bandits Hold Family All Night at Streator.

Streator, Ill., May 16.—Seven bandits today took $52,000 from the Union National bank after holding Earl McNamara, assistant cashier, prisoner in his home all night, terrorizing his family and forcing him to open the bank vault when the time lock was released this morning.

Ten members of the bank's staff were greeted by armed bandits as they entered the bank this morning and forced to lie face down on the floor until the robbers had fled.

Invade Officer's Home.

Four of the bandits invaded the McNamara home at 10:30 last night. McNamara, his wife, and two children, and his father-in-law, W. H. Jones, were forced into bedrooms while two of the bandits stood guard at the doors. The other two took the bank keys and stayed at the bank all night. Andrew Worrells, the janitor, went to the bank at 7 o'clock and found four bandits there.

The two men in the McNamara home forced Mrs. McNamara to cook breakfast and then took the assistant cashier to the bank. President W. H. Boyd and nine other employes were greeted at the front door as they came to work and all but Boyd forced to join the janitor on the floor.

Forced to Open Vault.

McNamara was forced to open the vault at 8:20 and the men scooped $20,000 into bags. They escaped in two cars after warning the bank employes not to give chase. A blue Plymouth sedan with tan wire wheels pulled up to the bank door when the robbery was complete and carried six of the bandits south toward Pontiac.

The seventh man, who had been left to guard the McNamara home, followed in an automobile bearing a Chicago vehicle tax when he was notified by telephone that his companions were ready to escape. The license number on the blue sedan had been issued for a La Salle car owned by the Commercial Tire and Supply company, Chicago.

$2.20—Fees.
$9—Peters Machinery company, Tena Koerner Tuesday Evening Contract Bridge club, Wilmette.
$1—Rosalind M. Fischer.
Total—$142.20.
Previously acknowledged—$45,697.19.
Grand total—$45,839.39.

Gifts should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

ILLINOIS REMAP PLEA DENIED BY HIGH U.S. COURT

The petition of John W. Keogh, Chicago attorney, for a writ to compel the Illinois legislature to reapportion the state was denied yesterday by the United States Supreme court, according to dispatches from Washington.

Petitioning as a citizen and taxpayer, Attorney Keogh claimed that the supreme court had jurisdiction in the case under the third article of the federal constitution in that the legislature's failure to perform its duty under the state constitution violated the federal constitution's guarantee of a republican form of government to every state.

He showed in support of his appeal that because there has been no reapportionment the average downstate voter has approximately twice the representation in the state legislature that the Cook county voter has, the average population of a Cook county district being 209,585 and that of a downstate district 114,016.

Liner Europa's Plane Lands in England; Mystery Solved

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 16. —(AP)—A mail plane catapulted from the German liner Europa several hundred miles at sea arrived here today on scheduled time. The Europa is due tomorrow. This information apparently solved the mystery of a seaplane sighted 150 miles off Land's End by two American steamers today, the Ala and the McKeesport. At first it was thought the plane might have been a trans-Atlantic voyager.

TOOTH INFECTION CAUSES DEATH.

Poisoning, which developed from a tooth infection, caused the death of Daniel Harper, 45 years old, 1068 Main street, Evanston, in the county hospital yesterday.

BEGIN ARRESTS NEXT WEEK FOR NIGHT PARKING

Arrest of all-night parkers will be started next week, Mayor Cermak said yesterday following a discussion with Police Commissioner Allman. "We're going to give the motorists another week to get their cars off the streets at nights, and then start arrests," he said. "We want to clean up the streets for the national political conventions. We're also going to keep after those drivers who have failed to get 1932 state and city licenses."

SCHOOL BOARD TALKS 3 HOURS, SAVES NOTHING

Plans to Advance Budget Trims Are Shelved.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board discussed cutting expenditures for three hours yesterday.

Trustee Robert F. Carr suggested that if the employés are paid in cash—about $16,800,000—for March, April, May, and June, they might be willing to take a 10 per cent cut in pay. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan referred to that suggestion as "sop," and Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell called it "another penalty of 10 per cent." The idea did not bloom into any action.

Trustee Orville J. Taylor presented a resolution to ask the heads of each school bureau, office, playground and other unit how they would reduce the $90,180,000 budget 25 per cent, and also what a reduction of 25 per cent in pay would mean in savings.

The obtaining of that information, Trustee James A. Hemingway said, would be "too disturbing to the employés." Trustee Joseph P. Savage said it would injure the morale of the teachers, and "would give the impression that the board contemplated a wage cut of 25 per cent."

Taylor's Plan Shelved.

The resolution was shelved by a vote of 6 to 4. The opposition consisted of Trustees Caldwell, Hemingway, Savage, Hefferan, and John A. English, and President Lewis E. Myers, while proponents of the resolution were Trustees Carr, Taylor, William D. McJunkin, and Ernest Buehler.

Trustee Carr suggested that the opening of the schools after the summer vacation be deferred to Oct. 1. President Myers appeared to favor that idea, but other trustees did not indicate their views.

Trustee Buehler had the board adopt a resolution "to consider at once reductions in the proposed expenditures for the current fiscal year." But that did not mean so much because the board later adjourned to May 25. The report of Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university recommending a $15,603,505 cut in expenditures for 1932 is due June 1. It did not appear probable that much will be done to economize before that time.

There Are Two Bright Spots.

From the taxpayer's viewpoint there were two bright spots in the session. Superintendent of Schools Bogan announced that he has started to install the system recommended by Dr. Strayer, through which $561,000 will be saved by increasing the number of pupils per teacher in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades from 34 to 40. He said he hoped to save $200,000 by this process by Jan 1 and about $300,000 more by June 1, 1933.

The other announcement came from Business Manager Howard P. Savage. In his two months in office, he said, he has reduced expenses on a yearly basis $446,184 in the building fund and $41,678 in the educational fund—a total of $487,862. He added that there are other possible economies of $85,735 in the two major funds of the board.

Two Trustees Hit City.

The two oratorical highlights of the session were speeches by Trustees Savage and Caldwell assailing Mayor Cermak and the city council.

"Mayor Cermak proclaims he is going to keep the schools open," said Trustee Savage. "Some more Democratic propaganda. He has done nothing yet to keep the schools open and has done a great deal to wreck the morale of the system.

"I notice that Ald. John Clark is telling us how to run the schools. It comes from him with poor grace. He has been chairman of the council finance committee for years. Some years back the Municipal court asked for 350 positions and the judges were told that if they would put on 50 more positions and hand them to the council it would pass the budget. I wonder if the council is trying something of that kind now."

The city council has declined for a month to pass the school board's tax levy for 1932, insisting that the board should economize.

Charges a Smoke Screen.

"The city hall is throwing up a smoke screen to cover what they are doing over there," went on Savage. "The only pay roll padding and soft berths I know of are under the city administration."

On the school tax levy Trustee Caldwell said that the "council has taken an arbitrary position through ignorance or a more serious motive."

"If they tamper with that tax levy," he said, "they may invalidate it and cause the closing of the schools. The board does not need the advice of the council in running the schools."

Taylor Administers Rebuke.

"I think that the talking of politics is out of place in the school sessions," said Trustee Taylor. "I am a Republican, but am a school trustee by appointment of a Democratic mayor. The big problem for us is how to operate the schools efficiently on the money we can obtain. I think the mayor is making a great fight to straighten out our problems, and as long as I think so I shall go along with him.

"The citizens' committee has estimated $68,000,000 as the amount we can hope to obtain for this year, as compared with the $90,000,000 budget. Many think that things must get worse before they get better. We will have to face the facts sooner or later."

It was at this point that he presented his resolution. He said it might be "shocking" to some of the trustees, but he urged that information on a 25 per cent cut be gathered before the Strayer report is presented so that it might be more intelligently handled.

English Makes Protest.

"I do not know how the citizens' committee arrived at expenditures of $68,000,000," said Trustee English, "unless they assume that 25 per cent of the taxes will never be paid. If we cut to $68,000,000 it means a wholesale reduction in salaries, more than any commercial organization has yet enforced."

"I cannot understand why there is a storm of protest every time any one asks for any information," said Trustee McJunkin. "I had two resolutions passed asking for information but was unable to get any."

"Trustee English is not well informed on what private corporations have done in cutting expenses," said Trustee Taylor. "Twenty-five per cent is a small figure for some of them. If we are going to get only $68,000,000, we cannot spend $90,000,000. We cannot attempt to fool ourselves."

But his plea did not prevail. Equally unsuccessful was the suggestion of Trustee Carr.

Trustee Carr's Suggestion.

"I do not know that it could be done," said Mr. Carr, "but suppose we could prevail upon the banks to let us have enough to meet our pay rolls for March, April, May and June, the employés of the board might be willing to take a 10 per cent reduction in compensation. That would save the treasury about $4,200,000.

"If we eliminate $11,000,000 for buildings as suggested by Dr. Strayer, we would be making progress toward getting our expenditures to an acceptable point. Of course we should make the reductions in operation and maintenance suggested by Dr. Strayer."

"That is just throwing a sop to the teachers," said Mrs. Hefferan. "They were cut 10 per cent last January and I think it is an imposition to ask them to take another $4,000,000 cut. Let us see what savings we can make in other departments. This is no time to propose a cut in teachers' salaries. Chicago does not appear to give a rap whether they live or die."

Trustee Carr explained again that his suggestion related to all employés of the board and recited his interest in the welfare of the teachers.

SCHOONER ARRIVES FROM WEST INDIES

Built in Chicago

The Freedom, largest sailing yacht to be built in Chicago in recent years, the property of Sterling Morton of the Chicago Yacht club, docked at the Michigan avenue bridge last night, coming from New York City. The schooner, with Mr. Morton and a party of friends aboard, spent the winter cruising in West Indian waters.

The yacht is a seawanak type keel schooner, 88 feet over all. Its water line length is 66 feet, with a 20 foot beam and a 10 foot draft. Its construction is entirely of mahogany. Two masted, the main mast towers more than its length above the water. A 175 horsepower Deisel engine gives the schooner a speed of approximately nine miles an hour under power alone.

ROWE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF HAMILTON CLUB

Frederick A. Rowe, attorney, was elected president of the Hamilton club of Chicago for the second time at the annual election yesterday. Mr. Rowe's first term as president was in 1917.

FREDERICK A. ROWE.

He is one of the founders of the "kicker's table," an inner organization of the club. He is also owner and publisher of the National Corporation Reporter, a newspaper devoted to legal subjects.

Three former club presidents were elected to office with Mr. Rowe. They are Lloyd D. Heth, first vice president; Wirt E. Humphrey, third vice president, and George W. Dixon, director. Other officers chosen are Frank J. Conrad, second vice president; Daniel E. Morrisey, secretary, and George A. Jackson, treasurer. Mr. Jackson was reelected. Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder and R. O. Vandercook will serve as directors.

DE PAUW ALUMNI PICK "CREW" FOR SPECIAL TRAIN

More than 100 De Pauw university alumni will leave Chicago on June 4 to attend the annual alumni gathering in Meharry hall.

Federal Judge James Wilkerson, Judge Will Sparks of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Roy O. West and Wilbur Helm have been designated the official train crew in charge of the special train which will carry the group to Greencastle, Ind., over the Monon railroad.

Yesterday the alumni trainmen went to the Dearborn street station, donned the garb of engineer, firemen, conductor and brakeman and took a lesson in passenger transportation from a regular train crew.

COUNTY TELLS BANKS ITS NEED FOR $5,000,000

Unless banks buy $5,000,000 worth of 1932 county tax warrants, the county will be able to meet less than a fourth of its salary and pension obligations for the period from Feb. 1 to July 1, Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller, said yesterday.

He sent Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, a statement of the county's financial needs. Mr. Traylor had requested the statement on Friday at a conference with county officials in which D. F. Kelly also participated.

The county will need $5,778,000 to pay salaries and mothers' and blind persons' pensions from Feb. 1 to July 1, Mr. O'Connor said in his letter. The only revenue available for these payments is the collections of fees by county offices, which will not exceed $1,250,000 during the period.

In addition, the county owes several million dollars for materials and supplies, and on June 1 must pay $1,501,000 in principal and $513,080 in interest which falls due then on county bonds.

PRISONER TAKEN WEST.

George Locke, who surrendered himself at the detective bureau a week ago and announced that he was wanted by police in Ventura, Cal., was taken there yesterday to face a charge of embezzling $10,000 from a finance company.

Broker Wins $10,000 in Suit Against Health Club

Samuel Wenk, 454 Wellington avenue, a grain broker, won a verdict of $10,000 for personal injuries from Postl's Health club, 312 South Wabash avenue, yesterday before Circuit Judge H. Sterling Pomeroy. Wenk charged that on July 23, 1929, while he was having a rubdown at the club, the masseur suddenly stopped and informed him that he had a misplaced vertebra. Before he could prevent it, he charged, the masseur grabbed his leg and yanked it violently upward with the intention of correcting the fault, but used such force that he cracked the vertebra.

Once it cost $14 a day to enjoy this new cheese flavor

CHATEAU—created by a small Canadian dairy for a famous Canadian hotel—once was known only to those who paid $14 or more a day to stay and to eat at that hotel.

Now Borden brings this thrilling new cheese flavor to you. Now you can buy zestful, deliciously creamy, delightfully mild Chateau from your grocer and serve it in your home!

It comes to you in clean, convenient packages. It's fresh when you buy it—and it stays that way. Because of its rectangular form, it can be cut into any shape.

Try Chateau to-night. Serve it with crackers (it spreads as evenly as butter) . . . melted on toast, as appetizers . . . in a tempting salad.

★ ★ CHATEAU FOR CHILDREN? ★ ★

It's good for them! Chateau is so easily digested. And so healthful! For the special method by which it is made adds valuable milk minerals and nutritive food elements . . . So give the children all the Chateau they want—and they'll want plenty!

$2,500 IN CASH PRIZES FOR BEST ANSWERS!

In answer to many requests from Crossword Fans, the Chicago Tribune publishes a new series of fascinating crossword puzzles, "Melodies in Crosswords." Just solve the puzzles and name the melody appearing in each. You can start now with these two puzzles. Then continue each day until you complete the series.

To help you solve the puzzles W-G-N will broadcast a dramatization every evening of the melody that will appear in the following day's crossword. $2,500.00 in cash prizes will be paid to persons who send in the most nearly correct solutions. There are no strings to this offer — no catches — no subscriptions to solicit. Just pleasant amusement.

This offer is open to everyone: men, women, boys and girls. You are eligible regardless of whether or not you entered a previous series. Start today. Then get Puzzle No. 3 in tomorrow's Daily Tribune.

Follow These Simple Rules:

1. Each evening for 42 consecutive evenings (not including Saturdays) W-G-N will broadcast a melody dramatization. On each day following the broadcast the Chicago Tribune will print a Crossword Puzzle containing the name of the melody. You are invited to listen to the broadcast, solve the Crossword Puzzle in the next day's Tribune and name the melody.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $2,500.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of answers in accordance with these rules: NOTE: You do not necessarily have to solve each of the 42 Crossword Puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest. (See prize list below.)

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. The Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Melodies in Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department.

6. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count. Elaborate entries will receive no greater consideration than simple ones.

7. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

8. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

SHOW ONLY 38% OF CITY REALTY TAXES ARE PAID

47% of Personalty Levy Collected.

With the June 1 penalty date for 1930 real estate taxes only 15 days away, County Treasurer McDonough yesterday made public a report which shows that citizens in Chicago's eight town tax divisions have paid only 38 per cent, or $70,722,091, of the total realty levy of $183,704,375.

The same report, compiled from receipts as of May 13, discloses that 47 per cent of the personal property tax extensions had been paid up to that day. The collections amounted to $24,401,019, as against extensions of $51,727,726. The penalty date for personal property taxes was May 1.

Most Paid in West Town.

The largest real estate tax collections have been made in the west town, where receipts amounted to $17,144,698. These collections, however, were only 47 per cent of the total levy for the west town. The Town of Lake has paid $9,638,931, or 54 per cent, of its total levy. The second largest collections were made in the south town, where $16,637,740, or 41 per cent, was paid.

The south town paid the highest percentage of personal property taxes, $14,116,237, or 58 per cent. North town was second with 51 per cent, $2,128,671.

Collections Are Shown.

A comparative table for all the city towns, showing the real estate tax extensions, the collections, and the percentage of collections, follows:

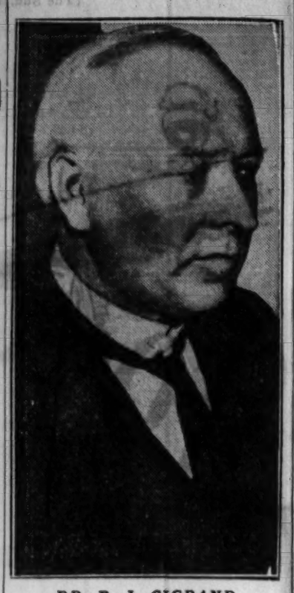
Town—	Extension.	Collection.	Pct.
West	$ 36,391,192	$17,144,698	47
Lake	17,777,893	9,638,931	54
Jefferson	20,660,007	7,111,873	34
Hyde Park	27,465,893	8,852,341	32
South	40,113,392	16,637,740	41
Lake View	21,294,900	5,489,842	26
Rogers Park	5,476,036	1,190,449	22
North	14,645,058	4,656,214	32
Totals	$183,704,371	$70,722,088	38

A similar table showing the extension, collection and percentage of personal property taxes in the same city towns follows:

Town—	Extension.	Collection.	Pct.
West	$ 8,888,128	$ 3,590,165	40
Lake	4,148,524	1,436,589	34
Jefferson	1,675,033	446,836	26
Hyde Park	4,787,782	1,742,212	36
South	24,371,078	14,116,237	58
Lake View	3,162,296	814,499	26
Rogers Park	528,771	125,838	24
North	4,166,111	2,128,671	51
Totals	$51,727,723	$24,401,017	47

The tabulations show that in four towns—Hyde Park, South, Rogers Park, and North—the personal property tax collections are larger in the percentage column than are the real estate collections. Clerks in the treasurer's office said that in years past the personal property percentages always fell below those of the realty collections.

PATRIOT DEAD



DR. B. J. CIGRAND.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

DR. B. J. CIGRAND DIES SUDDENLY; FLAG DAY LEADER

Dr. B. J. Cigrand of Batavia, Ill., founder and president of the National Flag Day association, collapsed yesterday in a restaurant at 400 South State street and died a short time later of heart disease. He was 66 years old.

Dr. Cigrand was best known for his efforts for recognition of the American flag and for education of the public regarding proper use of the flag. He organized the National Flag Day association in 1893 and was active in having June 14 designated Flag day. He also was an authority on seals and heraldry, and designed the official seals of Chicago and Cook county.

He attended Lake Forest university and the Northwestern university school of dentistry. He was professor of dentistry and later president of the American College of Dental Surgery, and when the college was united with Northwestern university was a professor in the dental school there from 1896 to 1899.

Dr. Cigrand served as a lieutenant in the navy during the world war. He formerly practiced in the Logan square district, but moved to Batavia in 1918 and since that time had practiced in Aurora.

His widow, Mrs. Allie Crispe Cigrand, and six children survive.

NORRIS DEMANDS HOOVER REMOVE GLOVER FROM JOB

Assails Him for Threat to Postmasters.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.] — If President Hoover takes proper notice of the speech which Second Assistant Postmaster General Warren I. Glover made to the postmasters at Springfield, Mo., last week, he will turn Mr. Glover himself out of office, Senator George W. Norris [radical Rep., Neb.] declared in the senate today.

Senator Norris announced that he could not let pass unnoticed Mr. Glover's warning to postmasters that they must get out and campaign for Hoover or lose their jobs.

Mr. Glover, the senator called "the major general of the pie counter brigade," and, "in the name of millions of patriotic people," Senator Norris denounced the assistant postmaster general's threats as "unpatriotic."

Partisan Political Machine.

"I do not think there is a man in this civilized day," said Senator Norris, "who wants to see the postoffice department, greatest of its kind in the world, made a great partisan political machine. I thought we had passed that barbarous, iniquitous time."

What Mr. Glover sought to do, said the Nebraska senator, was to make the department a tool of "dirty, unreasonable, and unjustifiable politics."

"That speech," he said, "was an insult to the government, to the postoffice department, and to all patriotic people."

Robinson Joins Discussion.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the senate, professed to agree that the postoffice department should be removed from politics, but he introduced his remarks with the somewhat paradoxical observation that, if the postmasters did what Mr. Glover demanded and supported Hoover, they should be thrown out of their jobs—presumably to be replaced by Democrats—if Hoover should lose.

Intimidation of federal employés did not stop with the postmasters, Senator Norris declared, and he concluded:

"If the President of the United States wants to retain the confidence of patriotic people, he will repudiate Mr. Glover's sentiments—not only that, he will see to it that Mr. Glover, himself, is reduced to the status of a private citizen before the sun sets tonight."

Assails Glover Speech.

Representative James M. Mead [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house postal committee, also assailed the Glover speech.

"Such an attitude," said Mr. Mead, "is not justifiable and violates the theory back of the entire postal system. It is evident that the administration considers that every one connected with it has one prime duty to perform before he concerns himself with the functions of his job. That duty is to sell Mr. Hoover to the American people. It is the one glaring weakness in the postal system that postmasters, when regular duties could take a great deal of time, can be forced to set aside the functions of their office to campaign militantly for their boss, and this administration has aggravated this feeling to the greatest extent in years. It would be equally justifiable for the attorney general to order United States attorneys throughout the country to forget their legal duties, forget their crowded dockets and campaign militantly for Mr. Hoover's reelection.

"The administration does not seem satisfied to set an example to the inferior employés and expect them to follow it. The idea seems to be to force those in inferior positions to go to work with one aim—reelect the President."

ALL RIGHT TO COUNT CROW BOUNTY BEFORE THE EGGS HATCHED

Emporia, Kas., May 16.—(AP)—With two crow eggs in a pocket, E. E. Peet, farmer, drove toward the county clerk's office.

It was a very warm day.

"I'm sorry," said the deputy clerk, "but we don't pay bounty on crow's eggs—just on crow heads."

"Well, you can have the eggs anyway," Peet responded and put a hand in the pocket. A look of astonishment crossed his face.

He collected 20 cents bounty—10 cents on each crow.

WITNESS TELLS COURT HE BURNED PASCHEN PAPERS

U. S. to Close Income Tax Evasion Case Today.

Evidence that records of the Chris Paschen company were burned in September, 1929, was presented by the government yesterday in the trial of the former city building commissioner for income tax evasion before Federal Judge Barnes. The new evidence was linked to testimony given Saturday by a witness who said he heard Paschen order the destruction.

The prosecution is expected to close its case this morning with evidence which, it was reported, will show that a government auditor sought to examine the records before they were destroyed. Paschen is charged with evading tax payments of $114,000 during 1927 and 1928.

Attack Witnesses' Records.

The same sort of stormy session which characterized the hearing Saturday was repeated yesterday when testimony concerning the burning of the records went into the evidence. Another point of similarity was that the defense succeeded in showing that both witnesses had criminal records.

Charles H. Howerton of Elgin, who worked as a truck repair man for Paschen from 1923 to 1931, was the principal witness yesterday. Answering questions by Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich, he said he personally burned "six or eight" burlap sacks containing papers which looked like ledger sheets, and several bundles of canceled checks.

Walter A. Redfield, who worked as a bookkeeper for Paschen, testified Saturday that he had heard Paschen order D. J. O'Connell, another employé, to "see that those records are destroyed." Redfield admitted pleading guilty to a forgery charge years ago. O'Connell, Howerton said, ordered him to dump the papers in the furnace of the Paschen plant, 1450 Clybourn avenue.

Fails to Shake Testimony.

Defense Counsel Cassius Poust could not shake Howerton's story on cross-examination. Then Poust asked:

Q.—Were you ever in a penal institution? A.—In the Indiana reformatory.

Q.—For how long? A.—About seventeen months.

Q.—What crime sent you there? A.—My mother had me put there.

Q.—Why? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Well, surely a man isn't put away without a charge? A.—[Defiantly] Well, go ahead.

Q.—You borrowed money from Paschen and you still owe him $109.76, don't you? A.—He says I do; I say not.

Q.—Do you intend to pay? A.—That's my business. I don't feel I owe him.

Q.—In all, you borrowed $579.76 from Paschen? A.—Yes, but I paid it back.

Poust then shot this tangle of questions rapidly at Howerton: "You were discharged for stealing gas and oil, weren't you? You hate Chris Paschen, don't you? You came down here and volunteered to testify against him, didn't you?"

Both Sides Belligerent.

To each question Howerton loudly bellowed "No." Both men were glaring at each other and Poust was only a few feet away from the witness stand.

Mr. Froelich took the witness on redirect examination.

Q.—You said something about another burning at the plant. Tell us about that. A.—Yes, Paschen got in a little trouble here in town and——

MR. POUST—I object.

THE WITNESS—Some shorthand books——

Poust objected again and was sustained.

The testimony late yesterday was that the Paschen company pay rolls for 1928 totaled $79,000, although in his tax return he claimed that more than $300,000 went out for pay rolls during the same year. Unless serious mistakes in computations can be shown or evidence that not all wage payments were included in the books, pay roll padding of several hundred thousand dollars will be charged by the government.

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

Screen Stars know the Secret of keeping Youthful Charm

TWENTY-NINE—nearing thirty! Is that an age to dread? The screen stars say no!

"I'm 29," says Anita Stewart, "but I don't dread my next birthday a bit! Nowadays it's possible for a woman to grow even more charming as the years go by—if she is willing to take sensible care of her complexion!"

"I'm 29," says Esther Ralston. "No one need fear birthdays. But a young-looking skin is absolutely necessary!"

How, you wonder, do these beautiful stars keep their skin so youthfully lovely! "Since I discovered Lux Toilet Soap I never worry about my skin," says Anita Stewart. "For years I've used Lux Toilet Soap," says Esther Ralston. "And my complexion is younger-looking than ever!"

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use it

Of Hollywood's 694 important actresses, including all stars, actually 686 use this fragrant white soap. Surely you will want to try it!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE JAPANESE ASSASSINATION.

The assassination of the Japanese premier and the other acts of terrorism committed at about the same time by Japanese army and navy officers and cadets are difficult, if not impossible, of understanding outside Japan. There are degrees of foreignness in foreign lands and it is no exaggeration to say that the Japanese way of thought is more alien to ours than is the mentality of any other important people in the world.

The American does not feel entirely at home in Germany, in France or even in England, but in the main he can translate the events which take place in those countries into terms with which he can deal. He can observe political and economic forces at work in Europe, place himself in the position of the European and come to at least a working conclusion on the probable consequences of a given line of policy. Often, of course, these forecasts will be proved wrong by the event, but the error seldom arises from inability to understand what forces have been at work. We cannot interpret Japanese conduct with only that degree of error. A given stimulus applied to American or European minds may be expected to bring about one result, but applied to Japanese minds seems often to produce what to us is a wholly unexpected consequence.

When Americans read that a group of young Japanese officers killed the premier the presumption arises that the military forces are in revolt against the civil government and mean to dominate it. Because they chose as the moment for their action the time when Japanese forces are withdrawing from Shanghai and are in difficulties in Manchuria it would seem within the probabilities to conclude that the military is dissatisfied with the financial and moral support given Japan's forces abroad and propose to increase the degree of support accorded.

This may, indeed, be the fact, and if so the danger of international complications at Shanghai has been markedly increased. Likewise the possibility of war between Japan and Russia is heightened. But for the present, at least, such conclusions had best be regarded as highly provisional. Assassination in our world when it is not the product of madness is generally intended to promote political revolution. This may not be true in Japan. Assassination there seems to come more nearly within the limits of reasonable political action. A Japanese holding the late Mr. Bryan's views might conceivably have preferred shooting Mark Hanna to delivering the cross of gold speech. The men who assassinated Premier Inukai may have felt merely that he was unequal to the responsibilities which he was carrying and unworthy of public trust. They may have intended merely to advertise to their fellow countrymen the belief that men of honor would prefer a different sort of man in the premiership at the moment, without presuming to dictate who the successor should be or his policies. If this is the fact, then there is no need for special anxiety regarding the course of Japanese policy with respect to the rest of the world.

A young Japanese woman, the bride of an officer ordered to Manchuria, committed suicide in order to free her husband of all worry on her account while at the front. A Japanese officer, knocked senseless by a shell in the Shanghai fighting and captured while senseless by the Chinese, committed suicide when released in order to maintain unsullied the tradition that a Japanese officer is never taken alive. The political acts of men and women who conduct themselves in this romantic fashion, wholly alien to our code of conduct, cannot be easily understood. At the moment the proper course for the American people and their government is to maintain an open mind until it is clear what the assassins really intended to accomplish and whether they are likely to gain their end. The temptation to regard the Japanese people as inherently vicious and ill disposed toward us because they are markedly different from us is one which should be resisted.

THE AIR PILOT'S LICENSE.

Recent airplane accidents call attention anew to the fact that the award of a pilot's license by the department of commerce is not in itself a guarantee that the holder of the license is a wholly competent airman. The license indicates merely that the holder of it has had some considerable training and has passed a series of tests. The certification corresponds roughly to that given by the state to doctors and lawyers. Just as all doctors are not equally able to handle difficult cases merely because they have identical diplomas hanging on their office walls, so all licensed pilots are not equally able to deal with all the situations which arise in flying. A pilot's license is merely an evidence that minimum standards of training and experience have been complied with. It is no real index to a man's ability to meet the unexpected promptly and effectively. The license suggests that the holder knows the general rules for safety in the air, but whether he can be relied upon to follow them or not is quite another matter.

THE CAVE OF THE WINDS.

The Gresham's law of politics is that the wilder demagogue drives out the less wild. The loudest voice prevails. A will provide bread and cheese, but B will supply pork and potatoes, and C will take the shirt off the rich man and C's public table will be spread with terrapin and pheasant with truffles. A offers a street carnival, but C opens the gates of the Circus Maximus. One will show performing mice, but the other will drive in droves of Libyan lions with an adequate number of early Christians.

Mr. Brookhart of Iowa was the true voice of humanity in the United States senate until the bayous and pot likker belt of Loozeeana yielded up Hooey Long, the champion hog caller of democracy, the inventor and vender of the real, the only genuine elixir of life, swamp root bitters with bear oil and dragon blood, the friend of man, the true diviner who can scratch his ears with a rabbit's foot and use them then as wings.

Mr. Brookhart upon the advent of Mr. Long goes down like a broken camp chair. There is a better show across the street. Mr. Brookhart's designs upon the taxpayers seem now to be benevolences to them. He was not skinning the rich. He was sewing buttons on their coat. Mr. Brookhart, now observed, appears to have a cast of countenance which is not that of a real friend of man. It bodes not well.

Mr. Brookhart in his turn had dimmed the light of the present senatorial La Follette and his colleague, Mr. Blaine, of Mr. Norris of Nebraska, and of the various Dakotans who have come forth with the living fire. With Mr. Brookhart barging in upon the senate and bulging out there Mr. Norris could be suspect of old toryism. Mr. Norris undoubtedly was a reactionary. And so it goes and has always gone. Theodore Roosevelt's liberalism could not satisfy the elder La Follette's radicalism, and back in another generation Dolliver of Iowa preceded Roosevelt.

Hooey of the bayous is now the leader of radicalism in the senate because he is the loudest and wildest thing which has come out of the cave of the winds.

THE POLICE IN THE LINDBERGH CASE.

When every allowance has been made for the difficulties which could be expected by the police in the Hopewell crime it is hard to find any performance creditable to men whose profession is the detection of criminals. Much criticized as the Hawaiian police have been in the Massie case, they at least produced the men accused of the crime and identified. Particularly the New Jersey state police have appeared as martinets and not as detectives. Their maneuvers seem to have been conducted with a view to pleasing a Potsdam drill sergeant rather than anything else. They have handled the case as a traffic problem with more than incidental attention to the importance of themselves and the governor of the state.

THE DEMONSTRATION FOR REPEAL.

The organized protest against national prohibition and the demand for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act selected this week for public demonstration and it is apparent that the protestants are getting together with enthusiasm. It is more than a blowing off of steam. The weight of opinion has been shown in other ways, but this is one of public display natural to democratic controversy.

The women opposed to prohibition find an opportunity to demonstrate that supporters of public order and personal respectability are openly against the continuance of the folly of the amendment and its enforcement act. The favorite allusion of the prohibitionists has been to the besottedness of their opponents. The reputability and intelligence of the opposition are, on the contrary, self-evident. The better class of citizenship is for and not against repeal.

MR. MELLON WEARS THEM LONG.

The question of Mr. Mellon's official pants has been settled by his first appearance at court. They are long, the unpretentious pants of American wear, the garment for which pants is the perfect word, a garment to be held by galluses and worn by commoners undisturbed by a thought of pomp and circumstance. Two American ambassadors to the Court of St. James's now having kept out of knee breeches and buckles, it may be considered that a tradition is defining itself and that the days of livery are in the past.

When an American puts his legs in satin breeches he puts his head in a fool's cap. He enters a fantastic world as one of the minor satellites and buzzes around in an orbit of bewildered dependency. A diplomat who is put into clothes in which he would feel like a fool at home is likely to find that he is one abroad.

Editorial of the Day

IF RUSSIA WERE KANSAS.

[Kansas City Star.]

The tribulations of the Russian farmers under the soviet system, as described by Dean Edgar S. Furniss of Yale university in Current History, suggest a homely comparison. Suppose communism had come to Kansas. Two years ago the government, controlled by city workers, would have decided that it was time for the farmers to go "collective" or largely to give up their ideas of private property. The farmers would have been forced to accept communism against their will by pooling their land into great collective farms. But rather than turn their cattle over to common ownership they would have slaughtered between a third and one-half of all the animals in Kansas.

Seeing to what lengths the farmers would go to resist communism, the government then would have suspended temporarily its campaign of force and tried persuasion. It must be remembered that this city-controlled government would be perfectly sincere in thinking it knew what was best for the farmers of Kansas, whatever they might think or desire. But this last winter the method of persuasion would have been abandoned again when it was discovered that there was a shortage of grain both for the cities of Kansas and for export. Individual farmers would have been called before the authorities and punished for hoarding grain. Their live stock as well as grain would have been seized and when some of them attempted to leave the state they would have been shot down by border patrols.

That is what would have been happening if Kansas were Russia. But the blessings of communism have been denied the Kansas farmer and perhaps providence can be prevailed upon to refrain a little longer from bestowing them.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND NOW THE NEWSPAPERS SAY that Gov. Roosevelt is the victim of a whispering campaign, but he refuses to raise a finger in recognition of it. Ah, the campaign is warming up. It looked for a while as though we were all so busy with baseball, the cinema, the radio, and riding around in our gasoline hacks in this nice spring weather that nobody gave a whoop who got nominated, if any. But a whispering campaign always shows that people are getting interested and foretells the coming of a political campaign as surely as the reddening of the sky in the east presages the dawn of another day.

ACQUAINTANCE.

He loved, he said, the string quartet, and criticized a Bach motet and other things he will forget.

He differed with me for the sport and hurt me with a swift retort
(he thought) that was of no import.

I twirled my little crystal glass and thought of shadows on the grass while he described an early mass.

So vital (really?) this discussion,
I liking, and he not, the Russian and his generous percussion.

Ah, well, that was a night well spent in talk and thought intelligent, though neither spoke the things he meant.

SEN. NORRIS is pretty sore at W. Irving Glover, the second assistant postmaster general, because he told the Missouri postmasters to "get out on the firing line" for Mr. Hoover's renomination. But why get so het up? What's a postmaster for, anyhow, if he isn't to help the administration that appointed him get a second term? Sen. Norris seems to think that all a postmaster does is to read postal cards and stick back stamps that have come off the envelope. Oh, Mr. Norris, you should read up on American politics.

TWENTY THOUSAND PEOPLE gazed breathlessly at Budweiser, the jumping bullfrog, as he won the championship in California last Sunday. And yet we laugh at the British game of cricket. Perhaps the British don't think so much of jumping bullfrogs. Every country has its own ideas of what constitutes real sport. Maybe we're both wrong.

OWEN D. YOUNG declines to run for the presidency, but let us not lose sleep for fear nobody wants that job any more. Mr. Young may say he doesn't want it, but there are plenty who do, and, besides, if any considerable number of delegates to the convention just go right down on their knees and beg Owen with tears in their eyes to please be the Democratic Moses and lead them out of the wilderness we feel almost sure that Mr. Young would not be so flinty hearted as to refuse.

SCHOOLS ARE NOW GOING to teach by means of moving pictures. And then, if the instruction from the profs is given by means of talking machine records, the addresses of the president and the chairman of the board of trustees by the radio, education is going right forward by jumps unless some scientist invents a method of ducking a freshman without putting him in the water. Right there the student body is going to get up on its hind legs and object.

WHAT PRICE DREAMS?

I am so tired of waiting
For my ship to come sailing home.
I am so weary of watching
I cannot work or roam.
For here at my open window
From dawn until dawn must I be;
It would not do for my ship to come
If I were not there to see.
Life flows by my open window—
Oh, hurry, my dream, come true!
There is so little time for living,
There are so many things to do,
And the ships that leave are so many
And they that come home so few!

ACID MILKS FOR BABIES.

THE present tendency in the feeding of children when cow's milk is used is to give a soured milk rather, than milk of the ordinary kind. This is based on the pretty well proved theory that the proteins of milk are too well protected by lime to make them easily digested.

The most popular of the acid milks is that prepared with lactic acid tablets. One method of making this is to use one tablet of lactic acid bacilli in a quart of milk. The tablet is crushed and suspended in one or two tablespoons of the milk. This is added to the remainder of the milk and the mixture is placed in a glass dish, heated to 80 degrees Fahrenheit and held at that temperature for twenty minutes. The milk is well curdled. It is mixed and the curds thoroughly broken with a spoon or egg beater. The next step is to pass the milk and curds through a wire strainer. This is the product, lactic acid milk.

A tablespoonful of this product can be used in place of the tablet to make the next batch.

Most people start with a boiled milk. Some, however, use pasteurized milk, and some use the raw article. If whole milk is used the surplus fat can be removed with a spoon after the curd forms. This is only one of several ways of making lactic acid milk. Some use the acid itself rather than the bacilli that make it; others use different acids. One recipe for muriatic acid milk is: One quart milk, one pint water, 25 drops of dilute muriatic acid. The milk and water are mixed and brought to a boil. The acid, diluted with twice its volume of water, is slowly added to the milk while vigorous stirring is done.

Some make use of lemon juice and some of vinegar as a source of acid.

A soy bean and condensed milk mixture is made as follows: One tablespoon soy bean flour, twice as much barley flour, one quart milk. To one quart of milk add the flours and a bit of salt. Mix well. Boil for twenty minutes. Add enough water to make one quart. Add four ounces condensed milk to the quart of milk and flour.

Some children who do not thrive on ordinary milk get along well on buttermilk. Some do well on cottage cheese.

DANGER IS TRIVIAL.

B. B. writes: I am in love with a man whose mother is insane. She got that way after the birth of the last child. My mother says if I marry the man our children will be insane. Is that so?

REPLY.

The danger is trivial. More depends on the mental poise of the man than on his experience. In the first place insanity is scarcely inheritable. In the second, the insanity which follows childbirth is usually manic-depressive and that is less transmissible than is dementia praecox. In the third place, even if the man had inherited a lack of mental poise, the quality would not be present in his children, provided you are a well-balanced woman.

Disease traits rarely last into the third generation.

These are enough arguments—and you can marry, provided you and the man are of the right sort.

STIFF FINGERS.

L. E. R. writes: E. G. asks what to do about stiff fingers in the morning. I have the same thing after eating candy or sweet desserts, especially at night. By experimenting, I discovered that cream, chocolate and sweets are poison for me, and give me stiff joints and stiff eyelids, whereas a whole tumbler full of orange juice every morning [pulp with juice], on an empty stomach, has done wonders. I cannot digest it, however, if I take coffee or tea at the same meal with it.

BOWLEGS.

B. A. S. writes:

1. Is an operation for bowlegs necessary in a 19 year old person?
2. Is it dangerous?
3. Would you advise it?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Sometimes.
3. No.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

REPUBLICAN—1884.

Chicago, June 7.—James G. Blaine and Gen. John A. Logan, an unrivaled statesman and an unconquered soldier, are the Republican nominees for President and Vice President.

More than 6,000 persons crowded into the Exposition building at Michigan avenue and Monroe street to watch the balloting.

The proceedings of the convention yesterday opened with a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Scudder of this city. After preliminaries of filling vacancies in state delegations, the chairman announced:

"There is now nothing in order except to call the roll for the nomination of a candidate for the presidency."

At the end of the roll call the secretary announced that the whole number of delegates was 820; number of votes cast, 818; necessary to a choice, 411. Blaine received 334½; President Chester A. Arthur, 278; George F. Edmunds, 93; John A. Logan, 63½; John Sherman, 30; Joseph R. Hawley, 13; Robert T. Lincoln, 4; Gen. William T. Sherman, 2.

On the second ballot Blaine had 349 votes and Arthur 276. On the third Blaine received 375 and Arthur 274. When the vote for Blaine was announced there was immense cheering and an enthusiastic demonstration. A scene of indescribable confusion followed, members of half a dozen delegations rising to protest against an Arthur-Edmunds-Sherman proposition for adjournment.

When Illinois was reached on the fourth ballot Senator Cullom said he had received a telegram from Gen. John A. Logan instructing the withdrawal of his name. Illinois then gave Blaine 34, Logan 7, and Arthur 3 votes. Judge Foraker withdrew the name of John Sherman and Ohio gave Blaine 46 votes.

Arthur had 207 when the result was announced, and Blaine 541. When the secretary shouted "Five hundred and——" the delegates and spectators did not wait for him to complete the sentence, but broke into an outburst, keeping up the disturbance for ten or fifteen minutes. A motion to make the nomination unanimous was carried amidst much cheering. Gen. Logan for Vice President received 779 votes on the first ballot.

Among the prominent delegates was young Roosevelt of New York, who worked with bulldog pertinacity to make himself conspicuous. The fair sex enthused over his 28 years and glasses.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The remarkable speech which President Wilson made at the National Press club last night was given to the public tonight. It was remarkable in two respects. First, the President said he has weighed the European situation for the purpose of delivering blows at the various belligerents at the time when such blows are calculated by him to do the greatest moral good. Second, the President confessed to a most "profound intellectual contempt" for many of those persons who believe they are among his closest advisers. The President assailed the playing of "war politics" and said "the only thing that saves the world is the little handful of disinterested men that are in it."

CHICAGO.—Chicago is to have a giant preparedness parade. All doubt as to the city's enthusiasm for the project was removed yesterday when at two conferences leaders of representative civic, business, and social organizations declared themselves unanimously in its favor and formally launched the preliminary plans. The only matter left in doubt was the date. Further deliberations will decide this point.

EUROPEAN WAR SUMMARY.—An Austrian coup in the Tyrol netted more than 2,500 Italian prisoners and much loot. Vienna reports successes on other fronts. The Russian army is continuing its advance in Mesopotamia and expects to control Bagdad and other historic points in the near future. The French curtain of fire stopped the Germans in two attacks on Verdun, Paris reports. Berlin reports like successes. Germany warns neutral nations that merchant ships must obey provisions of international law when stopped by U boats and that they incur danger if they turn in the direction of the submarine. Sir Roger Casement is near collapse at high treason trial as the crown weaves a web of guilt about him.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Carranza has agreed to Maj. Gen. Scott's informal understanding with Gen. Obregon, which provides that Carranza forces shall endeavor to show their ability to control the situation in northern Mexico while American troops remain for the time being.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor, Arthur Pearson Scott, associate professor of history.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What do we mean by modern, and when did modern times begin?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

Why is Petrarch called the first modern man?

ANSWER:

Petrarch lived in the 14th century in the early days of the Italian Renaissance, and is remembered for the sonnets which he wrote in Italian and for his influence in reviving interest in classical antiquity. To the men of the middle ages this life seemed important chiefly as a preliminary period of trial before the day of judgment, and man's chief concern here was supposedly seeking salvation. Petrarch shared the intellectual curiosity and the delight in being alive that was common in the writers of Greece and Rome. Interest in this present life came to be a prominent characteristic of the Renaissance and of the generations since. It is because of his departure from the medieval ideals that Petrarch is now thought of as modern.

SIGNS REMOVED.

Chicago, May 7. — [Friend of the People.]—A public garage on Monroe street maintains a large sign that projects half way across the sidewalk and seriously obstructs the walk. Also a parking lot on Madison has four signs at the curb. Several business houses have lately placed advertising signs on the walk. Does the city issue special permits for allowing these signs or are these violations of the code? J. M. K.

Report is made that, pursuant to notice, signs have been removed from the sidewalk. Location will be kept under observation to see that there is no further cause for complaint. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

"DANGER" SIGNS.

Chicago, May 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Please let me know if there is a city ordinance to the effect that coal companies must put lights on coal piles left in the streets after dark. About two months ago I was driving on a south side street and was unable to see a huge coal pile in a shadow between the street lights and ran into it with my car. I have seen others barely miss an accident on these hazards. 2. If there is an ordinance, why isn't it enforced? A. C. H.

1. "Any person having the use of any portion of the street or sidewalk for the purpose of erecting or repairing any building, or for any other purpose, shall cause two red lights to be placed in a conspicuous place, one at either end of such obstruction, from dusk in the evening until sunrise in the morning, each night during the time such obstruction remains." [City code, chapter 13, section 750].
2. Ask the police.

PINKS AT MADISON.

Madison, Wis., May 7.—By giving wide publicity to the ravings of Mr. Chapple, THE TRIBUNE is spreading misinformation about the University of Wisconsin. I recall Big Bill Thompson with his loud "America First," with his political clowning, his ridiculous charges that American history books were pro-English, and that he was going "to bust King George in the snoot." THE TRIBUNE certainly paid little attention to that cheap method of getting publicity; why do you grant so much free space to Chapple, who is just another Thompson with, perhaps, just a little more finesse? Thompson ranted that King George was trying to subvert American patriotism; Chapple charges that Moscow is trying to run the University of Wisconsin. Absurd!

Let us examine some of the startling revelations. "Pinks" are supposed to be on the faculty. Of course, there are some. There are hundreds on the faculty and out of that number there are bound to be a certain percentage who dabble in cults whether it be communism or some other ism.

Any of Mr. Chapple's attacks can be demolished. It is true that there is a small group of students here devoted to communism. This group is about a hundred or so strong, exceptionally noisy like most minorities, most of its members come from New York, and the other 8,500 students on the campus ignore them entirely. There are also pacifistic groups, small in number, sponsored by various churches. Mr. Chapple charges that the university destroys religion and builds parlor pinks. But what's this? A church organization in very good Chapple standing sponsors a pacifistic, parlor pink organization. It's all very mixed up.

Mr. Chapple is unduly alarmed about the possibility of the campus becoming affected by ideas. Students are very immune to anything like thinking about an idea. They are as inert as the great majority of the public, neither thinking about anything nor caring very much. The students for the most part are too lethargic to go to the trouble of becoming violent communists, or violent anything. They will become good Americans, as fraternity politics [ballot box stuffing, machine dominations, etc.] show, and will vote a straight ticket even though a Big Bill Thompson or a J. B. Chapple is on the ballot.

HERMAN TEUFEL.

MR. CHAPPLE'S CANDIDACY.

Glencoe, Ill., May 11.—One of the reasons that our country is in such difficulty at the present time is because such an influential paper as you are will champion such a stupid man as John B. Chapple. The article written up in Saturday's [May 7] TRIBUNE by your correspondent, Arthur Evans, makes one despair of ever awakening in the American people any sort of intellectual integrity. It is the ignorant person who resorts to the sort of name calling in which Mr. Chapple indulges. I happen to be intimately acquainted with the experimental college at Wisconsin and know how ridiculous are his statements about that institution. Does Mr. Chapple suppose that educators are interested in the suspicions of taxpayers? They are interested in finding the truth and in helping their students to find the truth for themselves.

The trouble with most political candidates is that they work on the recognized fact that most people don't take the trouble to inform themselves about matters vital to our country's welfare but are easily influenced by a rah-rah sort of patriotism which vitiates the ability to do any real thinking.

Incidentally, you might tell your proofreader that it is "Amherst," not "Amhurst." EDNA TAYLOR.

FOR A SHORTER WORKING DAY.

Chicago, May 4.—I should like to see action on a plan of the type submitted by Mr. Florsheim in this morning's TRIBUNE, but his plan does not strike deep enough. It probably could be put into operation without too much difficulty, but it is not apparent as to just how it would help unemployment.

In the present condition of business most firms would gladly take a 40 hour work week mandate as an excuse to close down over the week-end, automatically cutting one more day's wages from the already slashed to ribbons pay check of the present workers.

Henry Ford inaugurated a 40 hour work week in his plants some time ago, but this did not force him to employ more men.

Mr. Florsheim's principle is correct, but the work week should be shortened by making a shorter work day. Under this system a company, such as the steel corporation, instead of employing three men in 8 hour shifts would use four men in 6 hour shifts. Stores and offices using one man for 8 or 9 hours would employ two men for about 5 hours each.

With the increasing utilization of machines, some such policy is inevitable. Business leaders would do well to direct strenuous effort towards securing universal adoption of a scentific scheme of this type. MAXWELL F. MACLEAN.

SANE AND COURAGEOUS.

Chicago, May 6.—Permit me to congratulate you on the sane and yet courageous editorial in yesterday's edition entitled, "The Bonus and Its Friends"; also on the inclusion in a front page story this morning notice of the waste and fraud in connection with soldiers' relief as reported by Mr. Archie Roosevelt. Whether deserving or not, what will it profit a soldier or relative of a soldier if he gain something which in turn destroys the source?

It is pitiful that so few editors have the courage to point out the economic suicide for our country involved in the several bonus and veteran relief measures, actual and proposed. It is just too bad that a relatively few noisy racketeers, both within and without the veterans' organizations, can fill the rest of us with fear of opposing them. A little more courage and congress could save dollars in this direction where it can save comparatively only pennies in others.

The more than 100,000 persons who have suddenly discovered that congress may be used as a Jersey cow and have applied for additional grants from the government are certainly not an evidence of the spirit which makes nations live. A. P. HAAKE.

IT DOES SEEM ODD.

Chicago, May 11.—With all of his burglar alarms it seems to me that Mr. Tom Carr's home should be well fortified against this unknown prowler, who enters the Carr home almost at will. ALVIN HAMBURG.

THE BEST CRITICISM.

Mason City, Ia., May 13.—The best criticism on music that has been printed in ten years was given by Edward Moore in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. Perhaps not more than one person in ten million enjoy hearing that "dry stuff," no matter how well it is fingered. I wish I knew how to comment on his article more intelligently. MRS. W. RATHBONE.

"People are still PEOPLE"

Thank you, N. W. AYER & SON

WE take off our hat to N. W. Ayer & Son for their recent message to American Business.

The headline bears repetition now: . . . "People are still People!"

Stocks may rise or fall, the budget perplex us, but the fundamental processes of life go on. Human emotions, human needs, human desires remain the same. People are still people.

Editorial recognition of this fact has built the mightiest magazine in the world, The American Weekly.

Only a great understanding of humanity, only an unerring grasp of "What interests people and why" could explain a circulation that is nearly double that of any other magazine in existence.

Even in times like these the urge to learn and know stirs in the human breast.

Examine The American Weekly and see how each and every phase of human knowledge is lighted and made bright in this magazine for the people.

People are still interested in people—their lives, their loves, their tragedies and adventures.

No other publication on earth charts and sets forth the thrilling stories from real life with such consummate skill and interest.

From life, that great storehouse from which Shakespeare, Goethe, Dumas, Dickens, Ibsen, Balzac, de Maupassant, Stevenson, Tolstoy, and all the other masters of the craft of writing drew inspiration, The American Weekly draws an unending stream of thrilling narrative.

Not edited for any group or cult or creed, but conceived and published for all the people, this Mighty Magazine has won welcome entry into five and one-half million American homes.

To sell in volume, the successful advertiser must reach people—buyers in great volume.

What a market then is offered by The American Weekly, especially in times like these.

One out of every five homes in the United States, located in the richest buying areas in the nation, reached through the medium of the world's most interesting magazine.

The price—$16,000, less than ⅓ cent per home for a color page that is more than twice the size of any other magazine page.

The most circulation at the lowest cost per family. That's the challenge of The American Weekly.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday Newspapers. In 578 of America's 997 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 70% of its circulation.

In each of 152 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 108 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 146 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 172 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,700,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

MOVE TO REVALUE SILVER PLACED BEFORE COMMONS

Would Authorize Bank to Buy and Sell.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 16.—The movement for the remonetization of silver as a remedy for the world's illness, although it has attracted little attention thus far in Great Britain, will receive a slight fillip next week when the house of commons is called upon to discuss an amendment to the finance bill which would insert the two words, "or silver."

SIR ROBT. HORNE. [Acme Photo.]

This would authorize the Bank of England to buy or sell silver as well as gold to stabilize sterling. Added importance is given the amendment by the fact that it is in the names of two leading members of parliament, Sir Robert Horne and L. S. Amery.

Chamberlain May Oppose Move.

This fact, however, will do little more than attract attention to the movement, for while both Sir Robert and Amery are prominent Conservatives, neither is in the government and both are more or less at odds with its financial policy.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, with whom the last word rests, is an extremely orthodox follower of the city of London finance school, which is tied to gold, and it is believed he plans to return British currency to the gold standard, after a reasonable time.

The figure he is believed to have in mind is something between $3.50 and $4. Evidence of this is found in efforts he made successfully last week to keep the pound steady around $3.66. In spite of the fact that the dollar fell off slightly with regard to some European currencies, the dollar-pound relation was maintained with only the slightest fluctuation.

Merchants Back Silver Move.

The silver movement, while it has not yet assumed real importance in Britain, may increase in weight because behind it are a powerful class of merchants, traders and manufacturers, who want to see the great silver hoards in India and China released.

They do not care much whether this is done by actual remonetization of the metal or by engineering a rise in value in some other way. What they do want is to restore the purchasing power of eastern customers, which now is frozen in the shape of silver ornaments, jewelry and buried bullion.

Silver is the only monetary metal known in large parts of India and China. An Indian cultivator or a Chinese coolie, when times are good, buys silver bangles to hang on his wife. When there is no more room for bangles, he buys a silver brick and buries it in the back yard. When times are bad he digs up the brick or retrieves the ornaments from his wife and sells them.

System Worked for Centuries.

This primitive finance worked well for centuries. Then came the catastrophic fall in the price of silver and the value of the savings was wiped out. How serious this is to oriental hoarders can be realized from the fact that the price of silver fell from about 64 cents an ounce in May, 1326, to about 27 cents last year.

Since then there has been a slight recovery and prices are now around 35 cents. Leading silver dealers think this advance, which began two months ago, is largely psychological and speculative, being based on the hopes of governmental or international action to restore silver to the position of one of the world's great media of exchange.

WIFE OUT LATE SHOT AS HUSBAND CARES FOR HOME

Mrs. Rhea Kaplan, 37 years old, mother of two children, was shot in the thigh late last night while in the apartment of John A. Keefe, alias O'Keefe, at 1548 North Karlov avenue. Keefe, who, police say, operates a handbook in his home, was arrested for the shooting, and another man and a woman, a divorcée, who were present, were questioned.

MRS. RHEA KAPLAN.

The wounded woman was taken to St. Elizabeth's hospital. Her husband, Louis, a driver, with whom she lives at 613 East 60th street, was notified. He asserted that his wife has been "running around" for several years and that he has kept his home intact thus far only for the sake of the children—Lenore, 12, and Burton, 15.

In her story Mrs. Kaplan said that Keefe, whom she knew for two years as O'Keefe, invited her to his apartment. She arrived there in company with Mrs. Marie Robinson, 24 years old, 8251 Evans avenue, the divorcée, and John Moss, 26, of 1114 South Keeler avenue. Keefe met them, she said, and demanded, "Where's the other guy?" apparently referring, police said, to some other acquaintance of the woman. He drew a revolver at the same time and fired. Moss disarmed him and, with Mrs. Robinson, took Mrs. Kaplan to the hospital. Keefe told Sergt. Joseph Mooney that he had been drinking and didn't remember the shooting.

MARION YOUTH A SUICIDE.

Marion, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Fred Ashby, 17, son of Fred Ashby and brother of Miss Josephine Ashby, radio singer, committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid.

20 PLANES TO FLY FROM ITALY TO CHICAGO FOR FAIR

ROME, May 16.—(AP)—A second Italian air fleet will fly the Atlantic next year, with the double purpose of celebrating the tenth year of Fascism and the Chicago World's Fair.

A fleet of 20 twin motored seaplanes, under command of Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and the same man who commanded the first armada to South America a year and a half ago, will undertake the flight. The ultimate objective will be Chicago.

The route probably will be via Ireland, Iceland, Greenland, Labrador, and Canadian points. According to an announcement today, the fleet expects to dip in salute at the opening of the world exposition in Chicago. One hundred picked flyers and mechanics are now training at the high seas aeronautic navigation school at Orbetello for the flight.

LIEUT. SCULLY KILLED; SHOT HELD ACCIDENT

Police Lieutenant James Scully, 43 years old, 2312 North Lawndale avenue, was found shot and fatally wounded yesterday in his home. He died at the Alexian Brothers hospital several hours after his wife had found him lying on his bed, a gunshot wound just below his heart, and a revolver by his side.

Mrs. Scully and the lieutenant's father, James J. Scully, a Municipal court bailiff, told the police they believed the shooting was accidental. The elder Scully said he thought his son had been cleaning the gun.

Lieut. Scully was the nephew of the late Judge Thomas Scully. He was in charge of the emergency patrolmen guarding street crossings in public school zones. He had been a policeman 20 years, winning nine creditable mentions.

He is survived by his widow, Marie, and three children, James Jr., Bessie, and Marie.

CANADIAN POLICE THROW 254 MORE NUDISTS IN JAIL

NELSON, B. C., May 16.—(AP)—A third Sunday raid on a parade of nude Doukhobors resulted in an increase of the jail population of members of the sect to 511 today.

For the third Sunday in succession the nudists gathered in an orchard at Thrums yesterday and began disrobing. Police immediately ordered trucks sent from Nelson and loaded 254 naked men, women, and children and brought them to the Nelson jail. There was no resistance. The additional prisoners arrived as the Doukhobors already imprisoned abandoned a hunger strike they had started last week.

Of the 511 Doukhobors now in jail, 247 have been sentenced to three years each in the penitentiary for appearing in the nude. In all 595 have been arrested since the nude parades began, but 84 of the children have been sent to institutions on the coast.

Start Work on Approaches to 1933 World Fair Bridge

Construction of approaches for the wood bridge that will connect Northerly island with the mainland at 16th street for the 1933 World's Fair was begun yesterday. The bridge will be 40 feet wide over the water and the entire span will extend 639 feet. One end of the bridge will lead into the electrical group on the island and the other to the hall of science. The bridge will be used chiefly by pedestrians and vehicle traffic will be limited.

Mr. J. A. Van Buren
Advertising Manager
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Mr. Van Buren.

The strongest evidence of our complete satisfaction with the selling job the Cleveland Plain Dealer has done for us is the fact that we use it exclusively to carry our advertising.

Furthermore, with the exception of only a few months, we have never used any other Cleveland newspaper. The Plain Dealer has produced, consistently.

As you know, the success of our organization of 50 stores, selling only nationally advertised goods, depends upon our reaching the greatest possible number of good substantial buying families. We are sure that we influence the greatest number of such families through the Plain Dealer.

We greatly appreciate the valuable aid your paper has rendered and we are confident that it will continue to bring us equally good returns.

Cordially yours,
UNITED FOOD STORES
A. J. Thuerman
President

THAT'S WHY United Food Stores, leading Cleveland Independent Food Merchants, advertise exclusively in the Plain Dealer . . . Do as they do!

One of the fifty modern United Food Stores in Cleveland, specializing on nationally advertised merchandise.

● When you're considering Cleveland, old space buying standards fall!

Cleveland housewives do many things differently than residents of other cities. And the thing they do differently . . . most persistently . . . is read the morning newspaper . . . the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Of course, we're talking now about the families who do 70% of the buying!

If these families were not influenced by the Plain Dealer, do you think the United Food Stores . . . and every other important group of food merchants in Cleveland . . . would so consistently invest their advertising dollars in this great morning newspaper?

Of course they wouldn't! They are keen merchandisers . . . and they know how to get results!

In no other American city does the morning paper so completely dominate the buying power.

In no other American city do women express such an overwhelming preference for the morning newspaper. And the women pull the purse strings!

To sell in Cleveland, the Plain Dealer must be a fundamental part of your sales plan. Write, wire or phone today . . . learn how to "corner" the best customers in Cleveland.

Nowadays . . . women chart their day the modern way—they plan their meals in the morning . . .

THE women of today do not permit themselves to be slaves to the tradition which once used to rob them of their leisure hours. They run their homes in a business-like way.

Instead of spending their evenings in worrying about tomorrow night's dinner, they keep that time free to enjoy the companionship of husband and family and friends. They plan their meals in the morning—when their minds are rested and fresh,—and when their newspaper brings them up-to-the-minute food news, suggestions, and advertisements. It is then, too, that a woman can get an idea of what her husband thinks he would like for dinner. In most homes, the logical desire to please is expressed in the considerate morning question "what would you like for dinner tonight?" And that really marks both the beginning and the keynote of the planning of the all-important evening meal.

The most effective time to advertise foods is in the morning—when there is least delay between reading and buying—and the logical medium for food advertising in New York is the Herald Tribune, because it is the newspaper that reaches the women who are the market for advertised foods. That the daily food news section of the Herald Tribune, with its suggested menu, is a feature which is highly appreciated by women, is evidenced by the constantly increasing stream of letters which pour into the Herald Tribune's Household Institute, daily.

The circulation of the Herald Tribune is spread, with remarkable evenness, over all classes, except the poorest—a general circulation that takes the advertiser's message where it belongs—to the general public—the buyers of advertised goods! Therein lies the reason for the Herald Tribune's remarkably high percentage of sales influence per advertising dollar. A Herald Tribune representative will be glad to call with complete information.

2 SCIENTISTS DIE CHASING COSMIC RAYS IN ALASKA

Fall Into Crevasse on Mt. McKinley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 16.—Two members of an expedition seeking to measure the cosmic ray from Mount McKinley, the highest mountain on the North American continent, fell to their deaths on or about Sunday, May 8, more than a week ago.

This was revealed tonight in a telephone report from Harry J. Leik, superintendent of Mount McKinley National park, who, with A. D. Lindley of Minneapolis, Erling Estrom, a Norwegian climber, and Grant Pearson, a national park ranger, found the body of one of the dead men while returning from the first successful scaling of both peaks of the mountain, which is 20,300 feet high, since that of Archdeacon Hudson Stuck and Harry Karstens in 1913.

Fall in Crevasse of Glacier.

The two men who were killed were Allen Carpe, 36, New York engineer, and Theodore Koven, 38, of Jersey City, N. J. They were part of an expedition trying to "trap" the cosmic ray. The expedition also included E. P. Beckwith and Percy T. Olton Jr., both of New York.

Carpe, who was a veteran mountain climber, was married and the father of two children. He had climbed extensively in the Canadian Rockies and has a number of first ascents to his credit, including Mount Bona in Alaska in 1930, and Mount Fairweather last June. Koven was also a veteran mountain climber.

Treacherous Muldrow glacier was the scene of the accident in which Carpe and Koven slipped and fell into a crevasse. Koven, despite his injuries, climbed out, only to die of exposure. Carpe's body was not found.

Describes Discovery of Tragedy.

Leik in his report of the tragedy said that his party had made a successful ascent of the south peak of Mount McKinley on May 7 and of the north peak on May 9. His party started down the mountainside on May 10, he said, and arrived at the head of Muldrow glacier the next day.

There they found the camp of Carpe and Koven. The camp had not been occupied for two days or more, but it was clear, Leik said, that it had not been abandoned. The diaries of the two men indicated that they had gone down Muldrow on Sunday, May 8, to meet Beckwith and Olton, who had only recently arrived.

Fail to Bring Body Out.

Leik said his party proceeded down the glacier without delay and two miles down found the body of Koven. He had been dead at least two days. Nearby the Leik party found signs that indicated that Carpe had also fallen in the crevasse.

The Leik expedition then tried to bring Koven's body down on a sled. The party traveled only a few hundred yards when a ranger, Grant Pearson, fell forty feet to the bottom of a big crevasse. He was injured slightly. Owing to the difficult conditions, the expedition was forced to leave the body behind. Beckwith, who is ill with a high fever, and Olton are still camped on the glacier. An airplane, equipped with skis, took off from here this morning in an effort to rescue them. Jerry Jones, the pilot, planned to land on the glacier, which is 6,000 feet above sea level.

WORKING FOR DR. COMPTON.

Allen Carpe, who died on Mount McKinley, was engaged in an attempt to measure the cosmic ray for Dr. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago physicist.

Dr. Compton himself is working on the project in New Zealand. Scientists under his direction have been sent to seven mountain peaks in various parts of the world to try to "trap" the cosmic ray.

Carpe was not known personally to Dr. Compton. He had, however, been highly recommended as a mountain climber and explorer, Dr. Compton's office here reported. He left here April 12 with the instruments he was to use on Mount McKinley.

Five Killed in Germany.

MUNICH, Germany, May 16.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and five badly injured in a series of mountaineering accidents in the Bavarian Alps today. Among the dead was Tony Schmid of Munich, who first scaled the Matterhorn on the northern side in 1931. He fell trying to climb Weissbachhorn. The other dead were German sportsmen, who were killed on other mountains in the same area.

Capt. J. A. Hartman, Legion Liason Officer, Is Dead

Capt. John A. Hartman, 45 years old, 7729 South Winchester avenue, liaison officer of the American Legion in area D, died yesterday at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital of pneumonia which followed injuries he suffered in an automobile accident last Wednesday. During the war Capt. Hartman served with the 108th ammunition train in France. He was a member of the board of appeals of the veterans bureau. Surviving Capt. Hartman are his widow and one daughter.

Court Continues Hearings on Objections to Subway

Judge Ross C. Hall yesterday continued hearings on the objections of State street property owners to special assessments for subway construction until May 31. The postponement was by agreement between the city and the property owners, to await the ruling of the Illinois Supreme court on two cases in which the validity of the subway ordinance and the traction unification ordinance are attacked.

Mrs. Rosanna Lee, Widow of Lumber Pioneer, Dies

Mrs. Rosanna Lee, 85 years old, died Sunday at her home, 1002 Washington street, Evanston, after a short illness. She was the widow of Joseph Lee, pioneer lumberman, who died in 1923. RITES FOR DOLLAR TOMORROW AT SAN RAFAEL, CAL.

Ship Owner's First Job Paid $6 Month.

San Rafael, Cal., May 16.—Capt. Robert Dollar, 88, veteran of the shipping and lumber industries, who died at his home here early today, will be buried in the Dollar vault, Mount Tamalpais cemetery, Wednesday afternoon. Funeral services will be at the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. John Jefferson Conoles officiating.

The "Grand Old Man of the Pacific," whose name is carried to the far corners of the earth by his fleets of merchant ships, drifted quietly away on his last long voyage as sorrowing members of his family watched at the bedside.

Born in Scotland.

Capt. Dollar was born in Falkirk, Scotland, on March 20, 1844. When he was 14 he went with his father and brothers to Quebec and began work in a stave factory for $6 a month. He became a chore boy in a lumber camp and in his spare time learned to figure and write. The year 1886 found him in charge of a crew of men running logs near Ottawa.

He married in 1874 and settled in Bracebridge, Ont., and two years later he ventured out on the great ice expanses around Georgian bay to establish new logging camps. Later he was in the lumber business in the upper Michigan peninsula until 1888, when he moved to California.

Starts Shipping Business.

It was there he became interested in the shipping business and purchased his first ship, "Newsboy," of 300 tons as an adjunct to his lumbering operations, and he made his first venture in the China trade with the "Arab" in 1901. By 1921 the Dollar Steamship company had an imposing fleet and nineteen offices in various parts of the world, including Japan, China, the Philippines, Straits Settlements, India, Russia, and Greece.

In addition to controlling coastwise ocean travel along the Pacific states, his steamships were the only American passenger vessels running to the orient. He also had important interests in freight and passenger steamships running to Alaska. He was president of the Dollar Steamship company, Robert Dollar company, Admiral Oriental company, Dollar Portland Lumber company, Canadian Robert Dollar company, and director of the American International corporation, Anglo-London and Paris bank, and the San Francisco Javings bank.

Cop Wins a Battle with Eagle in Police Station

Sergt. William J. McAuliffe of the Pekin police station was working at his desk in the station squad room yesterday when a bald eagle flew in the window and attacked him. The sergeant got a broomstick, with which he knocked the bird out. Tying it up, he gave the eagle to Policeman Lawrence Bodaerka, 5557 South Richmond street, who asserted he was going to make a pet of it. The bird had a wing spread of four feet.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

Poor Edna

Some Girls give-in so Completely!

The man she was keen to see, but she had to phone that she was "indisposed." How flat the excuse had sounded! He wouldn't know what was wrong. She didn't know about Midol.

Why doesn't every girl who has such a hard time every month adopt this simple, harmless discovery that makes suffering just a memory? Tiny tablets that banish such pain!

Midol is not a narcotic, but it does banish suffering during the painful period, or from headaches, colds, etc. It acts quite harmlessly, but effectively; complete comfort in five to seven minutes. You will get this relief regardless of how hard a time you've always had. These tablets don't hinder the normal periodic process in any way. All drugstores have them. Just ask for Midol.

J. C. LLEWELLYN, SCHOOL BUILDING ARCHITECT, DIES

Joseph C. Llewellyn, architect and nationally known designer of school buildings, died at his home in La Grange Sunday, at the age of 77.

Mr. Llewellyn was a fellow of the American Institute of Architects and was born in Philadelphia in 1855. He was graduated from the University of Illinois with the degree of bachelor of science in 1877. He came to Chicago in 1893 and began the practice of architecture.

Travel Books Are Pleasant, but Dangerous

They Stir Up Spirit of Wanderlust.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

I CAN'T imagine anything more alluring at this moment than sitting in a deck chair watching the sea seem to move slowly up to touch the rail, as it does on a calm day, and as slowly sink away from it.

CLARA E. LAUGHLIN

About this time every year wanderlust grips the souls of most of us. Some men and women must be in love or be miserable. They demand the excitement, the thrill of even an unhappy affair. [Modern novels are full of such people, and they are looked upon as romantic figures.] There are others who get an analogous renewal of their spirits and their selves through travel.

Laugh if you must at this old gray head, but it is a fact which any born traveler will confess that meeting a new scene gives them a thrill which contacts with few new human beings ever give them. Hardship, bugs, stings, bad food are no more annoying than the gaucheries or the selfishness of the beloved is to the infatuated lover, and for much the same reason, because travelers and lovers are both bewitched.

One of the born-est travelers I ever met is Clara E. Laughlin of our town, who has written more enlightening and knowledgeful travel guide books than any one to date. Baedecker gives you facts, but Clara Laughlin gives you facts plus exactly the kind of fancy which makes the difference between a guide for the feet and a guide for the spirit. Together, incidentally, they make an invincible trio of guide, philosopher, and friend, with Miss Laughlin playing the dual rôle of friend and philosopher.

Starts New Journey.

It is appropriate that Miss Laughlin's latest volume, "So You're Going to Ireland and Scotland" [Houghton Mifflin], should be published tomorrow, for by that time she and the two nieces for and with whom she wrote the "Where It All Comes True" travel series for children will be at sea on the beginning of another material gathering jaunt. She sails today. She admits that if she has written of Ireland and Scotland even more alluringly than she wrote of France and England and Italy and Germany and Austria and Spain in the earlier volumes of the series, it may be because, although she was born in this country, "her father and mother were Irish and she is Irish too"—and Scotch-Irish at that.

Mary Margaret McBride is another born traveler. She and Helen Josephy have already made it plain that "London Is a Man's Town," "Paris Is a Woman's Town," and "New York Is Everybody's Town." Now they tell us all about "Beer and Skittles" in a volume subtitled "A Friendly Guide to Modern Germany" [Putnam]. And it perfectly lives up to its name, giving the reader tips which only a friend usually takes the trouble to give one. No one need yearn in vain for beer [with any possible accompaniment] nor for skittles in any of the common or esoteric forms if he will consult the Misses McBride and Josephy. That is, if he consults them where beer is the national beverage. Consulting them in this land of the free [if scarcely to be called the home of the brave] is, like consulting Miss Laughlin's book, at once fascinating and tantalizing; fascinating because they all make everything sound enchanting, and tantalizing because we haven't, no matter how much we wish for them, the wings of a dove to fly away.

Being Thrifty and Seeing Paris.

Apparently one needs only slightly more of worldly goods than a couple of dove wings to have the "Password to Paris" [Morrow], according to Edward A. Acheson. He gives excellent and alluring "Advice for the Thrifty." Incidentally he says of "So You're Going to Paris" that "Clara Laughlin's standard guide book on where the things are hasn't suffered a bit from being famous; it's still the best."

E. M. Newman takes his readers on a trip "Seeing London" [Funk & Wagnalls], and he helps them to see it not only with words but with countless photographs. Reading the book is almost as good as sitting in at one of his famous travel talks.

"The English Lakes," by W. T. Palmer [Farrar & Rinehart], not only describes the historic and literary association of the lake district but it tells how the famous walking tours and climbing expeditions are done, for those who are thus hardy.

Well, London, the English lakes, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, and Paris would make a luring little jaunt just about now, but, glued to a desk chair, books are better than nothing, even if they do fill one with lust—wanderlust.

Women's Clubs at U. of C. Report Drop in Pledges

Perhaps it's because of the depression and perhaps it's because the rules are too strict, but the fourteen women's clubs at the University of Chicago announced yesterday that they had altogether been able to pledge only seventy-seven new members, about half the usual number. New rules, which went into effect last summer, prevent the fall rushing of freshmen. Men's fraternities will have to go under the same rules next fall and fraternity heads said they feared they would be unable to get pledges enough to run their houses unless the faculty relents and grants easier pledging and rushing conditions.

Prepare Camp Algonquin for Vacation Rush

Two Thousand Poor Will Visit Beauty Spot.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Nearly 2,000 mothers and children who are victims of poverty will be given vacations this summer at Camp Algonquin. The camp, located on the Fox river 45 miles northwest of Chicago, for years has been supported in part by contributions of TRIBUNE readers.

Mrs. Astrid Save, the superintendent, announced yesterday that the haven will open on June 21 to receive the first visitors. The camp is administered by the United Charities of Chicago.

Yesterday the pink wild crabapple and the white hawthorne were found shaking their petals in the thickets. Myriads of purple violets bloomed in the draws, mingling with wild geranium, shooting stars [rare in Illinois], May apples, trillium, shad, and choke cherries. A wild duck rode the gentle waves of the river, and in the high trees the song of brown thrasher, red start, catbird, flicker, and wood thrush merged into a bird orchestra. The deep blue grass billowed in the wind and summer clouds raced overhead.

Nature was ready for the first consignment of city guests—but not the camp buildings.

Hammer and saw in the eager hands of unemployed men were fast putting the cottages, the dining hall, the ice house into first class condition. Workmen had lowered the water pipes below the freezing level so that eventually the camp may serve the needy the year around. New cement sidewalks connected THE TRIBUNE dormitories. Excavation had been completed for a basement under the refectory which will serve for a playroom and furnace room in a year around program.

Up on the meadow above the administrative building work has begun on a tennis court. Not far away is Farmer Nickels' garden planted to cabbage, spinach, carrots, turnips and such. These will be served to camp visitors this summer. Everywhere was a feverish activity in preparation for the hospitality that will mean much to mothers and their broods.

"The needy families will be benefited by camp life this summer as never before," Mrs. Save said. "One woman, the mother of eight children under 13 years, saw me in the charities' office the other day. 'Mrs. Save,' she said, 'I do anything. I wash, I scrub if only I come to camp with my children.' The parents of this family once owned their own home. After the ravages of unemployment and illness, vacations in Algonquin will do much toward rebuilding morale."

Although the budget has been cut this year, Mrs. Save said the camp will operate at full 500 capacity all summer. Mothers and children will visit the camp for two week periods, returning to Chicago so that others may come. A group of 100 undernourished children will spend the entire summer in the Harlowarden section, a staff of nurses, dietitians and teachers in charge of their activities.

"We are trying to spend as little as we can outside regular operating expenses but we will need twenty-four new beds and mattresses to replace some that are past mending," Mrs. Save said in discussing the camp needs. "Another thing that is sadly needed is an instantaneous heater for the dishwashing machine. We are hoping that some good friend of the camp can come to the rescue."

The cost of vacations is slightly under $10 a person for two weeks. The Chicago and North Western railway provides transportation free of charge, and many of the staple foods are the contributions of Chicago and neighboring business concerns. Contributions to the Camp Algonquin fund will be welcomed this year more than ever before. They must be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Oldtimers of West Side Schools Will Meet on Saturday

The annual banquet of the Sumner alumni, a group of oldtimers who attended several west side schools more than fifty years ago, will be held Saturday evening in the Hotel Sherman.

Organized as a literary society in 1875 by pupils of the Brown and Hayes elementary schools, the Sumner alumni transferred their group to the West Division High school. It became inactive after 1880. Of the original 117 members, fifty-eight are dead. Only eighteen are still residents of Chicago and regular attendants at the annual dinner.

Gay Graduates Are Very Busy with Shopping

Select All Important Dress of Youth.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

GAY young graduates will swarm in all the shops these last few days of May, shopping, as seriously as brides, for graduation wardrobes and all the necessary extras that make a perfect memory of the last weeks of school. At eighteen or thereabouts the eternal feminine is well trained in any flair for clothes. And while there will be days to come when the selection of a frock or gown will seem a matter of life or death to a good clothes hound, nothing will ever be so thrilling as the just right graduation dress. Gowns may come and gowns may go the way of other fragile creations but the allure of white organdy or voile or eyelet embroidery lingers long in the memory of youth.

Father and mother may be in the dumps and doubtful of unplumbed futures, but the crisp young modern pursues her carefree way with all the unswerving faith in the world that "beyond the Alps lies Italy" and youthfully dreams of glamorous worlds which she will conquer, blissfully unconscious of the pessimists who probably were born old and disillusioned.

But, with an age old feminine intuition, every graduate to be selects her clothes before the battle, for with them the backbone stays starched, without the right kind she droops and lags behind the triumphal march of her competitors. Watch them as they shop . . . as they reject, or accept or go into close conference with others regarding the fashion rightness of new clothes. Happily for the peace of mind and comfort of all concerned these young shoppers know what they want long before they enter the shop for what they must have . . . you'll see them everywhere inspecting new clothes that have been carefully selected for their approval by understanding and youthfully clever buyers who also know what the young, slim fashion-wise should wear.

And though a few insurgents clamour for color, the most knowing shoppers buy white and wear white with a somewhat precocious wisdom that only youth can be colorful in white, that only slender silhouettes can retain their slimness in white. It's harder than any chemistry quiz to decide between ruffles or tucks, between starchy crisp organdies or clinging voiles . . . it's a strong young mind that knows and can't be changed from quantities of lace to frocks without any other frills than a few yards of dainty embroidery.

The most formidable test of all is the one of trying to decide what is the right answer for the dress that will best complement young faces and equally youthful coiffures and slight girlish figures. But the wide and varied selection is awaiting them now in all Chicago shops; clothes with nice unassuming, and in many instances, quite startlingly low price tags that will salve the souls of bill payers, masculine and feminine.

White costume slips, cleverly copied from mother's bias cut models, perfectly cut and fitted and trimmed most engagingly with fine lace or bits of hand work, or severely simple ones without any decoration are ready to slip under the graduation dress . . . lovely white hose or the new summer nude shades in chiffon or lace are also priced for budding budgets . . . white footwear, pumps, sandals, and T-strap pumps of white, kidskin, mesh material, linen, or crêpe.

And last but not the least of all the graduating glories, the white woolly polo coat which can be worn all summer.

All these are waiting breathlessly for the great moment when doting daddys and rather tearful mothers watch a platform full of white clad figures say good-bye to school.

Drama Critic Sees an Opera; It's a Mistake

"Don Pasquale" Is Grand, Not Comic Type.

"DON PASQUALE."

An opera by Donizetti, given at the Blackstone theater May 16, 1932, with Vittorio Trevisan as star, under the management of Henry and Edward M. Beck.

THE CAST.

Don Pasquale	Vittorio Trevisan
Dr. Malatesta	Emery Darcy
Ernest	William Miller
Norina	Florence Tennyson
A notary	Martin Albrecht
A butler	Harrison Clark
A maid	Ann Jordan
A cook	James Harding

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Deluded by representations to the effect that "Don Pasquale" is a comic opera, I went to the Blackstone theater last night to do my duty. Comic operas are in my line of work, and I have been collecting them assiduously for years. I discovered, however, that this venerable composition which is several laps past its one hundredth birthday, is not a comic opera according to my definition of that form of lyric amusement. It is a "grand" opera—at any rate, a baby "grand." Mr. Moore, the music critic, is the proper specialist to deal with it, and my own comment should come under the heading of "opened by mistake."

"Grand" opera, whose decline and possible fall is now giving much concern to our civic leaders, is for me a conspiracy entered into by a large group of accomplished musicians—singers, fiddlers, horn blowers, drum beaters, orchestra leaders, etc.—to blur, disguise, obscure and render unintelligible a specimen of dramatic authorship called a libretto. To the votaries of this ritual words mean nothing—absolutely nothing. The communication of an idea across the footlights is contrary to all the traditions of the art, and if a singer should dare to attempt it, he or she would be promptly drowned out by an extra loud blast of trumpets. Furthermore, in the practice of "grand" opera, acting means little; stage direction is considered unimportant; and scene design clings to a technique of the seventeenth century.

The production of "Don Pasquale" in English, masquerading as a comic opera, follows the classic formula of "grand" opera with admirable fidelity. The friends of opera attended last night's premiere in force and applauded in the right spots with zeal. But why, I kept asking myself, was I in attendance as a connoisseur of this sort of thing—I, to whom words mean something, who like to understand the story of a play as it runs along, whether to musical accompaniment or not? My night at "Don Pasquale," crowding the music critic out of his seat, must be charged up as an error in my fielding average for the season.

By studious attention to the pantomime of the singers, as Donizetti's jaunty music rippled along, I gathered that De Wolf Hopper's great grandfather, in his old age, had entered into a marriage contract with "Peaches" Browning, now a gunman's moll, much to the irritation of her lover, who was Mickey Walker dressed up for a cakewalk. That these two, aided and abetted by Dr. Moriarity [Sherlock Holmes' arch enemy] then proceeded to bedevil the doddering old gentleman into a stroke of apoplexy. And that this sort of thing was an old Spanish custom, regarded as good clean fun in the days of Cervantes and Lope da Vega.

Mr. Trevisan, a veteran of the Civic and Ravinia opera companies, is rated in opera going circles as a sidesplitting comedian, technically called a "basso buffo." This staging of "Don Pasquale" marks his first appearance in English, although he and the rôle, in its native tongue, are old friends.

It seems, however, that Mr. Trevisan has begun to practise his art in the vernacular too soon—or too late. His use of English, whether in song or recitative, is purely tentative. He would have been more intelligible if he had used Italian or Esperanto. Nevertheless, he is an amiable old "buffo," although not much of a "basso," and his audience appeared to regard him with high affection.

The other principals—Mr. Darcy, Mr. Miller, and Miss Tennyson—are well routined singers of opera in English and their voices give the friends of opera no reasonable grounds for complaint. The orchestra, under the baton of Giacomo Spadoni, another veteran of Chicago opera seasons, handled Donizetti's happy score with spirited effect. The plumage of the little show, borrowed from the warehouse of the Civic organization, is handsome.

Mayor Cermak Boosts Concert for Bohemians

All boxes have been sold for a concert to be given in Orchestra hall tomorrow evening for the benefit of three Bohemian charities, the Bohemian Charitable association, the Bohemian orphanage at 5061 North Crawford avenue, and the St. Joseph's orphanage at Lisle, Ill., Mrs. Frank Fara and Mrs. Thomas Filas, co-chairmen, announced yesterday.

MRS. FARA.

Mayor Cermak, honorary chairman of the Bohemian Charitable association, made the first purchase of boxes for himself and three daughters. A block of 100 seats was purchased by Msgr. Innocent Kestl of the Blessed Angel parish for Sister Magela's Choral society.

Two youthful prodigies, Joan and Jeanne Halamicek of Hollywood, whose father and grandfather were closely associated with music in Chicago, will be presented. Joseph Halamicek, the grandfather, was a pioneer member of the Theodore Thomas orchestra. The concert is being presented by the Bohemian Woman's Civic club.

Autogiro Trip Is Thrill for Lake Forest

Duncan Hodges and Wife Fly from East.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WE HEARD so many interesting bits yesterday that we'll put them all together and give them to you in one big dose instead of stringing them out piecemeal and making a "story" out of each one.

First of all, had you heard that Duncan Hodges and his wife, the former Sarah Brewster, flew home from Washington Sunday, not in an airplane, but in an autogiro? They left Washington Saturday, spent the night somewhere in Maryland, and finished the journey Sunday, landing at the Pal-Waukee airport late that afternoon, much to the excitement of all their Lake Forest friends who no longer find traveling by airplane particularly thrilling, but who were thrilled at seeing an autogiro land.

There has been so much talk pro and con about Lake Forest's horse show this summer that for a time one did not know what to believe, one person saying there would be no show, the next one declaring there would be one.

Donald B. Douglas, who was to have been in charge of it, says he is planning none, but that perhaps John T. Pirie and some of the other men would arrange one. Mr. Pirie says Joseph M. Cudahy is the person to whom to talk, and from his secretary we learn that there will be a show, but the date is not set yet. There will be no dog show in connection with it, however.

Mrs. R. M. Curtis Heads Alumnae.

Mrs. Robert M. Curtis [Doris Russell Barnitz] was elected president of the Alumnæ Association of the University School for Girls at a recent meeting and is busy with the other alumnæ planning a gala affair for reunion next month with movies, tableaux, etc. Mrs. Howard Linn is active in making the plans.

"Judy" Walsh and Katharine Kales have been studying interior decorating and they both plan to go in for it seriously when they finish their courses. Ruth Holloway of Glencoe also has been studying the art of interior decoration, but she elected to study in New York instead of Chicago. She will return to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Holloway, at their Sheridan road residence, next month. Margaret Hamill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Hamill of Winnetka, who made her debut last winter, is working hard down at the Juvenile court—and liking it!

Mrs. J. Andrews King of Lake Forest is to be hostess to the Scribblers for their annual "field day" on Thursday, the 26th of this month, but what the program will be, we don't know for sure and we wouldn't tell you if we did, for the Scribblers keep their programs as a surprise.

Chloe Watson, daughter of the Cornelius B. Watsons of Winnetka, is leaving tomorrow for the east. She will spend June week at Annapolis with Walter Blatchford, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Blatchford, also of Winnetka.

Julia Kramer Debut Plans.

Miss Julia Kramer, the Le Roy Kramer's only daughter, is to make her debut at a tea on Saturday, Oct. 29, at the residence of her parents, 1320 North State street. Miss Kramer, who will be graduated from the Wheeler school in Providence, R. I., on June 2, will remain in the east for the graduation exercises at West Point, June 5 to 10, and for commencement at Bowdoin college at Brunswick, Me., on June 23.

Her mother, who will go to Providence with Mr. Kramer for their daughter's graduation, will remain with her for the festivities at West Point and Bowdoin, and then they will join Le Roy Jr. and Henry at the Kramer's summer place at Harbor Point, Mich. The boys will go to Michigan as soon as the Latin school is out, around June 10. Le Roy Jr. is to enter Lawrenceville next year to prepare for Princeton.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. and her daughter, Miss Florence Crane, will depart tomorrow for their summer estate at Ipswich, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane, who went to New York last week, will return to Chicago in about 10 days. They will remain here until July and then will go east to be with Mr. Crane's mother and sister during the late summer.

The Earle J. Zimmermans of 2340 Commonwealth avenue have taken the Wacker place at Lake Geneva for the summer. The Gardiner Hammonds, who had the Wacker place last year, have taken the Frederick H. Bartletts' estate for this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter and their dog, Sandy, are at their Lake Geneva residence for the summer.

The James Minottos, who have been visiting the Huntington B. Henrys at 1500 Lake Shore drive since they came to town from their Arizona residence, are now with the Alden B. Swifts in Lake Forest. Mr. Minotto is here seeing about the rodeo for the Century of Progress, and although matters are not "cinched," it looks as though he would have this concession at the exposition.

Summer Plans, Travel News.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newton of the Belmont hotel have taken Mrs. Thomas W. Ritchie's house on the Indian Hill club grounds for the summer. Mrs. Ritchie's summer plans are indefinite, but she is staying temporarily in the house of her son, Leslie S. Gordon, next door to her own house, getting it in order to be occupied this summer by Mrs. Gordon's aunt, Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt of 1411 State parkway. The Gordons moved to Ridgewood, N. J., last fall.

Mrs. Keene Addington, who spent the winter at the Whitehall, has moved to the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest for the summer.

Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick is back at her apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive from the Johns Hopkins hospital and her friends are all de-

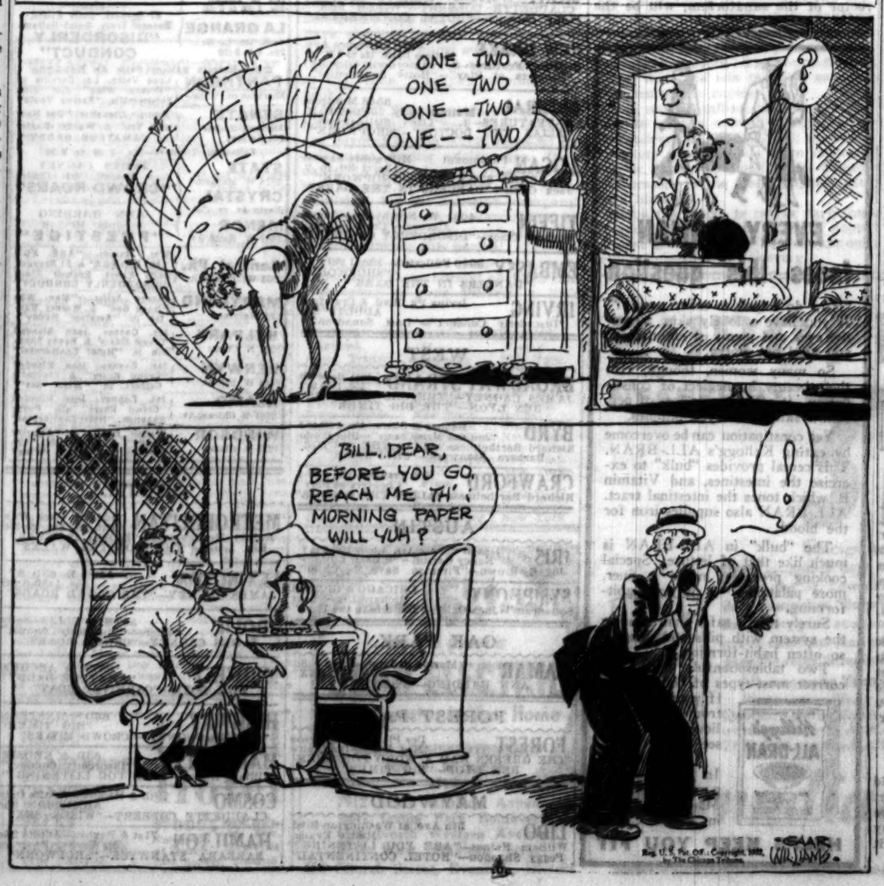
A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE



Sudden Love

By
ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young existence between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but is unable to help them spiritually or physically. Cynthia, the oldest, has had a tragedy in her life. Lew, a year older than Esmee, has had little from life. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns Esmee she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy.

INSTALLMENT II.

AN UNMANAGEABLE LOVER.

The next day Jimmy had rung her up at the office and asked her out to dinner. Esmee had never had dinner with a man. She could not resist that. He had taken her to an expensive restaurant. He had been suave, polite, very, very attentive. Only in the taxi on the way home he had kissed her, and she had been angry, and he had shrugged his shoulders.

She had thought in those days that she could manage him. She had been sure he was in love with her, and the knowledge of having so handsome, so assured and competent a lover had elated her. He had taken her to dinner again, to a play, for a long drive on Sunday to a roadhouse celebrated for shore dinners. He had made her dance, and she had picked up the new steps with remarkable aptitude. With him she had learned to feel a little at ease in restaurants; he had brought into her forlorn life something stirring, vital and gay.

"But why? Aren't you my girl?"

It had troubled her to keep these meetings a secret from her beloved Lew. She was by nature truthful, candid and unsubtle. But she had remembered Lew saying that she would "make trouble" and she could not endure that. Time enough to tell him when she and Jimmy were engaged.

But though Jimmy often said he loved her, and was always wanting to kiss her, there had been no talk of marriage. Until one evening he had taken her for a drive. He had parked the car in a lonely road, and he had set about the business of love making with a new persistance. His audacious and resolute caresses had frightened her and made her angry. She had struggled vigorously to free herself, and at last had jumped out of the car.

"I—I just hate this!" she had cried with a sob.

"But why?" he had asked, getting out and standing beside her, his voice tender. "Aren't you my girl, Esmee? Aren't we going to get married, baby?"

He had been what she called "nice" for the rest of the evening. He had driven her home and only kissed her once more in the lobby of the apartment house. And she had run upstairs, radiant, joyous, and told her mother and Cynthia that she was engaged. She had told Lew the next morning, and he had been furious.

"I don't believe it!" he had shouted. "And even if it is true, you're not going to marry that fellow."

That had been three months ago. Jimmy still said, "Well, aren't we going to be married, baby?" when she repulsed his too ardent caresses, but there was no ring, there were no plans, no talk of the future. All her elation, her pride, had gone. She no longer felt herself, triumphantly, the adored girl selected by the handsome and popular Jimmy Consadine. She felt sometimes more like his victim. . . .

She was not even very sure that she loved him. She was attracted by him, but reluctantly, almost resentfully. When he was "nice," gentle toward her and friendly, holding her hand and talking to her, she was wonderfully happy with him, but directly he became more ardent, she was alarmed and angry. And never sure, never trustful, never off guard with this lover of hers.

"Dinner, girls!" called Mrs. Sully, cheerfully.

"I don't want any," said Cynthia at once.

"O, come on, Cyn!" her sister entreated. "Come in and talk, anyhow."

"The tablecloth makes me sick!" Cynthia cried. "And whatever she's got is burned. I smelt it."

"Well, it's better than nothing," said Esmee.

For Esmee was always a little hungry. She set off in the morning after a cup of coffee and a roll; her lunch was another cup of coffee and a sandwich, and she came home to whatever dinner Mrs. Sully had had money enough to buy, cooked with cheerful casualness. She was ready to believe that this life was worse for her sister. Cynthia was older. She could remember the better days more vividly. She had had a tragedy in her life, and moreover, she was an artist and therefore more sensitive. . . .

They sat at the dinner table, those three, Mrs. Sully, slatternly and stout, yet with the light of her lost beauty still upon her, her eyes, her smile infinitely tender for these children of hers whom she loved beyond measure, yet could not protect or guard, could not even feed wisely and well. Facing her was the tragic and lovely Cynthia, smoking all the time, staring ahead of her, not to see the awful tablecloth, and between them sat Esmee, with her softly rounded cheeks, her dazed, sweet smile. She told them about her invitation and they were profoundly interested.

"Maybe you'll meet some one . . ." Cynthia said.

"I'll wash the dishes," Esmee said.

"No, pet," said Mrs. Sully. "Not with Jimmy coming."

Cynthia smiled scornfully and Esmee blushed.

"I wish he wasn't coming here," she thought.

But when he wanted to come, he came. He would certainly propose going out somewhere, though, and that was a comfort. She looked forward, with a sigh of relief, to the bright glitter of a cabaret or a speakeasy, the smooth speed of a taxi.

She changed her dress, put on a dark georgette with a wide white collar, made her wild hair neat, and shut herself into the bedroom, pretending to be occupied. For she always made Jimmy wait a few moments, a pathetically transparent device. She heard him try to ring the broken bell, and then knock, heard Cynthia go languidly to open the door.

"Hello, Jimmy!"

"Hello!" came his voice, resonant, vigorous, curiously charming.

She let him wait in the sitting room for ten minutes by the alarm clock, then she went down the hall, walking languidly, like Cynthia.

He was sitting on the sofa with the broken springs, and smoking, his knees crossed, his arm lying along the back. He was, as always, fastidiously dressed, in a dark suit that fitted marvelously to his slim, muscular body. He was so handsome, so arrogant, and so utterly easy. . . . He did not rise as she entered; he never did, and a sort of despair seized her.

"Hello, baby!" he said, and raising his eyebrows, glanced significantly at the open door which led into the dining room where Mrs. Sully and Cynthia sat reading.

"I can't!" thought Esmee. "I won't shut that door. It would look . . . Cynthia would think . . ."

She sat down, and tried to chat pleasantly. But Jimmy answered only in monosyllables. He was furious because she would not close the door. Very well. Let him be!

"I'd like a smoke myself!" she said airily.

He tossed his pack of cigarets to her. It fell on the floor and as she stooped to pick it up, tears rose in her eyes. Then he threw over a box of matches that landed on her knees. She had just struck a match when her mother appeared in the doorway.

"I may take a little nap," she said, and closed the door.

There was a moment's silence, and it came into Esmee's heart that her mother, who loved her, was pushing her into Jimmy's arms.

"Come over here by me, baby!" he said.

"I won't," she answered, and he rose, pulled her to her feet.

"You're a cold little devil!" he said, as she tried to push him away. "Sit down here by me." He drew her down on the sofa beside him and put his arm about her shoulders. "Don't you love me, baby?" he asked, with his cheek against hers. "Not a bit?"

"No!" she cried, with a sob. "You make me miserable."

He smiled. He didn't care what she said if she were in his arms.

"Sweet baby . . . Don't love me a bit?"

"I don't know . . ." she answered. "Sometimes . . ."

He stroked her hair, looked into her face with his steady, smiling glance.

"I love you all the time," he said. "You're my girl. Even when you treat me like this . . . Don't I get one kiss?"

She gave him a hurried, impatient kiss on the cheek, and tried to draw away from him. But he held her fast.

"Baby . . . Come down to my place. You've never seen it yet . . . Come on, baby . . . We'll have a little drink . . . I want you to see my place . . ."

He had suggested this before and she had refused, as she refused now.

"No! I don't want to!"

"Baby, dear . . . Esmee . . . Why? . . . You're my girl . . . Aren't you darling?"

'Tis with our judgment as our watches, none
Go just alike, yet each believes his own.—Pope.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Crazy kids! The things they can think of to do! And the rapt, headlong assurance with which they set about doing them, blissfully blind to possible unhappy consequences . . .!

If you've had no experience with wild, untrammeled Youth in the throes of a Big Idea, you'll label "Roadhouse Murder" as an impossible story, but if you ever were acquainted with the sort of cub reporter whom I once knew, you'll realize that the exceedingly nutty actions of the youth known as Chick Brian are quite within the bounds of probability.

The Palace movie is somewhat of a three ring circus. It's a newspaper-crime-mystery affair, strongly lighted by romance. His desire to marry sweet Mary Agnew, the police inspector's daughter, whose father considers him a "nobody," is the spur that goads Chick Brian on to the peculiar actions which consume much of the picture's footage.

Chick and Mary have to sneak away to be together. On one of their forbidden rides—which occurs just after Chick has fallen down on a story for the Star—they are forced to take shelter from a storm in a lonely roadhouse. Here they happen upon a crime which fires young Brian with the idea which brings his paper such a raft of exclusive news and himself a peck of trouble.

Eric Linden and Dorothy Jordan are excellent in the leading rôles. Considering their youth, both play with unusual poise and intuition. Miss Jordan, I'm sure, will be a great emotional actress some day, if she has proper coöperation. Supporting rôles are ably enacted—with the exception of Roscoe Karn's impersonation of a city editor. He's about the phoniest sample that the "newspaper cycle" has produced. As a matter of fact all the newspaper "atmosphere" is fakey, barring the characterization of that daffy kid reporter.

"Roadhouse Murder" has some suspense and some laughs. It's not a powerful picture, but has the advantage of being somewhat "different"—and it DOES get better as it progresses.

Good stage show at the Palace this week! Features—Leo Carrillo in person, Albertina Rasch dancers, and the Roxy Ensemble.

"ALONE."

Produced by Soyuzkino, Moscow.
Directed by Trauberg and Kozintzev.
Presented at the Punch and Judy theater.

THE CAST.

The Girl	Elena Kuzmina
Her Fiancé	M. Sobolevsky.
Village Chairman	S. Gerasimov
Rich Man	Van Luy Sian

KIND: Soviet propaganda. Silent, with musical score and English titles.
TYPES: Arresting.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Striking as to composition, but not always clear.
ACTING: Earnest.
DIRECTION: Ditto.
STORY: A young communist teacher, happy in the thought of her approaching marriage, is detailed by the soviet to teach in a lonely Siberian village. At first she rebels, but zeal for the good of the cause overcomes personal considerations and away she goes to face all sorts of hardships, discouragements, and almost give up her life. The ending is not exactly a happy one, but it carries a ray of sunshine.
SCENERY, SETS, COSTUMES: Most interesting.
See you soon.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Asks for Bed, Baby Clothing.

"Do you think you could get us a bed? The one we have is falling apart. Also I am in need of nightgowns for myself and clothing for the baby I am expecting in another month. This is our first baby and my husband has not worked in three months. We are so worried we don't know what to do.

"MRS. S. M.

This expectant mother could look forward to the coming event with great happiness if she were not beset with the problem of providing for the child when it comes. Perhaps you can help her by giving any baby garments your infant has outgrown.

Baby Carriage Needed.

"I should appreciate it if you could get me a baby carriage or stroller. My husband is out of work and we cannot afford to buy one. The baby needs fresh air and he cannot get it without a buggy. MRS. L. K."

Maggy Rouff Adds Touch of Romance to Afternoon Suit

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—By way of proving the adage that old things are best; every set of Paris collections brings up some memory of bygone style eras. Of course, it is true that if some of the present day styles that owe an influence to some other period were set side by side with the original, they would look about as different as the first automobile from an Hispano-Suiza. But the similarity is always to be detected, nevertheless.

Evening modes have always been the ones to be most affected by these revivals. This is natural, as even our 100 per cent efficiency, high pressure methods of life today let up a little in the evening. At least, sufficiently to allow a few romantic styles to creep in the mode. But lately even daytime styles have succumbed to this powerful influence, and modernized directoire fashions for day are strong.

The afternoon suit is the newest recruit to this camp, and Maggy Rouff makes it in silk, like the one in sketch today. It is in navy blue marocain and has a hip length jacket, which is cut circular at the bottom. This fitted jacket, with its wide revers, fastens on two glass buttons placed horizontally at the center waistline. There is a bright red silk flower for a boutonniere. The straight, narrow skirt is seamed from its high waistline to its hem, in the center front.

Sanatorium Meeting.

The Chicago Junior league of the Los Angeles sanatorium and the Chicago Builders, the senior group of the same organization, will hold a joint meeting this evening at the Congress hotel. Dr. Karl Fischel, medical director of the sanatorium, will be the guest speaker.

EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B, which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Marie Dressler Talks to Polly, Makes Apron

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 16.—There is a sequence in the current Marie Dressler-Polly Moran story, "Prosperity," which requires Marie to sit at a sewing machine and sew and sew and sew while she talks and talks and talks to Polly.

Marie's talking and sewing part in the picture was completed and she removed the goods which she had been sewing on for so long and which nobody—not even the director—had, up till then, paid any attention to.

"When Marie handed the goods to her young friend, Anita Page, in the picture the goods assumed the shape of a completed apron, which Marie had started and finished during the picture.

Billie Dove is circulating plenty these days; at the Cocoanut Grove she was seen dancing with George Raft, the new rage who plays killer in gunman pictures so elegantly that all the girls get interested and then after getting interested they find themselves dancing with him.

Greta Garbo has laid in a supply of velvet shorts for tennis, and turtle necked sweaters and cords also.

Willie Collier was reminiscing over old stage days with Lionel Barrymore off to one side of the sound stage at MGM studio.

"Do you remember that little theater at Perth Amboy, N. J.?"

"Do I remember it," Collier said. "It was so small that every time I shook my head the entire foyer was filled with dandruff."

Mildred Lloyd is excited; she and Harold are planning their first European trip together this summer, the plan being to take a villa on the Riviera and using that as a base to travel all over all the Mediterranean countries.

Old Coverlets to Be Placed on Exhibition

Families Treasure Work of Early America.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

India's holy man, Mahatma Gandhi, made news the other day when he gave up his old fashioned loom in favor of a modern sewing machine. His decision to discard the pioneer implement marked the passing of one of the last vestiges of the ancient art of home weaving which left the scene three or four generations ago when water and steam power replaced "mother and daughter" power, as Horace Bushnell puts it.

What this modernization will mean to Gandhi, you may speculate—with us one of the many results of the transition has been the loss of that ancestral bedspread, the coverlet. And what a pity!

For in a charming way is there anything to equal a canopied bed topped with the colonial coverlet of a grandmother several times great? There are imitations today, to be sure—lots of them—but the originals, into which women wove all their artistry, are fast becoming museum pieces, or at least, household treasures only to be unpacked on special occasion.

Among the old quilts preserved here in Chicago, is the handsome blue and white coverlet owned by Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick. It traces its ancestry to the third or fourth generation of McCormicks in Virginia—furthermore its design has been reproduced for the cover of the year book of the Colonial Coverlet guild presided over by Mrs. Frank L. Richardson. The weaver was Robert McCormick, born at Walnut Grove, Va., in 1780.

Chicagoans will have an opportunity to see it one of these days soon, for with a group of valuable coverings owned by the coverlet guild, it is to be placed on exhibition in the new building of the Chicago Historical society in Lincoln park.

Another coverlet that migrated from Virginia to Chicago by way of horseback is that of Mrs. F. D. Carpenter, woven, as she tells, by a great-aunt who sheared the sheep, carded and dyed the wool, and designed the quilt. Then there are the signed and dated coverlets always sought eagerly by collectors. Mrs. Frederick T. Avery has one with the name "Philip Weaver, 1840. G. Nicholas, Chambersburg, Ohio," worked into its design of roses, stars, birds, and trees. Mrs. Herbert W. Condit has another, a coveted white counterpane.

While on the subject, a few more facts about the coverlet. As you probably know, it's the product of the period between the revolutionary and civil wars, especially the early nineteenth century. Truly called American, it has, nevertheless, an old world ancestry as ancient as history itself. For the women who first wove this type of quilt came from Huguenot France, Scotland, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, and England, bringing with them their knowledge of weaving and spinning, the art of making dyes, and many traditional patterns.

The earliest coverlets were made in the home—by the women of the family or perchance by the itinerant weaver who traveled the countryside very much as the old pewtersmith and cabinetmaker. Then came the professional weaver with his elaborate patterns comparable to those of some of the fine European tapestries—and later still the jacquard loom, which, because of its complicated operation, took weaving from the home to the factory. Double woven quilts and patterns screaming patriotic mottoes and the portrait of Father George became the rage.

But to the real coverlet lover, give one of the home woven blankets—simpler in design, less perfect in texture, yet with a charm of color, individuality, and eloquence all its own. She will be better satisfied!

ENGAGEMENT

Dr. and Mrs. N. S. Mayo of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Elmer W. Freytag, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Freytag of Chicago. Miss Mayo is a graduate of Hollins college and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Freytag was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The marriage will take place in June.

Joins Father at Annapolis

Miss Sally Holmes, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Ralston Holmes, has been visiting her grandfather, William A. Bond, at the Webster hotel. She and her mother, the former Rachel Bond, left yesterday to join Capt. Holmes at his new post in Annapolis. Miss Holmes made her debut in Rome when her father was stationed there.

Little Praise GoesLongWay with the Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Every time I get a letter from "Heartsick" or "Discouraged" wives (and they are always heartsick or discouraged) whose husbands are unaffectionate and miserly of praise, I wonder what's the matter with such men. Why are they so shortsighted? For their own sakes why don't they force themselves to slip a kind word, an admiring one, a hug and kiss now and then? There is no other investment a man can make that will guarantee him the same returns in wifely love and pure domestic felicity. It's the only kind of oil that will keep the domestic machinery HUMMING. Not running—humming, I repeat.

Perhaps these husbands, and they constitute no small number, according to years of wives' testimony, do not realize the great psychological need a word of appreciation and praise is to a woman. We all need it, more or less. We all love best the friend who supports our ego with the cheering word.

But to the woman at home whose day is more or less isolated, whose work at least does not get public acclaim and whose temptation is to think her domestic duties an inferior grade of work, her need for appreciation and praise is great. She needs it as much as she needs food. There are few of us with such perfect self-confidence that praise become a superfluous gesture. And where there is a tendency to a sense of inferiority the approbation of some one becomes imperative.

Is it so hard to tell a wife that she is a good cook? To tell her that she is good to look at? That she is one grand girl? To wind your arms around her waist when you're telling her? To throw in a great big hug and kiss for good measure?

It's more than probable that many of the undemonstrative men are victims of childhood disappointments over demonstrations of affection. Suffering rebuffs from parents or from the womankind with whom they were associated, they closed up for life. It may be that many of them wish they could express the word and the affection and suffer because they can not.

In this event wives could help develop the more human qualities by their own outspoken appreciation of such good qualities as the man possesses and see if that won't pry the tongue loose.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Clement L. Despard of Rumson, N. J., gave a dinner party at their home on Saturday evening in honor of Mrs. Ellen McCarter Violett and Mr. Nelson Doubleday, whose engagement has just been announced. Among the other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ford Johnson, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. McCarter Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hinton Perry are giving a tea at their studio apartment, 51 West 10th street, on Wednesday afternoon, May 25, to show the recently completed portrait of Miss Betty Newell, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Newell of 1075 Park avenue, which was painted by Mr. Perry.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, who has recently returned to her home in Lake avenue, Greenwich, Conn., from a three week stay in Washington, will entertain a house party over Memorial day. Her guests will include Mrs. Dorothy Demuth Watson of Washington, Richard Spooner, and Bruno Huhn.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Kennelly, who passed the winter at their town apartment at 100 Central Park south, are opening their place at Lawrence, L. I., this week.

lighted to know that she is making a rapid recovery. Her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Quinn, accompanied her from Baltimore.

Mme. Antonin Bathelemy has arrived from Paris for a visit of 6 weeks with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh of 900 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. MacVeagh, who went east to meet her mother, is not giving any parties for her just yet, but just as soon as Mme. Barthelemy is rested up after her journey she'll invite her old friends in Chicago to renew their acquaintance with her.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Barnes of 227 East Delaware place moved out to their Barrington cottage yesterday for the summer.

William Hornes at Barrington.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dodge Horne Jr. have closed their apartment at 25 Cedar street and have taken the Cochran Supplees' estate in Barrington for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Supplee, who spend the winters at the Webster hotel, are going east for the warm weather months, but they haven't yet decided their destination nor time of departure.

The Herbert P. McLaughlins and the Frederic McLaughlins II. moved out to Lake Forest last week for the summer. The Herbert McLaughlins and their infant son have settled in the Charles W. Isaacs house on North Green Bay road, and Frederic and his bride are occupying the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William A. P. Watkins on Wisconsin avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee are going east next month, he for his fortieth class reunion at Harvard and she to see their daughter, Mrs. Helmut H. von Erffa, and Mr. von Erffa off for Europe on June 25. The Follansbee family will go to their camp on Long lake, near Traverse City, Mich., about July 1. Mr. and Mrs. Follansbee Jr. will spend the summer there, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Cremin returned yesterday from a visit in New York with their son, William A. Cremin, who is a student at Princeton.

Mrs. Forgan in New York.

Mrs. James B. Forgan of Lake Forest will return on Friday from a fortnight's stay in New York. Her daughter, Miss Louise Forgan, went to New York from Farmington to spend the week-end with her.

The charities to which the Friendly Aid society contributes will benefit from the society's annual card party to be given this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Hotel Stevens. Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland is chairman of the committee in charge.

Robert Hall McCormick, Hayden B. Harris and Graham Aldis are the new members of the board of directors of the Alliance Francaise elected at the meeting held yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the society in the Fine Arts building.

The three retiring members, Arthur T. Aldis, William Burry and Alphonse Campion, have been made honorary board members. The other directors are Edward H. Bennett, Henri C. E. David, Moise Dreyfus, George W. Dixon, Theodore W. Hoch, Henry C. Morris, William A. Nitze, Henry J. Patten, John W. Root, Ira Nelson Morris and Orville J. Taylor. Arthur Aldis is president, Mr. David secretary, and Mr. Dixon treasurer.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey was elected "presidente du conseil d'administration," and she appointed Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis chairman of the distinguished guest committee, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick chairman of the library committee, Miss Helen Rend music chairman, and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston publicity chairman.

Mother Wants Information on Adolescence

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "I hear a great deal about the problems in connection with adolescent boys and girls. My children have not yet reached that age, but I would like to know something about the physical changes that take place at that time. Can you recommend a book?"

Answer: Yes, there is an excellent book of which the first three chapters are devoted to the whole physical development during adolescence. It is called "The Adolescent—His Conflicts and Escapes," by Schwab and Veeder, published by D. Appleton company. Dr. Veeder gives a background of information as to the physical characteristics during this period.

You are wise to prepare now to understand these normal changes that will occur in your children a little later on.

Sampling Foods, Eating Between Meals Sure Way to Gain Weight

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Cooks aren't born fat. They just get that way as would you and I did we spend our day tasting of this and that! Nor will I say that all cooks are fat. Some of them, like other vocationists, could taste food from morning until night and never put on weight.

Nevertheless, the person who is around the cook stove much is tempted into weight. In my experience women who do their own cooking and take a joy in it are more rounded darlings than those who scorn the oven and its products. I notice, too, that when I stay around home all day I eat more because I have the desire to eat between meals.

And it is this eating between meals that puts on a lot of woman-weight. This is especially true of those who have to do with the preparation and cooking of food in the home, as already hinted. Candy, let's say, which unquestionably has its place in body maintenance, may take on an ominous phase where the box is within reach around home. "Just one more little piece," you say. "I shouldn't take it—but it's only one piece."

Candy should be eaten at the end of a meal and counted for its caloric value into the meal total. Anyway, it should be considered as food and part of the maintenance portion for the day.

Nuts may hold the place of preference on the living room table. Nuts are good to eat, understand, but two Brazil nuts count 100 calories; twelve to fifteen almonds mount up 100 calories; butter nuts [four to five] equal 100 calories, and eight to twelve walnuts and pecans add up the same calorie total.

The three meal a day system is the safest and surest way to reduce. The afternoon tea habit may be indulged if you keep count of what is eaten and deduct the amount from the dinner following. So with the bridge feast, too. Reckon it in terms of three-a-day meals. Forego its equivalent in calories at the next meal if you can't resist your hostess' tempting spread.

If you get restless around home and must take something, make it fruit or fruit juice. Tea or coffee in between meals seems to yearn for a bite along with it. The fruit juice stands on its own filling merit.

Oriental Poppies Do Well in Sunny Places in Garden

BY PAUL POTTER.

The Americanization of such oriental flowers as the poppy has been one of the peculiar delights to hundreds of gardeners in recent years. Native to Turkey and the high plains of Persia and Asia Minor, the oriental poppy has become familiar to midwest gardens only in the last twenty years or so.

As rather hardy perennials, the poppies do best in one location, although transplanting of clumps in the fall has not reduced the vigor of the poppies in several north shore gardens.

The poppies in a sunny spot of average garden soil, and are propagated in the fall from roots. The poppy flowers along with the iris in most gardens, and multiplies rapidly.

The most familiar color is the reddish to orange colored poppy. However, according to F. G. Isel, the range of colors now extends from crimson, scarlet, pink, apricot, cerise, salmon and orange to the white poppies with dark blotches.

Since the bloom is rather early and of short duration, the oriental poppy is best planted in a bed of annuals which succeed it in flowering.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, will leave tomorrow for St. Louis where she will address the Republican Women's club there. She will join the Vice President and Mr. Gann the end of the week.

Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont had with them over Sunday their son, Robert P. Lamont Jr., who returned last week from Russia where he discussed with officials of that government the business of cattle raising. Young Mr. Lamont started today for Colorado where he will join Mrs. Lamont on their ranch near Larkspur.

Mrs. Hastings, wife of Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, was hostess to a company of 40 at luncheon today at the National Woman's Country club.

Mrs. Clifford, wife of Col. Edward Clifford, formerly of Chicago, had charge of the arrangement of the exhibition of historic gardens in Georgetown which will be held Friday and Saturday for the benefit of Christ Episcopal church, one of the quaint and historic churches of that section. Col. and Mrs. Clifford have restored a picturesque garden in their new home at 3130 P street.

Tricks Provide Child with Daily Milk Requisite

Drinks with Gusto, Thinks It's Something Else.

BY MARY MEADE.

"My youngsters just can't choke down a quart of milk a day."

That was what a friend of mine said to me the other day. "And," she added, "my husband and I can't blame them, for we seldom get our pint a day. Nobody at our house likes milk."

And that set me thinking. There are, unfortunately, a good many people who, through suggestion or unpleasant association, have come to dislike milk. And yet every mother-dietition knows that milk must be brought into the diet—a quart for growing children and a pint for adults—each and every day. The problem is, how shall we manage this without causing a daily uprising and corresponding compromises or arguments?

Two ways there are, and each has real possibilities. The first is so cleverly to camouflage milk that it won't be milk at all to the rebellious ones—but au gratins, scallops, custards, soups, sauces, soufflés and puddings. Nothing new in that idea, of course, but you'd be surprised how many opportunities the cook overlooks for coaxing her family to eat milk rather than drink it.

But while it is possible by means of milk cookery to supply the necessary cups each day, it's really pretty much to ask of the average mother-cook, when, with just a little teaching and applied psychology obstreperous youngsters and oldsters alike can be persuaded that milk-to-drink is really a delicious and refreshing beverage.

And that brings us to our second scheme for spiriting milk into our families. Here are some of the ways mothers I know have taught children to drink milk: They have offered it to them in attractive glasses. [Those quaint old affairs with painted floral wreaths made a real hit in one family.] Or they offered milk flavored with fruit juices; they served it with straws; they let the child pour it from an individual pitcher; they told stories and showed pictures of little animals who had drunk milk and others who had not. In a great many cases children who had thought they didn't like milk learned to welcome their daily quart with real gusto.

But if these methods don't do the trick, then it's up to us to put that highly necessary milk in foods. One excellent way is to cook cereal in milk. For one cup of rolled oats we normally use from two to three cups of cooking water. For granular cereals, four to six cups are required. If one-half or even more of this water is replaced by whole milk it will be possible to serve from three-fourths to a whole cup of milk [solids and butter fat] in each serving of cereal. And I think milk-cooked cereals are much more delicious in flavor and texture than those cooked in water.

Most any vegetable makes a delicately flavored soup that little folk will eat when they might not touch the vegetable as a separate dish or drink the milk from a glass. Carrots, onions, cabbage, spinach, and a variety of other vegetables may also be cooked in milk. Dairy breads are on the market which contain, through the use of dry skim milk in their manufacture, high percentages of milk solids. Cottage and commercial cheeses and ice cream products may also be added frequently to the menu and will do their bit in raising the quantity of milk consumed. Junket, eggnog, and cocoa-flavored drinks give even more variation.

These two interesting desserts delight small folk and supply milk for everybody.

LEMON STRAWBERRY SHERBET.

1 quart milk
2 cups strawberry pulp
2 cups sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt

Add the strawberry pulp to the lemon juice in which has been dissolved the sugar and salt. Add the milk and mix well. Any curdled condition which appears will disappear in freezing. Pour into refrigerator freezing trays or freeze in ice and salt.

CHOCOLATE JUNKET.

1 quart milk
1 junket tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 ounces chocolate
Salt to taste

Melt the chocolate in one cup of the milk. Bring to the boiling point and beat till smooth. Crush the tablet and dissolve in the cold water. Heat the milk, salt, and sugar until lukewarm. Add the chocolate mixture and flavoring. When the whole mixture is lukewarm, 100 degrees F., add the dissolved tablet, stir thoroughly, and turn into molds or sherbet cups to cool.

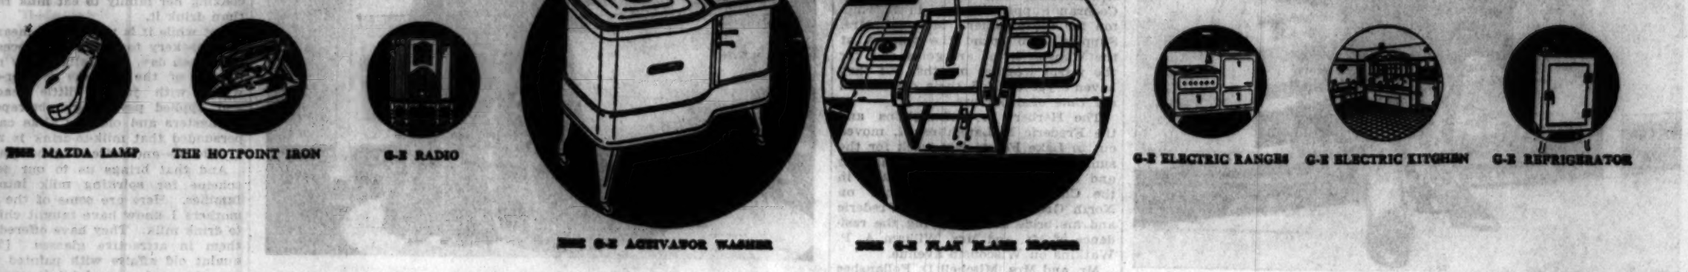
A Message TO CHICAGO WOMEN from GENERAL ELECTRIC



The makers of the Mazda Lamp, of the Hotpoint Iron, of G-E Radio, of G-E Electric Ranges and the G-E Electric Kitchen, of the G-E Monitor-Top Refrigerator, now present two revolutionary new G-E Household Products—the G-E ACTIVATOR WASHER and the G-E FLAT PLATE IRONER

THE COMPLETE G-E HOME LAUNDRY

YOU know G-E products. You know the Mazda lamp, the Monitor-Top Refrigerator, the G-E Kitchen. You know the resources and the engineering skill that made these products possible . . . that have made G-E merchandise outstandingly superior in every field . . . that have made the G-E monogram so familiar in every household in America.

GENERAL Electric now offers you another household help, one as important, one as far reaching in its effects on your daily life, one as sensationally different as each of the others . . . the G-E Home Laundry consisting of the new Activator Washer and the new Flat Plate Ironer.

BEFORE General Electric started to perfect a washer, the entire history of washing was thoroughly reviewed. History revealed one outstanding point . . . that the flexing or bending of fabrics and passing the suds and water through the opened mesh was the one correct way to wash. All other methods of removing soil, both by hand and machinery, were studied. No other method was so sure to get all the dirt. By gently forcing cleansing water through the meshes of the fabrics it was found that the particles of soil were forced out . . . without damage to the most delicate materials.

HOW to reproduce this certain and safe method of washing was the problem which confronted General Electric engineers. The ordinary agitation method, already in use, failed to flex and flush properly. After research, investigation and much experimenting General Electric perfected the ACTIVATOR which washes entirely by the Activation method—that is, by flexing the clothes and flushing out the soil by water action. The Activator is exclusively General Electric . . . and is found in no other washer.

IRONING has never been an easy job for housekeepers. That is why General Electric decided to perfect an ironer for home use. The ordinary ironing board long used in the home was a starting point for developing the G-E Ironer.

IRONING is accomplished by heat and pressure. There is no friction to pull or stretch fabrics when the flat surface ironing principle is used. Also, greater pressure is developed by this method than by a roll or cylinder. With these facts established General Electric engineers perfected the Flat Plate—the ideal ironer for home use.

THE Flat Plate is amazingly easy to operate, even by an inexperienced person, for it is merely natural ironing. The operator sits in a comfortable chair and controls the ironing or pressing by a little lever which applies the pressure. The heat is controlled, by two thermostats, to any desired temperature for any type of material. The operator, not the machine, sets the ironing speed.

WITH this General Electric Activator Washer and Flat Plate Ironer in the home, a complete home laundry is ready to turn dirty wash into clean, fresh, crisply ironed clothes at any time. So great are the savings in money, clothes, time and labor that a G-E Home Laundry saves more than enough to meet monthly payments.

TO enable you to receive the kind of service you rightfully expect from the G-E monogram, G-E has appointed a special distributor for G-E Home Laundry equipment in the Chicago area. This organization, W. D. Hess, Jr., Inc., maintains display and sales rooms in the Merchandise Mart and throughout the city.

VISIT their showrooms today. See for yourself the difference between the G-E Home Laundry and any laundry equipment you have ever seen before. No doubt you'll prefer to try this new G-E Home Laundry in your home. Just call Delaware 5313 and the complete G-E Home Laundry will be immediately delivered. There's no obligation and you'll learn what G-E has done to banish forever one of the great remaining household tasks.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 16.—Smead Jolley knocked out two great homers off Ted Lyons this afternoon to give the Boston Red Sox all their runs and enough to force the game into an extra inning. In the end, however, the White Sox won, 4 to 3, and Manager Fonseca's fading reputation as a trading genius was salvaged somewhat by the fact that Charley Berry, a chattel obtained in exchange for said Jolley, drove in the winning run in the tenth with a double.

Big Smead's first homer came in the fourth with none on and was of record dimensions, some 450 feet to the flag pole outside the fence in center field. His second homer came with one on and one out in the ninth and tied the score at 3 all.

It was the second start of the year for Lyons and the second time that Sox alumni have risen up to beset him. In his first start of the season, in Washington, nine days ago, it will be recalled by those who have been minding the Sox these last few weeks, Sheriff Harris, former White Sox, tied the score on Ted in the ninth, while Carl Reynolds and Moe Berg, also alumni, collaborated to bust it up for him in the fourteenth.

Two Doubles Win Game.

Today, however, Smead was the only alumnus doing any batting, though two others, Tate and Watwood, were present in the Boston lineup. As Jolley didn't come up again, Ted was able to win on that run in the first half of the tenth. With one out in the tenth Luke Appling stroked a mighty double to right center and scored when Berry walloped one to almost the same spot. And that run stuck. The Red Sox went out in order in their part of the inning.

So here are the White Sox in possession of a two game winning streak, here in dear old Boston where the lame and the halt of the American league are made to walk and the sick at heart are made happy. Two victories out of 18 games before they came to Boston. Two out of two games since arriving here. Do our Sox love Boston?

And if they win tomorrow the Sox will have won as many games as they have lost on this storm swept trip. Ain't that somethin'? And if they win again Wednesday before departing for home—but enough of this, we are all a-twitter, but must get back to our detail.

Errors Help White Sox.

Only six hits were made by each team, but the Sox had the good fortune to have two errors help them to two of their four runs, whereas Jolley had to knock those two homers to give the Red Sox any counters whatsoever. All three of the Boston runs were earned, however, for Smead's second homer followed a double by McManus. The Chicago Sox made only one error and it didn't even lead to annoyance.

In the first three innings only nine White Sox faced Durham as compared with 13 Red Sox who faced Lyons. The score, however, was 0 to 0 when the game entered the fourth inning.

Funk got a pass to start the fourth and went to third when Selph doubled along the left foul line. The runners held on while McManus threw out Seeds, but Funk scored and Selph reached third while Kress was grounding out to Watwood. Tate sought to catch Selph off third but hit him with the ball, permitting him to score before the ball could be recovered by McManus. Blue reached third when Webb muffed his high fly and scored when Fothergill scratched a hit off Rhyne's glove. Appling forced Fothergill.

Jolley opened the Boston end of the fourth with his first home run smack, but the next three batsmen were retired in order.

BURGOO KING.

PERHAPS those who thought there was not much class in the Kentucky Derby when it was run in 2:05 1-5 saw a better colt than they realized in Burgoo King, again winner of the Preakness Saturday. True, the Bradley son of Bubbling Over did not beat any better field than at Louisville, but he beat all that were sent against him, and that's about all you can ask of a horse.

Despite these two results, for neither of which was Burgoo King favorite, there still are skeptics. Even The Wake is not yet convinced that this racy looking chestnut is the equal of Twenty Grand, Mate, Gallant Fox, or Reigh Count of other years.

Two lines of thought came out of the Preakness running. One was that Burgoo King proved conclusively his superiority over Tick On at Pimlico. He came from behind and won by a head in a three cornered stretch run. Tick On, minus his Derby excuses of poor position, was beaten in that stretch duel. Tick On supporters, however, argue, despite his two defeats, that in this stretch drive Tick On sulked, then came again, was going fastest at the end and would have won in a few more strides.

Now, of course, if Tick On is going to be the Jack Sharkey of the turf that's another matter. But Jack Sharkey, despite his fistic ability, has not been a good money carrier in championship or near-championship bouts.

All these claims and counter-claims only whet interest in the American Derby at Washington Park June 18, the next spot where it is likely all three year old title disputants will meet.

We had arguments something like this last year about Twenty Grand and Mate, although the procedure was not the same. Mate beat Twenty Grand three times and was beaten twice, yet by some process of reasoning Twenty Grand generally is called champion. Perhaps that is because his earnings were greatest among the three year olds, $218,545. That is hardly sufficient reason, however, as Mate was only $4,000 less. Yet we, too, somehow felt Twenty Grand was the better colt.

Taxing Sprees.

Wake: The present taxing spree at Washington reminds me of the story my mother tells of an old minstrel in Scotland who was wont to wander the countryside. The gov'ment prohibited him from selling his rimes. So he would pluck a piece of grass from the roadside, sell it for a ha' penny, and give you a sheet of paper whereon was written any one of his myriad lyrics, one of which was:

O, they'll tax the butter,
And they'll tax the cheese,
And when the sun begins to shine
They'll tax the bugs and flees.

U. S. Enters 14 Golfers in British Open

LONDON, May 16.—[Special.]—Only 14 American professionals—the smallest delegation in years—have entered the British open golf tournament which will start at Sandwich June 6. Among the missing is Walter Hagen.

Hagen is reported to have cabled his entry from Detroit, but the lists have been closed and even Hagen's prestige is not expected to make the British officials forget precedent and accept a late entry.

Armour, Smith, Sarazen Enter.

Tommy Armour, defending champion; MacDonald Smith, and Gene Sarazen appear to be the only outstanding Americans on the list of entries released today.

The others entered are Walter Pursey of Seattle, who was 15th in the Thousand Guineas tournament last week; Joshua Crane, Brookline, Mass.; Gordon Smith, Palm Beach; Ross Thompson, Uniontown, Pa., and Ellsworth Augustus of Cleveland. The other Americans live in England. They include Stuart Scheftel, Douglas Grant, and the Sweeny brothers, students at Oxford.

Archie Havers, who won in 1923, was the last Briton to capture the British open. Bobby Jones and Hagen divided six of the eight titles won by Americans since that time. Armour and Long Jim Barnes accounted for the others.

HAGEN IS UNCERTAIN.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Walter Hagen, four times British open champion, is uncertain whether he will play in the British open, even if officials relent and decide to accept his entry cabled at the last minute.

"I wanted to be entered anyway," he said today, "but I don't know that I'll play if I get the chance."

FRANCE FINDS NEW NET STAR IN BEATING U. S.

PARIS, May 16.—[Special.]—France discovered a new tennis star in the informal series between a French team and one from the United States which concluded here today. He is Andre Merlin, who is No. 6 in the French rankings, but promises to replace Cochet, Borotra or Lacoste in the big three.

Merlin defeated Gregory Mangin, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, to clinch the series for France, 3 matches to 2. He won from Sydney B. Wood Jr., Wimbledon champion, yesterday, and paired with Christian Boussus to win the doubles. Wood conquered Boussus today, 1-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Johnny Baldwin to Lead Notre Dame on Court

South Bend, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—Johnny Baldwin, junior guard, was elected captain of the 1932 Notre Dame basketball squad tonight at the annual basketball dinner. Baldwin, a Chicagoan, prepped at Englewood High school. He was named all American high school forward in the Stagg tournament in 1929.

BIG 10 HIGH JUMP WINNER? ASK US SOMETHING EASY

Event to Be Decided by Width of a Hair.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

In nearly all of the 16 events on the schedule of the Western conference track and field meet, the finals of which will be held Saturday afternoon at Northwestern, it is possible to predict the champion. It is easy to pick the three outstanding athletes in 15 events. This, of course, will not detract from the games, since a team championship is at stake and five places will score points.

But there is one contest, the running high jump, which apparently is wide open with a half dozen or more boys, any one of whom may win, depending on the fraction of an inch that he is able to raise the bar on that particular afternoon above the best marks of competitors.

New Rivals for Shaw, Hackle.

The 1931 high jump title was shared last year by Cam Hackle of Minnesota and Ted Shaw of Wisconsin. Each cleared the bar at 6 feet 2 inches. Hackle and Shaw will be back Saturday [the qualifying trials will be held Friday afternoon], but there's no reason to believe that either is much better than a year ago. And contesting with them are others who at various times have jumped as high as last year's winning mark.

Shaw, captain of Wisconsin's team, probably is the best of the lot, but that assertion rests principally on his mark at the Kansas relays in 1930. That afternoon he leaped 6 feet 6 3-16 inches and immediately the word went out that Wisconsin had a sophomore jumper who before he finished competition might break the conference record of 6 feet 6 inches established in 1915 by Russell of Chicago. But Shaw failed to come within inches of that mark in succeeding years.

Murphy, Smith Threaten Captain.

In the conference indoor meet last February Shaw finished in second place behind the winning jump of 6 feet 2¼ inches by Bob Murphy, a team mate. Last Saturday Shaw tied with Barton Smith, another Badger athlete, for first place in the Wisconsin-Chicago-Northwestern meet at Stagg field. The height was 6 feet 1 inch.

Hackle and Bryce Beecher of Indiana tied for third place in the Big Ten indoor meet. Last Saturday at Champaign Beecher cleared 6 feet 2 inches to win the high jump in the Indiana-Purdue-Illinois meet.

Then there's Russell of Ohio State. He tied for fourth with Corp of Wisconsin in the Big Ten meet a year ago. Both jumped 6 feet. Last Saturday in a dual meet with Michigan Russell jumped 6 feet 1½ inches to win.

Six Feet Easy for 'Em.

Nearly every high jumper entered can clear at least 6 feet. Look what happened in the Minnesota-Northwestern dual meet May 7 at Minneapolis. Rain hampered the track events, but the high jump was decided indoors. Five men tied for first place at 6 feet. They were Duggins, Olson, and Mandelbaum Read of Northwestern, and Hackle of Minnesota. Add Hochman of Ohio State and Osty of Illinois to the list and you have fairly authentic roster of the Big Ten high jumpers.

Receipts from the two day meet will be contributed to the American Olympic fund.

Grid Coaches Meet Friday.

The meeting of the western conference football coaches and athletic directors Friday morning at Evanston will be more important than usual. The 1932 schedules, of course, are completed, but the rotating football schedule which determined opponents, although the dates were set definitely from year to year, has expired. It is reported that the coaches and directors will formulate a new schedule which will hold for several seasons.

There will be two newcomers to the football coaches meeting, Ossie Solem of Iowa, and Dr. Clarence Spears of Wisconsin. Dr. Spears, in reality, is not a newcomer, for he coached at Minnesota before going to Oregon. Wisconsin does not have an athletic director since the recent resignation of Irv Uteritz.

GANGWAY! HERE COMES THOMPTON

Harold Thompton is the sprinter Minnesota is counting on to win the 100 yard dash in the Big Ten track and field championship meet at Northwestern Friday. He has run the century in 9 and 7-10 seconds.

KILBOURNE JABS WAY TO DECISION OVER EVERETT

Jack Kilbourne, erstwhile claimant of the Australian middleweight championship, overcame a 22 pound weight disadvantage with cleverness and speed last night and jabbed out a ten round decision over Buck Everett at White City. The bout was the windup of Promoter Mique Malloy's show, which drew 1,000 spectators and gross receipts of $891.

Everett, a graduate of the Golden Gloves ranks, had difficulty landing effective punches on the agile Kilbourne, who stepped in, jabbed, and retreated before his heavier opponent could counter. Kilbourne won six rounds and two were even. Neither boxer received a damaging blow.

Ross Beats Peterson.

For action the Phil Ross-Herb Peterson bout of six rounds at 160 pounds was the best on the program. Ross took the decision, but Peterson, who substituted for Al Engle of Michigan, handed out almost as much punishment as he received.

Solly Dukelsky was assigned the task of beating Joe Barlow in a four rounder at 147 pounds, but a last minute switch brought on Jimmy Murphy. That did not alter the plans of Dukelsky, who pounded out a decision.

Grosbek Gets Draw.

In the other matches Pete Pantaleo whipped Buddy Kerns in four rounds at 126 pounds, Bob Groshek and Fred Langford, 160 pounders, fought four rounds to a draw, and Vergil Bemi took a four round decision from Johnny Reba, another lightweight.

Ralph Ranson won the 15 minute wrestling bout from Jack Powell.

Tuffy Griffith will appear at White City next Monday, Malloy announced.

CARIDEO VISITS MISSOURI TO DISCUSS OFFER

Columbia, Mo., May 16.—[Special.]—Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame football star, was in Columbia today conferring with University of Missouri officials on the possibility of becoming head football coach next season.

Carideo came from Lafayette, Ind., where he is assistant coach at Purdue university. He admitted that he has been offered the Missouri position, but has not decided whether he will accept. Carideo said he expected to remain in Columbia for three or four days.

WHO'S GREATEST MANAGER? WHY, JOE M'CARTHY!

New York, May 16.—(AP)—If baseball managers can go around telling people what player they esteem, and vice versa, Wesley Ferrell of the Cleveland Indians sees no good reason why the players should not enjoy the same privilege.

The star righthander, therefore, was pleased today to give the Associated Press his personal nomination for the greatest manager in the major leagues.

"It's Joe McCarthy of the Yankees," he declared. "He's my idea of a great manager, and why shouldn't I say so? I hardly know him personally, but I've watched the way he handles his ball club and that's what counts.

"Yes, we have a good manager, too. Roger Peckinpaugh knows how to get the best out of his team, but I still think McCarthy is the best in the bunch."

4th Straight Yank Shutout Ties Record

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—The fourth straight shutout went into the books of the New York Yankees today, to tie the all-time American league record. Their victims were the Cleveland Indians and the score was 8 to 0.

The existing record was established by the Indians in 1903 and tied by the Red Sox in 1906. Lefty Gomez was the pitching hero for the Yanks today, holding the opposition to five hits. The three other hurlers who collaborated in the record tying achievement were Charlie Ruffing, who blanked the Indians yesterday; George Pipgras, who shut out the Chicago White Sox last Saturday, and Johnny Allen, who set down the St. Louis Browns without a run last Wednesday. BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The annoying Phillies tried to choke off the Cubs with another home run potion yesterday, but it didn't take effect. The homers moved the Phils into a lead of one run in the ninth, but the North Siders bounced back in their half with four singles which were sufficient to produce two runs for an 11 to 10 victory.

The bat of the ever reliable Riggs Stephenson was needed to clean up a situation that throughout the afternoon had been an annoyance to Chicago hopes. Bob Smith had been somewhat of a failure. So had Jakie May as well as Bud Tinning. Finally in the eighth Pat Malone appeared to add another chapter to a struggle such as only the Phils can bring about. Pat's mates, inspired by the same Stephenson, managed to present him with a two run lead in the same inning but in the ninth he lost it and more besides when Chuck Klein's and Hal Lee's second homer, wrapped around a muff by Lance Richbourg, culminated in three runs.

Mr. Elliott Gets Bumped.

When the Cubs concentrated on their final splurge, large Jim Elliott was pitching, he having been the successor of a couple of workers who held no terrors for the Cubs. The first dent in Elliott's armor was a single to right by Herman. English slapped a single to deep short. Moore bunted with the idea that it would be a sacrifice, but the Phils were a long time deciding what to do in the emergency, so Johnny beat it for a hit, filling the bases with none out. Mr. Elliott was asked to take his large frame elsewhere and fidgety Phil Collins was summoned as a final hope. Stephenson smashed a high bounder over second to drive in Herman and English with the needed runs.

A momentary two run lead for the Phils in the second was the result of three out of four hits. Hurst opened the attack with a single to right and Whitney pushed one safely through short. Mallon bounced to Jurges for a double play and Hurst ran home. Then Gen. Lee Jr. whacked one into the left field bleacher for his first homer. McCurdy, the ex-Illini and also a member of the vast colony of one time White Sox employés, then doubled to left and Grabowski walked. That was all for Smith. May strolled forth and concluded the disturbance when G. Davis, batting for Brickell, bounced to English for a force play.

Richbourg Bats In Two.

The Cubs produced the two tying runs in their half. Hartnett singled to right with one out and Grimm hit a one bagger to left. A popup to Bartell put Jurges out of the way. Grabowski walked May and that was the Philly pitcher's big mistake. Richbourg singled to center to score Hartnett and Grimm. A pass to Herman filled the bases again, but English's grounder to Hurst halted the fun.

The Phillies didn't have to overexert themselves to break the 2 to 2 deadlock with a run in the fourth. Whitney started the inning with a drive that bounced off the right field bleacher screen for three bases. Mallon walked. Moore had to chase back toward the center field fence to capture Lee's fly and Whitney sauntered home after the catch. May squirmed through the remainder of the inning without trouble, but the worst was yet to come.

Going into the fifth May fanned G. Davis. Then complications arose. Bartell walked and Klein knocked some paint off the right field screen with a triple, Bartell scoring. A single to right by Hurst shoved Klein across

AURORA GALE IS JUST A BREEZE TO PREMEDITATE

Outsider Comes Home to Pay $46.58.

BY FRENCH LANE.

It is quite natural to refer to the racing at Aurora yesterday as the afternoon of the "big blow."

Such a wind was whipping up the back stretch into the faces of the nags as steeds it blew the dope bucket over into an adjoining meadow and thus scattered the figures of the most careful handicappers over a wide territory.

As a result the horses that had been suspected of having fine chances of galloping home to victory didn't do it. That stout wind made 'em stop. It was almost as strong as a Kansas twister and it would have slowed up an express train, but it didn't seem to slow up some long shot outsiders who were winning before a baffled crowd of some 4,000.

Premeditate Pays $46.58.

Even our Mr. Harry Herendeen of Chicago added woe and misery to the situation when he sent out the 3 year old Premeditate to capture the best race of the day and pay $46.58 for a $2 ticket. It made Mr. Herendeen and the folks who thought Premeditate could penetrate the wind and win very happy.

And why shouldn't they be happy? Collecting such dividends in this day and age should make anybody, not only happy but hilarious.

Essential and Dollar Princess were the ones that were stoutly backed and they finished second and third, respectively, but they couldn't stop the stretch run of Premeditate, which didn't seem to mind the wind. Just to add to the confusion, T. P. Martin was in the saddle on Premeditate. He has been riding in losing form at Aurora. But he was right back in brilliant stride when he got Premeditate home ahead of Essential, which had the energetic C. King in the saddle. The margin of victory was a head after she had been in front almost from the start.

Upsets Start Early.

Lucy Menifee with J. McCoy in the saddle was the one to upset the favorite players in the opener, but Honeyman won for them in the second and started a daily double, which wound up on Bag Smasher. The winning combination had been picked by most of the daily double speculators. When Bag Smasher staged a courageous run in the stretch to beat Perfect Play by a length, 160 holders of winning tickets lined up at the window and each got $27.12. There was $5,000 in the pool.

The railbirds at Aurora still are talking about the brilliant race Dr. Freeland ran at Aurora on Saturday when he captured the Century of Progress handicap at 6 furlongs in the good time of 1:12.

It appears as if this one time noted handicap star has regained his best form. He will have plenty of followers when he moves over to Washington Park next week to meet up with such good horses as Gallant Knight, Pittsburgher, Lady Broadcast and other flyers that will campaign there.

When in tip top form Dr. Freeland has been able to beat the best horses in training at any distance. He was far off his best form on the Pacific coast all winter but his race of last Saturday indicates he is ready to tackle the best.

PIMLICO RACING PROGRAM NETS CHARITY $32,632

Baltimore, Md., May 16.—(AP)—Clear skies and heavy betting turned $32,632 into the unemployment fund at Pimlico race track's charity program today, track officials announced.

After the last of seven races had been run it was said at the track office that $449,649 had been wagered by 12,000. Of this amount $22,485 was taken by the track as a cut for the fund.

An additional $10,000 was obtained today through the contribution of the services of all track employés.

Fort Wayne Defeats South Bend, 15 to 7

BAG SMASHER saved ground around stretch turn and, catching the early leaders in the final furlong, held away to the finish. PERFECT PLAY, probably best, was shuffled back in the early running and forced beyond the center of the track at the stretch turn, but closed with a rush. J. GEORGE raced DECEPTIVE into defeat, but weakened near the end.

PREMEDITATE dashed to the front in the early stages and, opening up a good lead, held ESSENTIAL in a driving finish. ESSENTIAL moved up to challenge rounding the stretch turn, but although finishing well could not hold the winner. DOLLAR PRINCESS saved ground in the stretch.

At post 3 minutes. Won driving; place same.

BAY LEAF remained close to the early pace set by LAPIDARY and, catching the latter tiring in the last furlong, took command to win easily. FORTUNA MIA saved much ground in the stretch and held POP CORN. Latter gained steadily in the last quarter and was going well at the nish. BAG O' ROSES closed a gap.

Went to post at 5:15. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

ULTRAMARINE was in close quarters and bumped rounding the first turn, but picked his way through several openings after leaving the back stretch to come to the inside of UNDERDUN in the run home and best him in the final drive. UNDERDUN went to the front on the outside after going half the distance and held on gamely when challenged. LADY BIENVILLE finished fast.

RAIN BRINGS REDS SHOWER OF HITS; GIANTS LOSE, 6-2

Sixth Inning Nets 6 Runs; Lucas Pitches Well.

Cincinnati, O., May 16.—[Special.]—Masterful ball as pitched by Red Lucas and a sixth inning rally which scored six runs enabled the Reds to defeat the Giants today, 6 to 2. Lucas, in scoring his sixth victory in seven starts, held the Giants to three hits although one of them was a home run in the third inning by Koenecke. Not a Giant reached first base in the last six innings.

The sixth inning rally took place in a heavy shower and was twice interrupted before the inning was over. The Reds bunched five hits with two passes off Freddie Fitzsimmons to score.

When Umpire Bill Klem first called time the bases were filled in the sixth with one out. He had to pull his watch on the Giants to send them back to the field. Hafey then doubled against the wall to tie the score. A pass to Lombardi and Heath's single sent two more runs across the plate before the rain came on again. After the shower Lucas cracked out a single which scored two more runs.

Cubs Score 2 in Ninth; Beat Phillies, 11-10

the plate. Whitney singled to left and Hornsby promptly informed May that nothing more was expected of him for the day. Tinning concluded the inning with Mallon's pop foul and three strikes for Lee.

The Cubs were involved in a quantity of action in their part of the fifth, but all they got out of it was one run, which wasn't enough to bring about a tie. Moore produced the run by opening the attack with his fifth homer of the season. He slapped it into the right field seats. Then Stephenson walked, Hartnett popped up, and Grimm singled to center. A fly to center put Jurges back on the bench. When Tinning walked Grabowski was taken out. Bolen stepped in and the three hopeful base runners died on Richbourg's roller to Mallon.

Phillies Make It 7-3.

Tinning was a bit wild in the sixth and the Quaker City employés converted his generosity into two runs, making the score 7 to 3. Four wide pitches put McCurdy and his red shirt on first base. Bolen fanned, but G. Davis walked. Bartell scored both with a triple to right center. Klein's foul to Hartnett and Hurst's liner to Moore cleaned up this disturbance.

One of these runs was grabbed back by the Cubs in their half on singles by English and Stephenson, and there might have been more if Hartnett hadn't bounced into a double play.

The episode which blossomed into three runs and a 7 to 7 tie in the Cubs' seventh got under way with a pass to Grimm. Jurges slapped a single into center. Zack Taylor batted for Tinning and hit one well enough, but Whitney speared it close to third and stepped on the bag to force Grimm. Mallon let Richbourg's grounder seep through his hands. Jurges scored on the blunder. Taylor went to third and Richbourg to second. Herman's infield out was good enough to let Taylor score. Englis then tripled over third and Richbourg went home, but Elliott was rushed forth to pitch and the uprising subsided.

Cubs in Lead—for While.

Stephenson assumed responsibility for starting the Cubs on the road to a two run lead in the eighth. He banged one of Elliott's supposed fooers through second for a single. Hartnett sacrificed and Grimm doubled over short to send Stevie home. Jurges bounced a single through a spot where Bartell couldn't reach it and Grimm scored. Malone, who had replaced Tinning, conserved his energies by sacrificing, but Richbourg let the rally expire by bouncing to Mallon.

The first hint in the Phils' ninth that a two run advantage wasn't enough came when Klein led off with his right field homer, making six for him this season. Hurst lifted a high fly to right and Richbourg camped under it, but couldn't hang on. A wild pitch put Hurst on second, an infield out moved him to third, and he walked home ahead of Lee, who boosted his second homer of the day into the right field crowd. Then the Cubs concentrated on the afternoon's most important episode.

RUDY DUSEK PINS STEVE SZNOSKY IN FRONTON MATCH

Rudy Dusek, Omaha, Neb., heavyweight wrestler, defeated Steve Sznosky in the windup match of the program at the Rainbo Fronton last night in 33 minutes and five seconds. Gino Garibaldi, Italian heavyweight, won a decision over Hans Kampfer, Germany, in the 30 minute semi-windup bout.

In other matches Hans Steinke pinned Wee Willie Davis in 15 minutes and five seconds with a headlock; Roland Kirschmeyer threw Hans Bauer with a flying body scissors in 14 minutes and 27 seconds, and George Trugas was awarded the decision over Joe Cox in the opener.

KNITTING? YES, BUT SLOWLY

Root Is Choice Today; Others Need a Rest

Even though he boasts six starting pitchers Manager Hornsby has no choice other than Charley Root today. The five others must have more rest. The Phillies probably will decide on Ed Holley, who was a Cub during the McCarthy régime.

Ki Cuyler, the Cubs' center fielder who cracked a bone in his left foot more than three weeks ago, was in the city yesterday to have a smaller cast fixed around the injured hoof. It will be almost another month before the fleet footed fly chaser is able to resume regular work.

Although the weather was satisfactory from the standpoint of comfort, the attendance was down in the vicinity of 6,500 yesterday.

John Heydler, the affable president of the National league, was among those present. He sat with William Veeck, the Cub president. Heydler tarried here on his way east from St. Louis, where on Sunday he watched the Braves spoil the Cardinal's ceremonies in raising the world's championship flag.

The Phillies did a good job of fielding behind the various pitchers. They were guilty of only one error, but it was properly timed for the Cubs. It helped them to three runs in the seventh.

Richbourg's muff, which opened the way to two of the three runs scored by the Phils in the ninth was on a high fly ball, close in. The high wind from the west caused the ex-Brave to get himself tangled up trying to make the catch. The same wind aided the homers of Klein and Lee in the same inning.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

By Betty Eckersall

[This is the sixth of a series of articles on prominent women golfers of the Chicago district.]

MRS. LESTER STERN.

Although Mrs. Lester Stern, defending champion of the Lake Shore Country club, originally had no serious aspirations toward titular golf, her defeat of Mrs. Harold Foreman, low handicap player of the club, and runner-up for the championship last year, has been the incentive for competitive ambition.

She is a conscientious golfer, and prior to each golfing season, takes a series of lessons. "I have been playing golf for ten years," said Mrs. Stern, who was in the midst of grooving wood shots, "but every year I seem to lose some accuracy with my iron shots, which can only be corrected by professional advice and practice. So, rather than spoil a good score, I just remain on the practice tee until my faults have been corrected.

"Right now, my game is certain to suffer, for I am just accustoming myself to a new set of clubs. Getting back to form is doubly difficult with the handicap of the new ball. This new ball is a great improvement on the green, and while I have not used it in competition I believe it will be instrumental in my shooting a game nearer par. It carries well in the wind, and because of its weight stays on the greens better."

Mrs. Stern has been an ardent player in intercity competition for several years, but at present is looking forward to the Western Women's Golf Association Western championship which will be held at Peoria, Ill., in August. "And if I am at all successful in this tourney, I shall in all probability go to Salem, Mass., in September to compete in the Women's National championships."

WHEATON NET TEAM WINS, 4-3.

Wheaton college tennis team yesterday defeated Armour, 4 to 3.

First Handicap Golf Tourney on Tomorrow

The Chicago District Golf association will hold its first handicap event of the 1932 season tomorrow at the Calumet Country club, 175th street and Western avenue. It will open a series of such competition to be sponsored by the C. D. G. A. throughout the summer and will give golfers their first opportunity to use C. D. G. A. handicap cards.

Midlothian Country club will hold its twenty-eighth annual Derby, one of the best known invitational golf tournaments in the country, on Saturday and Sunday. The smallest entry of the Derby within the last 12 years has been 162 players, but more than 200 golfers, many of them district stars, are expected to compete this season.

No entries for the Derby will be accepted after Thursday. Among those who have entered are Andrew Christ, for several years a prominent member at Midlothian and Olympia Fields, now located in Oakland, Cal.; Charles S. Hart, Ned Sawyer, Chick Evans, Rudy Knepper, Art Sweet, Jimmy Garard, Ike Lincoln, H. B. McGuire and Judge Howard Hayes.

The prize list will include low gross for each day, low net and second low net for each day, low net and second low net foursome for each day, and low gross foursome for 36 holes. The Derby committee is composed of David B. Johnson, John M. Timmons, Joseph B. Creevy, George A. Miller and Lloyd Maxwell.

The Prosperity club will hold its first annual golf outing Thursday at the Elgin Country club.

Cherry Hill Golf club announces that it will hold its first annual spring party in the clubhouse on May 28.

Lindblom 1-0 Winner; Title Games Drawn

Semi-Final Schedule

Following is the semi-final schedule for the qualifying teams of the north and south sections in the Chicago Public High School league:

Saturday—Schurz vs. Bowen, Mills stadium, 1 p. m.

Saturday—Fenger vs. Lane Tech, Mills stadium, 3:30 p. m.

May 24—Bowen vs. Fenger, Pullman field, 4 p. m.

May 25—Schurz vs. Lane, Logan Square park, 4 p. m.

May 28—Fenger vs. Schurz, Mills stadium, 1 p. m.

May 28—Bowen vs. Lane, Mills stadium, 3:30 p. m.

Lindblom High school's baseball team defeated Tilden, 1 to 0, in the final sectional game in the Chicago Public High School league yesterday at Normal park. Both teams will represent the central section in the semi-finals, which will start Saturday.

Tilden and Lindblom will face the west section's qualifiers — Harrison Tech, the champion, and Crane Tech, runner-up — in the semi-final round. The schedule for these contests will be drawn this morning in the league offices.

Set Dates for North, South.

The dates for semi-final games between the north and south divisions winners were set yesterday. Schurz, north section second place team, and Bowen, south division champion, will open the series Saturday at Mills stadium, Kilpatrick avenue and Lake street, at 1 o'clock.

On the same field Fenger and Lane Tech, north section champion and winner of the league title last year, will meet at 3:30 p. m. The series will be resumed next Tuesday with Bowen meeting Fenger at Pullman Tech field. The final game will be played between Bowen and Lane at Mills stadium on May 28.

The two survivors of the series will meet for the league championship on June 4. The site of the game has not been determined, but it probably will be at Wrigley field.

Lindblom Scores in Third.

A run in the third inning gave Lindblom its victory over Tilden. Frank Narbut held Tilden to three hits. Lindblom collected four off Healy. Score:

Lindblom	001	000	0—1 4 0
Tilden	000	000	0—0 3 3

Batteries—Narbut and Mellant; Healy and Karac.

WOMEN'S TEAMS MEET TONIGHT FOR CUE TITLE

Play for the women's pocket billiard team championship of Chicago will open tonight at the Kleckhefer Recreation with three teams of four players each competing for the Central sectional title. The Southern sectional final, with two teams entered, will be played at the Roseland Recreation tomorrow evening. The Western sectional will be held on Sunday, with four teams competing, at Schuneman's Milwaukee Avenue Recreation in the afternoon and Samuelson's Crawford Avenue Recreation at night. Thirty-six players will be in the three sectional finals.

The Kleckhefer Recreation team will oppose Bensinger's Congress and Mussey's Recreation this evening. The qualifiers follow: Kleckhefer's: The Misses Grace Smith, Adele C. Mueller, Marie Miller and Katherine Davies. Bensinger's Congress: Mrs. Bert Ames, Mrs. Mary Bendfelt, Mrs. Maud Konen and Mrs. Dell M. Dennis. Mussey's: The Misses Victoria Vacha, Marie Johnston, Kay Curtis and Mary Ramsey.

Bobolink Dons Wedding Finery; Seeks June Bride

BY BOB BECKER.

Look for the bobolink and listen for his "spink-spank-spink" song these spring days, when you get into the country to enjoy the flowers, fresh air, and birds which make May a month of color and song in Chicagoland. The handsome bobolink, now wearing his wedding suit of black, white, and buff, is an attractive bird resident in Chicagoland at this time of the year and he is singing gayly in the meadows.

A few days ago, when we were west of Wheaton, Ill., we found several grassy meadows where these merry birds were pouring out their notes, as they fluttered into the grass or sat upon telephone wires along the road. If ever a male bird was able to woo a mate not only by gay feathers but also with a melodious voice, the bobolink is that one. Lowell must have felt the gayety that is found in the bobolinks in May and June when he wrote:

"The bobolink has come, and like the soul
Of a sweet season, vocal in a bird,
Gurgles in ecstasy. . . ."

During our afternoon near Wheaton we sat for some time at the edge of a woods where we could hear the bobolinks in the meadows beyond the timber, and also listen to the songs of birds of the thickets and woods such as the towhee and the brown thrasher. The bobolinks prefer the open places and will build their nests in such locations. Inasmuch as the nest containing 4 to 7 eggs is a simple affair of grasses placed on the ground in an open field, both birds are careful not to betray the location. The male bird will not sing too close to the nest and the female does not leave it or return to it directly

There are few summer bird residents in Chicagoland that offer a more interesting migration story than the bobolink. This species doesn't winter with the redwings in the southern part of the states nor even in the West Indies. He launches out from Florida to fly far south in South America because he spends the winter in the great prairie country of southwestern Brazil and in the marshes of the La Plata.

Inasmuch as some of the bobolinks now get as far west as British Columbia for the nesting season, it means a flying trip of not less than 6,800 miles for those birds that spend the summer in the "out there."

W-G-N PRESENTS NEW BASEBALL SKETCH TONIGHT

"Big Leaguers and Bushers," W-G-N's newest sketch about the experiences of two rookie baseball players makes its air debut tonight at 9:30 o'clock. The sketch concerns the adventures of Rube Appleberry, a lean and lanky left handed pitcher from Posey County, Ind., and his pal, Tommy Malloy, fresh from college and trying to win a place on the regular lineup of the Panthers.

The third outstanding character of the sketch is MacConnell, the manager of the Panthers. Mac is the peppery, practical boss who rules his men with an iron hand. He is modeled after the late Knute Rockne, especially in his dressing room talks.

The sketch is written by Paul Fogarty, widely known writer and Louis Wolf, a former major and minor league player. Fogarty is best known as the author of that popular song "Betty Co-Ed."

PETROLLE'S BOSS JUST MUST HAVE HIS LITTLE JOKE

Billy Himself Is Butt of Hurley's Latest.

It was play day yesterday at Howard Carr's gymnasium on West Madison street, and a goodly crowd was there. The fans came to see Billy Petrolle swing a few gloves as he whittled his bulk down to 140 pounds, the weight at which he has agreed to meet Bat Battalino Friday night at the Stadium.

Petrolle obliged with three rounds against Jackie Davis, but the entertainment of the afternoon was furnished by Jack Hurley, Petrolle's manager. You wouldn't suspect Jack of such a broad sense of humor, particularly when his own box fighter was concerned. But it's in the records that Jack planted a "cracker" on Mr. Carr's telephone receiver in the snug little booth furnished by the Illinois Bell company. And then had his own fighter paged to answer to a fictitious call.

And Billy Came Out.

Petrolle wedged into the booth, picked up the receiver. "Bang," went the cracker, reverberating in the enclosure much as Petrolle imagined a 44 gun might sound. And Billy came out of the telephone booth backward so fast that no one could have caught up with him, not even Battalino.

Petrolle looked in action yesterday like he always looks in training. Rugged, determined, he moved forward with one desire, to smack his opponent. You can't figure this fight by gymnasium workouts and the fans know it. There have been no such crowds as gathered to see Levinsky and Walker prior to their bout last month.

Petrolle probably has an edge on Battalino in the public guessing. He stopped the former featherweight champion in 12 rounds in New York; but there are many who believe that over ten rounds Battalino will prove superior.

Listen to Mr. Barry.

Dave Barry, who saw Battalino box four rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium, offered a suggestion: "Battalino has won more return fights than any present day fighter. Bud Taylor and Eddie Shea whipped him, but when they hooked up a second time Battalino won." The inference is that Petrolle, winner two months ago, will lose Friday night.

Battalino exercised casually for two rounds with Harry Fierro and two more with Micky Genaro. There was plenty of speed in his drill and he pounded at the soft bag and pranced around the ring to conclude his workout. Battalino may retire one of these days, but not until he's satisfied he has no chance to win the lightweight title. One of Bat's possessions, of which he's quite proud, is a 2½ carat diamond, and diamonds are not for nonworking boxers.

East Chicago, Ind., will be well represented at the Stadium Friday night. The visitors are not concerned with Petrolle and Battalino, but with Micky Patrick, fellow townsman, who will fight Larry Udell six rounds or less.

The Illinois Athletic commission yesterday granted a license to the West Side Boxing club which will promote shows this summer at the arena at 21st street and Kostner avenue. The sanction was granted after a $5,000 bond was posted.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, will open the outdoor season on the west side against Harry Dublinsky on June 16.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, will start training today for a bout against Teddy Yaros at Pittsburgh May 31. The match is set for ten rounds over the title weight of 147 pounds.

Frankie Battaglia, Winnipeg, Can., middleweight, will be unable to box for an indefinite length of time, his manager, Ernie Fliegel, said yesterday. Battaglia injured his left hand against My Sullivan at St. Paul several days ago.

Pirrone Pounds Tramblie 3 Rounds; That's Enough

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 16.—(AP)—Paul Pirrone, Cleveland middleweight, punched Ray Tramblie of Chicago all over the ring for three rounds tonight and was awarded a technical knockout at the start of the fourth.

73 EAST ELM ST. APARTMENTS BID IN AT $400,000

Title Held for Bondholders' Committee.

BY AL CHASE.

Purchase of the twelve story apartments at 67-73 East Elm street by the bondholders' protective committee from the 73 East Elm Street Building corporation for $400,000 was negotiated yesterday. Title was taken by Harry G. Zimmerman for the committee. This is another step in the reorganization of the property, which, of course, cannot be completed until the fifteen months period of redemption has expired. The property has a frontage on East Elm street of eighty-one feet and is 109 feet deep. The building contains forty-eight unfurnished apartments of four and five rooms.

H. E. DEVEREAUX. [Tribune Photo.]

This was an Equitable Bond and Mortgage company issue of $750,000, all of which is outstanding. According to T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, that body has agreed to keep the books of deposit open for a limited time in order to give bond owners an opportunity to deposit their securities and thereby share in the reorganization when completed.

Holman D. Pettibone is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. The other members are H. E. Devereaux, Frederick J. Stebbins, W. J. McGuire, Harold M. O'Brien, N. H. Dosker, G. L. Hughes, and C. A. Miller. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin are attorneys.

Redemption Period Ends.

With the completion of the fifteen months' period of redemption, transfer of title to the building on Ogden avenue, fifty feet east of Crawford avenue, was made yesterday from the Twenty-second and Crawford Building corporation of Harry G. Zimmermann. The conveyance was made by master's deed. The property was purchased at foreclosure sale in February, 1931, for $95,000.

This was a Madison and Kedzie State bank first mortgage real estate bond issue of $250,000. The property, which is 250x125, is improved with a one story building containing twelve stores and an automobile laundry. Mr. Zimmermann took title as nominee of the bondholders' protective committee.

Get 27 Cents on the Dollar.

According to Walter C. Palmer, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, title to the property will be conveyed by Mr. Zimmermann to the Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee. The property then probably will be reorganized under the liquidating trust plan, being placed in the hands of trustees who will administer it until such time as it can be sold profitably. Mr. Palmer states that the nondepositing bondholders in this instance received 27 cents on each dollar of their securities.

Gen. Abel Davis is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee.

EATON TELLS OF $2,000,000 CHECKS FROM STEEL CO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 16.—Cyrus S. Eaton, steel promoter, today admitted that Otis & Co., brokerage company in which he was a partner, had received four checks for $500,000 each from the Republic Steel corporation in 1929. Mr. Eaton denied, however, that they were money "advances."

Mr. Eaton testified at the hearing of a stockholder's suit against the Republic Steel corporation, denying all the charges made concerning the purchase by the Republic Iron and Steel company of half of the common stock of the Trumbull Cliffs Furnace company from the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company.

On the witness stand nearly four hours before Referee Charles A. Niman he was a witness for the defense in the suit by which E. B. Dyson and Mrs. Jennie Ruedi, Republic Steel stockholders, to set aside the contract by which the Trumbull Cliffs stock was acquired.

Their attorney, David R. Wilkin, cross examined Mr. Eaton, who admitted that Otis & Co. had received four checks for $500,000 each from the Republic in 1929, but said that money was in payments for stocks purchased on Republic Steel's order.

"Was Republic Iron and Steel actually in debt to Otis & Co.?" Wilkin asked.

"O, yes," Eaton replied, "in amounts much in excess of the checks. Some of it was for other steel stocks."

"But it's true," Wilkin said, "that certain advances by the Republic Iron and Steel company to Otis & Co. had been offset on the books of both by a transaction by which 26,000 shares of Republic stock were credited against the advances?"

"I assume that when Republic takes away collateral the books would credit it," Eaton said. "No advances had ever been made to Otis in the sense that you mean."

Sears Finds Sale of Farm Implements Hold Up Well

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reports that its farm implement division has been holding up extraordinarily well so far this year. Orders to date have exceeded the combined sales in the corresponding periods of 1926, 1929, 1930, and 1931.

The company has been gradually enlarging its business in this division. Last year's sales volume of farm implements is estimated to be between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S. TOUCHES PRE-WAR LEVEL

Exports During April $136,000,000.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The foreign trade of the United States is back to pre-war levels. Figures made public by the commerce department yesterday show that exports in April totaled approximately $136,000,000 and imports were about $127,000,000. Exports were the smallest since August, 1914, and except for that month they were the smallest since July, 1911. Imports were the smallest since February, 1915.

However, our April trade produced a favorable balance of $9,000,000. Of course, this is a mere trifle compared with the tremendous balance piled up during the war and the later boom period. But those were the days when the American people were absorbing vast foreign bond issues and the borrowing nations, in turn, were using part of such funds to purchase our goods. Quite a few of these bonds are in default, while ultimate payment of others is a matter of doubt.

Tariffs Hit Trade.

There is no doubt that the drying up of foreign flotations in this country has adversely affected our foreign trade. Tariff laws and reprisals among nations also have had an adverse affect, as also has the drastic decline in commodity prices. However, there is the saving grace that even small favorable trade balances now are probably more real than the big balances of other times. It is no trick to sell goods on liberal credit but there is loss, instead of profit, if the credits are not ultimately repaid.

The April figures reveal a sharp drop in exports from the $213,077,000 of a year ago. Imports show a smaller decline, as the total for April, 1931, was $185,706,000. The great decline from boom times is evident from comparisons with April, 1929, when exports totaled $425,000,000 and imports were $410,000,000. Exports for the four months this year totaled approximately $596,000,000, compared with nearly $925,000,000 in the corresponding period in 1931, while imports were about $525,000,000, compared with $754,000,000. Our favorable balance thus far this year has been around $71,000,000.

Gold Withdrawals.

Recent withdrawals of gold from this country by Europe are reflected in the figures showing gold exports of $49,509,000 during April, compared with only $27,000 in April, 1931. Gold imports during April totaled $19,033,000, compared with $49,543,000 a year ago. Gold exports for the first four months of this year were $329,492,000, compared with only $121,000 for the same period last year, while gold imports were $108,821,000, compared with $125,796,000.

Some features of the reversal in international trade are touched on by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, well known economist, in an analysis made public yesterday.

"International lending is one of the essential features of international trade," he says. "In normal times we export about 8 per cent of our manufactured goods and about 18 per cent of our agricultural products. Our industries and our agricultural resources have been developed to capacities at least that much in excess of domestic needs.

On Lending of Funds

"If we are to lend no more funds abroad, as is daily advocated, we must be prepared to accept permanently much of the coresponding shrinkage that will result from the curtailment of our foreign markets. The stoppage of international lending leaves unsolved the problem of how to restore international trade. There is probably no aspect of the great depression that is of more serious importance than this one and none that is more difficult of solution.

"The processes of international lending and repayment have been going on for a great many years and have steadily grown as world trade has increased. They were sharply curtailed during the wave of security speculation that swept the world in the late prosperity period and reached the greatest excesses in this country. Since then international lending has almost ceased and as a result world trade is declining and will probably continue to recede, for it can not be revived without international loans, and foreign corporate bonds are everywhere regarded with deep disfavor."

Col. Ayres recalls that before the war the United States was a debtor nation but now is a creditor nation.

Finds Average Train Speed Is 38.2 M.P.H.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Lewis C. Sorrell, professor of transportation at the University of Chicago, prompted by some remarks on train speed appearing in this column, submits the manuscript of a series of articles that he has written on the subject.

After carefully analyzing hundreds of train schedules he concludes that the average limited-express passenger train speed between terminals increased from 31.2 miles per hour in 1900 to 33.8 miles per hour in 1916, remained at about that level until 1923 and then rose gradually to 38.2 miles per hour in 1931.

"While I believe that the railroads with the better roadbeds have reserves of speed which may yet be tapped especially for the average trains, and over most of the south and west, yet safety should not be sacrificed," says Prof. Sorrell.

"Doubtless, however, the railroads could raise the average considerably without sacrifice of safety. We may not see 60 miles per hour as a general average, but we perhaps shall see 50 or so for express service.

Question of Policy.

"Given good roadbeds and the present dependable power and this can be realized. Whether the railroads care to retain their passenger business is a question of policy which calls for much consideration."

Prof. Sorrell has analyzed 104 of the fastest services throughout the country. These samples lead him to the conclusion that the average speed declines as the length of run increases, except for runs from 1,000 to 1,500 miles in length. This exception is probably due to the fact that it includes the fast services from New York to Florida and New York to St. Louis.

Twenty runs up to 249 miles in length last year showed an average speed of 42.2 miles per hour; 38 runs from 250 to 499 miles averaged 39.8 miles per hour; 32 runs from 500 to 999 miles averaged 38.7 miles per hour; 6 runs from 1,000 to 1,499 miles averaged 40.9 miles per hour and 8 runs of more than 1,500 miles averaged 35.08 miles per hour. Average speed for all groups was 38.2 miles per hour, in 1931, compared with 36.1 miles per hour in 1929 and 33.78 in 1923.

Fastest in East.

Speed of express train service in the west was found to average only 36.62, compared with an average of 43.03 in the eastern territory and 37.10 in the south.

A similar survey of local train service on main lines disclosed that average speed had increased from 25.05 miles per hour in 1923 to 27.56 miles per hour in 1931, an improvement of about 10 per cent.

Branch line passenger service, however, was found to be going the other direction. The average number of daily services decreased 23 per cent between 1923 and 1931 and the average speed of the service declined about 14 per cent to the low level of 18 miles per hour. A total of 162 branches were studied.

Prof. Sorrell compares the passenger train schedules with those of 169 bus services and 104 air lines for 1931 and concludes that "disregarding the terminal factor in each case, the average express train service is 50 per cent faster between its terminals than the bus between its terminals, while the airplane is three times as fast as the train."

Buys Rubber Tired Car.

Railroad managements are becoming more inclined to explore the possibilities of increased passenger train speed. Yesterday the Pennsylvania railroad announced that it had ordered one of the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company 100 mile per hour rubber tired Diesel motor cars similar to the one previously ordered by the Reading company.

It will consist of a motor car and trailer and will have a total passenger capacity of 76 persons. Both front and rear will be streamlined. The new units will be powered by a 170 horse power Budd-Junkers Diesel engine and the two units, being constructed of lightweight shot welded stainless steel, will weigh 50,000 pounds.

U. S. BUSINESS CHIEFS TO FIGHT TAX BURDEN

Leaders Meet Today in Frisco.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—The rescue of American industry is the aim and hope of a four day general session of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, opening here tomorrow.

Meeting in what they recognize as the most critical era in the country's economic history, the members are preparing to make of their session a forceful demonstration against excessive taxation, the evils of the government in business and, perhaps, against prohibition.

Officers and leading committees of the national organization, as well as many local commercial associations, have diagnosed the nation's ills. They have found the depression to be a disease too largely due to high taxes and the intervening paternalism of the federal government.

Two Thousand to Meet.

This diagnosis is to be submitted, during these next four days, to almost 2,000 executives representing industry, finance, transportation, and trade in all sections of the country. These delegates will be asked to approve the remedies suggested and to see to it later that the remedies are applied and enforced.

Taxation is the dominate topic for discussion. The groundwork has been laid for an assault upon high taxes generally—federal, state, and local. Reports of committees studying all forms of taxation are ready for discussion. Leading among those is a report from the chamber's committee on federal expenditures.

This report, showing that the expenses of the federal government have increased 475 per cent since 1913, the first pre-war year, to the staggering annual expenditure at present of four and one-half billion dollars, reviews some samples of the unwarranted extravagance.

Demands Half Billion Cut.

It winds up with a demand that congress reduce expenditures by at least a half billion dollars yearly, which would involve better than a 10 per cent reduction.

The same report, without detailing the other tax burdens, points out that the full annual tax load in the United States—federal, state and local—now is between thirteen and fourteen billion dollars, compared with less than three billions in 1913. While all taxes have increased 330 per cent, and the federal taxes have the highest rate of increase, 475 per cent, the state taxes have been boosted 376 per cent and local taxes about 270 per cent.

The committee will ask the convention to indorse its demands for reductions and to adopt a recommendation that surveys be conducted to demonstrate the feasibility of eliminating many of the bureaus established by the federal government and of coördinating the activities of others, in the interests of economy.

May Act on Prohibition.

On the question of prohibition, the national chamber has in the past considered this problem to be outside its scope of interests, but this year several local units have demanded a definite stand, declaring prohibition is as much an economic as a moral issue.

Two resolutions are proposed on the subject of prohibition, one suggesting a referendum of the full membership on the question, and the other advocating the appointment of a committee to study prohibition from its economic aspects and to make recommendations so that the membership may vote on the problem before the end of the present congress in March, 1933.

The convention will be opened formally tomorrow night, with Silas H.

APPROVE LOAN TO BALTIMORE & OHIO RAILROAD

To Get $25,500,000 from Finance Corp.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today authorized the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company to borrow $25,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for three years. The company is to receive $8,000,000 on May 25 and $17,500,000 on Aug. 10.

The money is to be used to pay $8,000,000 worth of short term notes due May 25 and one-half of the principal amount of $35,000,000 of unsecured 4 per cent short term notes due Aug. 10.

The B. & O. on March 21 applied to the commission for authorization to borrow $55,000,000 from the corporation, saying it was needed to meet obligations due during 1932. Following its policy of requesting banks to carry half of the loans which may come due, the commission in coöperation with the corporation secured the consent of the banks and the railroad company to carry a portion of the funds by private financing.

Cotton Belt Bond Situation.

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Daniel Upthegrove, president of the St. Louis Southwestern railway, today announced that the time for deposit of the road's first consolidated mortgage bonds under the special refunding plan would be extended to May 25 and that if 90 per cent of the bonds were not deposited at that time the plan would fail.

The original offer expired today and Mr. Upthegrove said that approximately 80 per cent of the bonds had been deposited. He urged that the interests of all of the bondholders made it imperative that the additional holders subscribe to the plan to prevent default of the road's $20,700,000 bonds maturity on June 1.

Provisions of Plan.

The refunding plan provides for payment of 50 per cent of the maturing 4 per cent bonds in cash and the remainder in new 5 per cent bonds. The Reconstruction Finance corporation has tentatively agreed to a loan from which the partial payment of the maturity can be made, providing bondholders approve, but unless 90 per cent of the bondholders favor the plan the reconstruction funds will not be forthcoming.

OIL LEADERS MAY BUY UP RUSSIA'S SURPLUS

Discuss Idea at New York.

New York, May 16.—Formal discussions within the international oil conference were started today and are expected to last for ten days at least, according to a representative of an American oil company.

Several plans probably will be submitted toward stabilizing world oil markets. It is understood, however, that the proposals discussed thus far consist mostly of the purchase of the surplus Russian oil by the other oil companies.

While details of such purchase have not been thoroughly canvassed, it is said, the plan is considered sound by some American and British oil companies.

Would Buy for 10 Years.

The plan involves the purchase of all oil exported by Russia for a period of ten years. The amount of oil to be purchased from Russia is not to exceed the total exported last year. That amounted to approximately 5,100,000 tons. In view of the fact that the program involves the withdrawal of Russia from the oil markets of the world, some are of the opinion that it may not be acceptable to the soviets.

Russia, however, has not developed the foreign markets to a great extent, and therefore, it is said, would lose little, if anything, by such an agreement.

The industrialization of Russia, it is said, will result probably in less oil exports in the future. It is said by some American oil executives that within ten years Russia probably will be consuming all the oil produced there and will not be a factor in the export market.

Oklahoma Law Upheld.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—(AP)—The Oklahoma oil curtailment act was sustained as valid today by the Supreme court in a case brought by the Champlin Refining company of Enid, Okla.

The opinion delivered by Justice Butler declared the rules, regulations, and pool rationing orders of the Oklahoma corporation commission, issued under the curtailment act, were valid.

Du Pont Sets $3 Basis for Dividend

New York, May 16.—Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a $3 annual basis, compared with $4 a year paid previously. The present shares had been on a $4 annual basis since the payment of the initial dividend in 1929, and frequent extras had been paid. Du Pont earnings in 1931 were equal to $4.29 a share on the common, against $4.67 in 1930, and in the first quarter this year the earnings were equal to 74 cents a share, against $1.01 a share in the quarter last year.

Along with announcement of the dividend the company stated that effective June 1 the pay of salaried employés will be reduced 10 per cent. A similar cut was made last year.

Affected by Motors.

Du Pont earnings have been affected by its interest in General Motors corporation common stock, which at the beginning of 1932 amounted to 9,981,220 shares, or 22.94 per cent of the outstanding General Motors stock. This stock now is paying $1 a share per year, compared with $3 paid in 1931. The rate was reduced from $3 to $2 and then to $1, with the result that the return to du Pont from its General Motors holdings in the first quarter this year was equal to 45 cents a share on du Pont common, against 68 cents a share in the quarter last year.

Indiana Service corporation has suspended the dividend due June 1 on the 7 and 6 per cent preferred stocks because earnings have been affected by the depression. The company is a part of the Midland Utilities group and is one of the Insull properties.

Defers Action.

Spang, Chalfant & Co. deferred action on the quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the cumulative preferred stock due to be paid on July 1.

J. T. Barnett, president of the Mountain Producers corporation, whose principal income is from holdings in the Salt Creek oil field of Wyoming, states that the company expects that the present dividend rate of 80 cents a year on the capital stock will be maintained throughout this year.

Directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway meet tomorrow for consideration of dividends and will declare the regular quarterly payment of 62½ cents a share on the common stock, it was reported in Wall street today.

Some Apprehension.

The high yield of more than 18 per cent available on the stock at current levels and at the present dividend rate, combined with the unsatisfactory traffic situation confronting the carriers generally, had created considerable apprehension over the maintenance of the C. & O. dividend at the present $2.50 a share annual basis.

The C. & O., however, has shown favorable resistance to the generally downward trend of railroad earnings and for the first quarter reported net income closely approximating the dividend requirements of the period, notwithstanding a 14 per cent contraction in gross earnings. Net income for the three months ended March 31 last totaled $4,750,000.

New Brunswick to Offer $5,000,000 in Debentures

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Bond dealers heard today that an offering of $5,000,000 Province of New Brunswick 18 year 5½ per cent sinking fund debentures, due May 15, 1950, will be made tomorrow by a syndicate headed by the Dominion Securities corporation, at 95.60 to yield 5.90 per cent, based on Canadian funds.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 16.—A brisk rally during the afternoon lifted the stock market a few inches nearer the surface, increased the trading momentum, and generally cut down the morning losses.

There was moderate selling in stocks and bonds throughout most of the day, with great weakness in spots and many new low prices. The respite in selling was not felt until the last two hours of the session and even then there was no hasty buying. The total sales for the day, however, climbed up to 1,300,000 shares—a bit more than twice the business on the same day a week ago.

Du Pont Dividend Cut.

The usual crop of rumors began to circulate when the market took its turn upward, but the rebound had its basis chiefly in technical conditions. There was the news of the Du Pont dividend action—a reduction from a $4 to a $3 annual basis—but this proved more favorable than had been anticipated. Then there were some indications of more aggressive action on taxes and economy measures at Washington which helped a bit. The April report of Chesapeake and Ohio, one of the first big roads to make its return for the month, tended to stir up considerable covering at the close of the day.

Among the stocks which closed the day with net gains were Eastman Kodak, up 2⅛ points; Coca Cola, 1⅝; Macy & Co., 2; Liggett and Myers B., 1½; Homestake Mining, 6⅞; General Food corporation, 1⅝; Norfolk and Western, 3; Sears Roebuck, 1½ and Standard Oil of New Jersey, 1.

Railway Stocks Suffer.

Railroad stocks were under pressure during most of the day. Union Pacific and Delaware and Hudson were off more than three points each at the lows for the day. Union Pacific came back and lost only ½ point, but Delaware and Hudson closed down 2 points.

On the down side there were numerous stocks that failed to gain back their day's losses. They included: Beach Nut Packing, off 1½ points; Hershey Chocolate, 4; Motor Products, 1¼; National Lead, 2; United Biscuit, 1½; Universal Leaf Tobacco, 1¼; and Waldorf System, 1. Preferred issues of several stocks took larger losses on comparatively small turnovers. Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe preferred was off 6⅞ points; American Tobacco preferred dropped 3 points; Illinois Central preferred, 3; McCrory Stores preferred, 6; Otis Elevator preferred, 2; and Willys Overland preferred, 2½.

PLAN $160,000 CHURCH GROUP IN NORTH LA SALLE

Evangelical Lutheran Will Build.

Preliminary architectural sketches for a $160,000 church edifice and parish house are being prepared by Miller & Wallace for St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, of which the Rev. Henry Kowert is pastor. The new building will be erected at 1301 North La Salle street, at the northeast corner of East Goethe street. The main church auditorium will seat 600 persons. The exterior of the church and parish house will be of limestone.

The Chicago Boys' Club, Inc., yesterday secured through purchase from Gerald, Mayme, Edward F. and Mollie Murphy 25 feet of frontage on the west side of Emerald avenue, 67 feet south of West 34th street. The property is 124½ feet deep. This gives the club a site with approximately 190 feet of frontage for a new club or center for boys which will be built later on, no definite date having been determined as yet. J. F. Cornelius & Co. were brokers in yesterday's transaction.

Apartments Traded.

The Charles Ringer company reports the exchange of a two apartment building at 6119 Rhodes avenue for three flats at 8909 Harper avenue. The two flat building was owned by Joseph E. and Margaret D. Henry and the three apartments by E. M. Gustafson. A feature of the deal was that both properties were clear of mortgages. Mr. and Mrs. Henry paid cash for the difference in equities. Tom Rooney of the Ringer company represented Mr. Gustafson and Edward Lynch of Swanson & House represented Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

Harry W. Sehl, head of the Sehl Advertising agency, who lives at 1120 Lake Shore drive, yesterday conveyed by quitclaim deed the northeast corner of North Dearborn and West Chestnut streets to Frances Ryan. The property is improved with five residences.

Attorney Buys Flats.

Edward M. Burke, attorney, has purchased the six flat building at 1407-09 East 66th place from John Gessler, giving in exchange 168 feet of vacant at the northeast corner of 97th and Wallace streets. George J. Nasser and Max Wezelman of Schlismann-Sward, Inc., were brokers.

John A. Menaugh, trustee, has conveyed to Alfred Wilks the 12 flat building at the northeast corner of Sunnyside avenue and North Paulina street, lot 62x105, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 21,000; sheep, 11,000.

Market supplies of live stock fell short at all leading centers again yesterday. Arrivals of cattle, hogs, and sheep at Chicago were among the smallest for Monday in recent years. The total at 57,000 showed a decrease of 23 per cent, compared with a week ago and 32 per cent smaller than a year ago. About 40 per cent of the hog receipts and about 80 per cent of the lambs were billed direct to packers from other points, with a smaller share than usual for producers to the market.

The consensus attributes this abrupt letup in marketing to the ideal corn planting weather the last few days. Reports from principal producing sections in the corn belt substantiate this theory and traders confidently expect normal supplies after farmers have caught up with their field work which has been delayed by rain and wet ground this spring.

Recover Part of Loss.

All live stock responded to the influence of light supplies. Hogs recovered part of what was lost on the week-end session, but were unable to equal the high spot of last Friday. Only 28,000 arrived here. After directs had been deducted, 17,000 were left. Only two Monday totals have been smaller since December, 1928.

Prices ruled steady to 10c higher than Saturday, light weights showing most of the gain, with the top at $3.65. A part load sold at $3.70. The general average remained unchanged at $3.35. Choice grades were scarce and selective buying by all interests q ickly cleared the pens of best grades of all weights. Large local packers paid within 5c of the peak price, but were strict about quality of hogs at $3.50@3.60.

Cattle Buyers Aggressive.

Buyers became aggressive in the cattle yards soon after the start. All classes moved forward 15@25c and closed at the high point of the day when five markets reported 21,700 in sight for today, against 24,400 last Tuesday. Sellers strove to bring the $8.00 quotation into play again, but buyers had other ideas and converged in $5.50@6.50 kinds whenever the market for top classes got too strong for them.

The peak price finally landed at $7.60. This price was paid for 1,223 lb averages. Heavy beeves, averaging 1,402@1,448 lbs, reached $7.45, and yearlings sold at $7.35. Butcher stock ruled stronger, with top yearling heifers at $6.15. Calves sold steady to strong.

Lambs Recover Loss.

Lambs recovered all the loss registered during the last half of last week when a scant 3,000 head were offered on the market yesterday. Directs totaled 12,000. Gains of 15@25c were scored, the top for aged wool lambs reaching $6.35 at the close, highest since last Wednesday, and 35c above the low spot of the week. Lambs without fleece sold up to $5.50, while native springers cleared at $7.50 and below.

SMALL INTEREST IN LARD

It is the belief of the packers and provision traders in general that deflation in hog prices and pork products has run its course. They say all bearish conditions have been well discounted. That, however, has not led to increased buying. Closing trades on lard were unchanged from Saturday's prices. In bellies there was no trading; prices were off 5c at the last. Cash trade was fair with lard at $3.72½; loose, $3.07½, and leaf, $3.25. Short ribs and clear bellies were $3.65. Liverpool markets were closed. Exports of lard for the week were 6,158,000 lbs, against 9,715,000 lbs last year, and of bacon, 856,000 lbs, against 3,200,000 lbs last year. Hog receipts were smaller than a week and a year ago and prices steady.

Lard stocks in Chicago on May 14 were 58,120,000 lbs, an increase of 5,814,000 lbs since April 30. A year ago stocks were 41,932,000 lbs. Stocks of dry salted clear bellies of 17,561,000 lbs, compared with 17,600,000 lbs on April 30, and 2,330,000 lbs on May 14 last year. Prices follow:

BUTTER AND EGGS LOWER

Butter and egg futures dropped still lower on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, trading improving to some extent. Butter was off ¼@½c and eggs ¾c at the close. Statistical reports in both markets continued fairly favorable, but weather conditions induced some bearish sentiment. Liquidation and new selling both appeared, particularly in October eggs. The four markets reported net inward movements totaling 48,000 lbs less butter and 7,700 cases less eggs, compared with last year, the weekly reports also indicating fairly sharp increases in the shortages in the ten markets. Sales: Butter, 37 cars; eggs, 76 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

New U. S. Treasury Bills Heavily Oversubscribed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Another large oversubscription for new government securities was announced by the treasury department tonight. Subscriptions for the $75,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills offered last week totaled $395,069,000, but only the amount originally sought was allotted. The average price for the bills, which bear no interest, but are sold on a discount basis, was 99.893, yielding a rate of 43-100ths of 1 per cent on a bank discount basis.

FEDERAL LOAN HELPS DEFUNCT MICHIGAN BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Joseph, Mich., May 16.—Payment of the first dividend, a total of $800,000, since the Commercial National bank closed it doors last September, was announced today by W. R. Payne, as receiver. It will be paid Wednesday. It amounts to thirty per cent of deposits on hand when the bank closed and it will be paid to about 5,000 depositors. "This dividend is being paid from funds acquired by the receiver in the ordinary course of liquidation, supplemented by a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Co.," Mr. Payne said.

After the Commercial bank closed St. Joseph was without a bank until after the holidays. Then the Peoples State bank opened.

COTTON GAINS $1 A BALE

The suddenness with which the market reversed itself from downward trend, which has characterized its action of late, unnerved shorts. They immediately sought to protect their commitments and were the chief cause for the sharp upturn in prices which was maintained to the close, showing net gains of 18@23 points on futures at Chicago, with New York and New Orleans 19@21 points higher. While no particular trade features were evident to cause the changed sentiment, it was said that the market had become heavily oversold and the reaction was a natural result. Opening prices at Chicago were unchanged to 6 points lower.

WHEAT JUMPS OVER A CENT ON CROP NEWS

Kansas Damage Stories Help Price Here.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders construed crop comments from the southwest as sensationally bullish. Scattered buying absorbed the surplus in the wheat pit early and later pronounced strength in Kansas City started some of the leading local operators to buying freely, with the result that prices were rushed up 1¾@1¾c above the early low and the finish was at the top with net gains of 1¼@1¾c.

May wheat closed at 54¾@55c; old July, 57c; old September, 58¾@58¾c, and December, 61¾c. Kansas City was up 1¾@2c for the day, while Winnipeg was ¾@¾c higher. May in the latter market closed at 62½c in Canadian funds.

Wheat vs. Steel Price.

While the trade continues to talk about the influence of the stock market on grains, there appears to be little relationship between the two. On Oct. 5, 1931, May wheat sold at 48¾c in Chicago, the lowest figure of the season. At that time U. S. Steel was 62¼. At the close yesterday May wheat was up 7¼c from the low point, while Steel closed at 27⅝.

Numerous reports were received during the day telling of additional deterioration in the outlook for the Kansas wheat crop. R. O. Cromwell, Lamson Bros. & Co. crop observer, spent four days in looking over the territory of central and western Kansas and south to the Texas panhandle. He wired that there was little improvement and some serious losses. He is now inclined to look for Kansas to raise a crop of not over 70,000,000 bu, or 18,000,000 bu under the government May returns, unless there is a complete change in weather conditions. He found further loss of acreage in some sections.

General Comment Adverse.

Taken as a whole, the general run of wheat crop comments from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Colorado were pessimistic and numerous messages received from various sources during the day indicated a disposition to lower rather than to raise estimates on the crop. Rain is again needed over a considerable section, with dust storms reported in western Kansas.

There was comparatively little outside interest in the wheat market yesterday and the bulk of the buying was of a local character. A decrease of 4,183,000 bu in the domestic visible supply attracted attention as the total was reduced to 170,719,000 bu, compared with 191,683,000 bu last year. There was no export business of consequence as foreign markets were generally closed. They will reopen today, however.

Corn Market Rallies.

Weaker sentiment was rather bearish on corn early there was no pressure on the market and when wheat turned strong corn followed and the close was at net gains of ⅞@¾c; May finished at 30¼c; July, 32⅝@32¾c; September, 35@35⅛c, and December, 34⅞@35c. The market has shown a noticeable lack of leadership of late, with trade almost entirely of a professional character.

Eastern shipping demand showed moderate improvement with sales of 106,000 bu, while there was practically no corn booked to arrive. A decrease of 201,000 bu in the visible supply brought the total down to 21,696,000 bu, compared with 15,373,000 bu last year.

NEW SALES UNIT IS ORGANIZED BY STUDEBAKER

Consolidation of certain sales activities of the various divisions of the Studebaker corporation was announced yesterday. The merger will be carried out through the formation of a new unit, the S. P. A. R. Sales corporation, which carry out certain functions now handled by the separate divisions. All sales promotional activity including advertising will continue to be handled separately by each division.

The activities of the new unit will consist of such functions as security dealer representation, wholesale orders and assisting distributors. P. G. Hoffman is president of S. P. A. R. Sales corporation. G. M. Graham, R. H. Faulkner and J. M. Cleary, officials of the various Studebaker divisions, will act as vice presidents of the new concern. Each individual company retains freedom of action in advertising and selling.

KILLING OF JAPANESE PREMIER HAS REFLEX IN FINANCE MARTS

New York, May 16.—(AP)—The financial district, in terms of bond and exchange prices, expressed mild concern today over the disturbed political situation in Japan which culminated in the assassination of Premier Inukai.

Most of the Japanese loans dropped from $10 to $40 per $1,000 par valuation, but some of them rallied moderately near the close of the market. The government 5½s and 6½s ended with net losses of $20 to $32.50, respectively, while the Oriental Development issues of 5½s and 6s, both government guaranteed, showed net declines of $16.25 and $11.25. Great Consolidated Electric Power 7s lost $45.50, while Tokio and Yokohama municipal and corporate issues were off from $12.50 to $40.

The Japanese yen, which has been sagging for some time, reached a new low for the yar at 31 cents for cables, a net loss of 1 cent on the day. The yen started its decline several months ago, when Japan suspended the gold standard.

The price of raw silk, Japan's largest export, showed only a slight decline. The Yokohama silk exchange was closed during the day.
